POPULIST CONVENTION.

Middle of the Road Men Meet. Nominate Candidates for 1900. Denounce Butler, which Leads to a Bolt.

CONCORD, Sept. 6. The middle-of-the-road, or straight-out populists, reorganized the people's party at their convention here today, renewed its former declaration of principles and nominated a national ticket two years and two months in advance of the date of the election.

The object of this early action was to head off any such action as that of 1896. While the radicals controlled the convention, they could not carry out their programme without a bolt, made chiefly by northern delegates. Western and Southern delegates nominated Wharton Barker and Benjamin Donnelly for President and Vice President respectively, and declared the principles of the new organization.

While the people's party is determined to stand out for no form of fusion, it has now been found that even the anti-fusionists are divided, and that the fusion sentiment is middle of the road is the most in the ascendency.

An address to the people of the United States was adopted and was afterward incorporated in the conventions platform. It reaffirms the previous positions of the Populists, and covers many additional propositions. In referring to the [illegible] it says:

Senator Butler, who is the chairman of our executive committee, presided at our deliberations and demonstrations. General Leonidas Polk, nominated for the vice presidency of the American forces, that he believes would be more acceptable to the young republic. MILES MAY BE RELIEVED

The Controversy Becoming Serious. He Confirms His Criticisms.

NEW YORK, September 7. A special to the Herald from Washington says: When it handed to Secretary Alger the statements of General Miles as to the parade of his troops in New York the Secretary read it and replied:

"Do not ask me about that. I have nothing to say."

The Secretary seemed vexed at the very suggestion of the Miles controversy, which it was mentioned to him. I am informed that it is the program of the administration to let General Miles do all the talking. And yet it is stated in the War Department circles that there is a limit beyond which General Miles will not be allowed to go.

While no action is expected to be taken upon the statements already attributed to General Miles, yet there is strong reason for saying that the displacement of the commanding general of the army is not among the improbabilities of the near future. The case of Gen. Winfield Scott is recalled, when as commanding general he was relieved and assigned to the superintendency of West Point.

There is no doubt of the authority of the President to relieve the commanding general whenever he sees fit. It is also within his province to order a court martial for the trial of General Miles, but this he has no thought of doing. The extreme measures he would be likely to take would be as above indicated, and whether or not this will be done will depend largely upon the future conduct of General Miles.

Although Secretary Alger said some days ago that he did not believe General Miles could have made the statements attributed to him, the authorities here have never seriously questioned the accuracy of the Miles interviews. They have questioned the propriety of his conduct in criticising his superior officers, but have not decided to take official notice of it until something more develops.

The interview just given out by General Miles is not calculated to improve the situation. Indeed, it may bring matters to a head. Among the subordinate officials of the War Department the feeling is general that either General Miles or Secretary Alger must go.

PORTO RICO COMMISSION.

Arrives in San Juan. Admiral Schley Welcomed.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, September 6. Admiral Winfield S. Schley, Gen. W. W. Gordon and their staffs arrived here on the steamer Seneca this morning.

As the Seneca entered the harbor the guns on the New Orleans and the Wasp boomed a salute. Flags on the Spanish ships were dipped courteously. Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant came ashore and engaged apartments at the Hotel Inglaterra.

Early in the afternoon General Brooke entered the city with his entire staff. A little later Schley and Gordon came ashore. The three American commanders were cheered on General Macias at the palace. There was an immense throng in the street and neighborhood. The crowd was quiet, and no demonstration, objective or otherwise, was made.

The first meeting of the commission has not yet been arranged for. The sittings are not likely to occupy more than a few days.

Li Hung Chang Dismissed.

PEKIN, September 7. Li Hung Chang has been dismissed from power. It is [illegible] that this was done in accordance with the demand which it was [illegible] the British Minister here, Sir Claude M. MacDonald, was instructed to make in [illegible] General [illegible] partiality of the great Chinaman to Russia culminating in Great Britain being deprived of the contract for the Peking-Hankow railroad by giving the Russo-Chinese Bank financial control of the road.

PURSUING THE KHALIFA.

Great Slaughter of the Dervishes in the Recent Battle.

LONDON, Sept. 7. The Bonda Wady correspondent of the Morning Post at Berber, telegraphing the 5th, says the Anglo-Egyptian forces did [illegible] on Monday last. Seventy Arab mounted men were [illegible] after the battle. [illegible] that nothing [illegible] added that the Dervish leader was reported to be moving with [illegible] speed that some of his wives had been dropped along the road followed by him.

The writer says also: "Officers have been counting the Dervish bodies on the field and report the total number of dead found as about 10,000. From the number of wounded who have crawled to the river and to town, it is estimated that 16,000 were wounded. Beside the above between 300 and 400 Dervishes were killed in Omdurman, when the town was taken.

"I have 28 prisoners, between three and four thousand fighting men."

The Cool Bismarck

Bismarck was one day in a company where among other things the subject of how much it cost to gain experience in life cropped up. He kept silent for a time, but presently joined in the conversation and said: "Fools pretend that you can only gain experience at your own expense, but I have always managed to learn at the expense of others."

What Changed His Mind

I had supposed much yesterday. Dear, that the days of the blessed [illegible] were past.

"And so they are. But what changed your mind?"

"That bill you sent me."

Robbed the Grave.

A Statement the truth of which Mr. John Driver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is corroborated by him as follows: "I was in a most terrible condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, gradually growing weaker day by day. There physicians had given me up. Fortunately I tried Electric Bitters, and to my astonishment and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued its use for three weeks and am now well and strong. I know they saved my life, and yielded the prize of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50c. per bottle at W. H. Pike's Drug Store.
