Telephone Company In New Building

R. L. Spivey, local manager for the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, announces that the company has moved its business offices from East Wilson street into the handsome new telephone building in the 200-block of West Wilson street, adjacent to the home of Mrs. W. M. Willis.

No mechanical equipment will be installed in the new structure until September, when additional equipment is scheduled for delivery. At that time, all of the company's local activities will be housed in the new home.

Spivey aso states that the installation of new equipment will mean a wholesale juggling and revision of telephone numbers. The modern system slated for delivery next fall will completely revise the present numbering system, but will have a distinct advantage in that customers may retain the new number assigned them, no matter how many times they move, or into what section of town they move.
