David Anderson, First Thought A Suicide, Is On Way to Pannama

PARENTS ARE POSITIVE BODY NOT THEIR SON

Another Examination of Body Fails to Reveal Certain Identification Marks

HE LIVED IN GOLDSBORO

Young Fellow Joined Crew of U. S. Darien For Trip To Canal Zone

Fear that the body of the suicide found on Virginia Beach, Norfolk, was that of David Anderson, a young Goldsboro boy, was dispelled last night when another examination of the body by Norfolk newspaper men failed to reveal certain marks of identification reported to them last night by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Anderson of Bellevue. He is believed to be a member of the crew of the Darien, now en route to the Panama Canal.

Although the body of the man found on the Virginia beach had been viewed by Mrs. H. B. Fox, an aunt of young Anderson, who lives near Norfolk, and pronounced not to be him, the Norfolk authorities were not satisfied and telephoned here last night for further descriptions of the boy and to learn his whereabouts. In response, Mr. Anderson stated that while there were no scars on the body of his boy, there was space between two of his front teeth the thickness of a silver dollar and that the nail on his little finger was not fully developed. The teeth of the suicide lying in a Norfolk morgue were found to be perfect and there were no indications of an imperfect finger nail.

Wrote Home April 13th

The last heard from young Anderson was on April 13th when he wrote he was leaving Norfolk the following morning on the U. S. Darien as a member of its crew, bound for the Panama Canal, and it is believed he is nearing that point by now.

The belief that the body might be young Anderson arose from the finding of a handkerchief in the pocket of the suicide with the initial "A" stitched in one corner. His family here saw a paper containing news of the finding of the body, and knowing their son had been in Norfolk on the 13th of April, the father immediately got in communication with the Virginia police. They wired back a description which partly fitted his son, especially the height and weight; and terribly alarmed, Mr. Anderson wired Mrs. Fox, his sister-in-law, to view the body.

Mrs. Fox hurried to Norfolk and about twenty-four hours later came this telegram from her:

"H. B. Anderson,
"Goldsboro, N. C.

"Do not worry. It is not David. Have just viewed the body.

"Mrs. R. B. Fox."

Shot His Brains Out

According to the Norfolk authorities, the body of the man was found lying on Virginia beach with a hole through his brain and an army .45 clutched tightly in his hand. It was a clear case of suicide, as the man had concealed his identity by cutting all laundry marks and initials off his clothes.

The description of the body, as read Mr. Anderson by T. L. Petty, Norfolk, inspector of detectives, was:

"Unidentified man described as thirty years. Five feet, ten inches, hundred and sixty pounds. Dark auburn hair, fair complexion. Good teeth. No birth marks or scars. Dressed in brown tweed suit. Herringbone gray overcoat. Tan shoes. Blue gray hat. Handkerchief bore initial A."

DRY OFFICERS SET FIRE TO A FLORIDA FORT

Ignited Bushes To Smoke Out Rum Runners, and Left Them Burning

20 BUILDINGS DESTROYED

The Fort, However, Was On Inactive List and Few Soldiers Were There

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 24.—Twenty buildings and the power plant at Fort Dade, on Edgemont key, were destroyed by flames today when the crew of a government rum chaser set fire to underbrush to smoke out rum runners who had taken refuge on the island, according to fishermen arriving here tonight.

Fort Dade, an army post, was placed on the inactive list some time ago by the war department.

The chaser sighted the rum runner in the gulf three miles from Edgemont and was gaining on the quarry when the smugglers ran their vessel aground in the surf an dwaded ashore. The key is covered with a heavy growth of palmettoes, and mangrove bushes and the fugitives quickly disappeared in the brush.

The dry forces, according to the fishermen, set fire to the brush and smoked out the smugglers, capturing eleven men. The prisoners were loaded aboard the chaser and the rum runner and its cargo of liquor taken in tow for Tampa.

The brush fire was not extinguished, however, and fishermen from here later noticing great clouds of smoke arising from the army post, rushed to the scene. There they found the sergeant, caretaker and cook fighting th flames.

