Theatre

In writing of "The Farmer Takes A Wife," the attraction at the Southern Pines theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday August 5, 6 7 with a Tuesday matinee Hollywood's best known critic has this to say after seeing it at a Hollwood preview: "Here is a picture that any exhibitor can present with pride. Containing practically every essential that either spontaneously appeals to or is demanded by any class of patrons, it is an entertainment and showmanship feature destined to mark a new milestone in motion picture annals. Adapted from the stage hit, it shapes up as a winner for general appeal. In 1840, set against the picturesque back ground of the Erie Canal cities of the Empire State and historical events cavalcade behind the love story, as covered wagons parade Wet, county fairs boom, railroads arrive and the canal relinquishes to progress. Before such a moving panorama is enacted a heart-socking romance suffused with warmth and charm, racy with the flavor of good earth and painted in heroic proportions. Simplicity marks the story of Miss Gaynor, who is fiercely loyal to the canal people in conflict with Henry Fonda, who is working on the canal to earn enough money to buy a farm. There's that likable heavy Charles Bickford, who can like any man on the canal and drink twice as much. There's Slim Sommerville, who wins a set of dentist's instruments in a poker game and starts practicing. There's Andy Devine hog caller and perfume buyer; Roger Imhof ,who runs a boat and wins a lottery; Jane Withers, who says: 'Cows don't give milk you've got to take it from them.' Everyone in the cast is top notch. Miss Gaynor is lovely to look at and gives her best performance, graduating from her syrupy roles with skill. Young Fonda, a find, resembling young Abraham Lincoln is strong in what it takes. Fox in producing this has transmuted dramatic metals into finely rolled gold."

If there was nothing to "Love Me Forever" but the divine singing of Grace Moore, the picture would be gladly recommended to every mortal the world over. But Columbia Pictures has given the sensational star a stunning background and a dramatic story that keeps one breathless and thrilled until the final fadeout. Patrons of the Southern Pines Theatre will see this rare musical romance Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 8, 9, 10, with a Saturday matinee.

Emphasized still more in "Love Me Forever" than in "One Night of Love" is the beautiful music. Victor Schertzinger has composed a new hit in his "Love Me Forever" melody. It is graceful and lilting. Featured too, are several grand opera selections from "La Boheme," the quartette from "Rigoletto," "Funiculi - Funicula," "Jingle Bells," "The Bells of St Mary's," "Rings On My Fingers" and a rag time tune by Schertzinger and Gus Khan, entitled "Whoa." Sheer and exciting drama brings the story to a rousing climax. It is an inspired ending, with Miss Moore's rendition of "Ting Hands" in "La Boheme." Leo Carrillo enacts the diffil cult role of the gambler with all the fire with which it should be infused.

A good cigarette, too needs Balance—

And that's why the tobaccos in Chesterfield are carefully balanced one against the other . . . not too much of one — not too little of another.

We take the right amounts of the right kinds of four types of tobacco — Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish.

It is this balancing of tobaccos that makes Chesterfields milder and makes them taste better.
