COMMAND ON ATTU

ALEUTIANS — Pictured in his working clothes, here, is victorious Major General Eugene M. Landrum, who is in command of all U. S. Army Troops on the Aleutian Island of Attu. General Landrum commanded in the Andreanoff Islands and prepared his forces for the Attu assignment. This photo was made when he was a Brigadier General.

BIRD CLUB

At Saturday's Bird Club meeting, Jess Spencer read about the Purple Finch, which isn't purple at all. A mistake in coloring an early picture gave him this name. The streaked body of the male, when in full plumage, is suffused with rosy or raspberry red, brightest on the head, rump and breast; more brownish on the back, wings and tail.

The female and young birds strongly resemble some sparrows, but may be distinguished from them by the the forked tail, the heavy rounded bill and the tuft of feathers over the nostrils.

The purple finch is not so well known as it should be in the South doubtless because of the bird's tendency to keep largely to the tree-tops where identification, especially if the observer is without field glasse, is difficult.

These birds usually come late in October and remain until mid-April or even May and eat many of the seeds of the most destructive weeds, ragweed being a favorite. They also destroy many orchard and woodland caterpillars and are particularly destructive to plant lice, canker worms, and some ground beetles and cutworms.

They sing some when they first come but they are in full power of their song only during the nesting period, when they take their place as outstanding song birds.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Save now to buy later, after the War. That's good common sense because if you spend now, you help to drive prices up for everything you buy. Durable goods are scarce so invest in War Bonds today and do that house remodeling when Victory is won.

If you have not done so, join a Payroll Savings Plan at your office or factory. If you are not investing at least ten percent in War Bonds, increase your regular deductions on your Payroll Savings Plan. Let's "Top that ten percent."

INDIAN CORN VS HYBRID

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—Genuine Indian corn is being pitted against modern hybrid for the first time in a project sponsored by the Rock Island County Historical Society. Dr. J. R. Holbert, famous Funk Farms corn breeder, who is accredited with having developed more successful corn hybrids than any other man, compares an ear of modern seed corn with an ear of Sauk flour corn as a Sauk-Fox Indian squaw (in ceremonial dress) prepares to plant one of the historical Indian corn hillocks in Blackhawk State Park here. No corn has been grown on these hillocks since they were last planted by the Sauk Indians in 1831, just before the Blackhawk war.