Th buildings destroyed, in addition to the power plant, were dwellings occupied literally by officers and enlisted men when the post was occupied by several units of the coast artillery corps. Edgemont key is at the mouth of Tampa Bay and Fort Dade commands the main channel.

Ask Woman Governor For Old Shoe and Pipe

CHICAGO, April 24.—The requests which some to a woman governor are sometimes surprising, according to Mrs. Nellie Ross, governor of Wyoming, who addressed the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club here this afternoon. Mrs. Ross said one request was from a museum for "an old shoe of yours, or a white elephant or an ex-pipe."

"I was at loss to understand," said Governor Ross, "what an ex-pipe might be, and what I would be doing with it.

"Letters come to me from every state in the union, and from Mexico. I do not fail to appreciate the honor of so much attention, though I am unable to satisfy all the requests.

"Do not imagine that all a woman governor has to think about however, is flattering requests for mementoes. Issues of a very serious nature await my return, and have occupied me almost incessantly since I became governor."

Following the attack, the negro laid down on another bed in the room and stayed there until shortly after daybreak when he was found by officers. The latter girl is said to be in a serious condition, although it is believed that she will recover.

Negro Prisoners Stage Fight in County Jail

Driven into a display of temper when fellow prisoners persisted in teasing him, a negro prisoner in the county jail yesterday fell on one of his comrades in confinement and succeeded in raining several blows on his head before Sheriff Grant and others interferred.

One of the combatants was C. V. Whitley, a negro brought into the county jail some time ago on a charge of attempting rape on an inmate of the colored insane asylum. Whitley was employed in the asylum hospital.

Sheriff Grant, Attorney Hugh Dortch and others were in the sheriff's office when a man rushed in with the information that two prisoners in the county jail were trying to annihilate each other with every implement on which they could lay hands.

The sheriff and his visitors made a dash for the jail and separated the two belligerents. It was learned that one of the men had been goaded into fury by the teasing of his cell-mates and proceeded to vent his wrath on one of them with a tin dinner plate. After being pounded in the face with the dinner plate until he was almost ready to toss in the towel as a token of defeat, the other rallied and started a counter offensive with a pop bottle. The tide of battle had shifted in his favor when the sheriff's party entered.

FAIR SALARIES FOR EFFICIENT SERVICE IS AIM

Commission to Fix Wages for State Employees Met Thursday

NO FLAT SCALE FIXED

Exact Scope of Commission's Activities Has Not Been Settled

By Beach Stanley

RALEIGH, April 24.—The establishment of a range of salaries that will be fair to both employees and the taxpayers and provide for securing efficient service will be the aim of the state's salary and wage commission, which began today and the difficult task of standardizing the state's pay roll.

A statement issued following conference with Governor McLean and department heads had the following to say:

There was no disposition on the part of the commission to fix the flat salary for each class of position regardless of experience and efficiency of the individual employee, but rather to establish for each class of work a range of salaries that will be fair alike to employee and the taxpayer and provide for rewarding efficient service.

Julian Price of Greensboro, acted as chairman, and Sam L. Rogers of Franklin, was made secretary. The other members are George Stephenson, of Tarboro; R. S. Rankin, of Raleigh and P. H. Hanes, Jr., of Winston-Salem.

Whether the work of the commission will extend to the employees of the state at such institutions and universities, which had not been included in the inquiry today, but it was reported that a committee making a study of salary conditions would go to the institutions and report that standardization of salaries should be extended to them.

The salary and wage commission proved a necessary adjunct to the budget commission, which began its work yesterday and will continue for several days. The budget commission, which is charged with the duty of reducing the state's expenditures, has practically completed its work of paring down the departmental budgets, but has yet to take up the institutional budgets, which have provided for large increases over the present year's expenditures.

While the salary and wage commission is not a legislative body, it is expected that its recommendations will be given consideration by the next legislature, which will have before it the budget commission's report and recommendations for equalizing revenues to meet the state's expenditures, and the proposal to increase the state's revenues by a general sales tax.

The salary and wage commission spent the day in conference with Governor McLean at the mansion. The governor, as director of the budget, therefore, has already gathered much information regarding the salary ratings as well as a general idea of the work and purpose of every department, institution and agency that was begun over the state's body.

Girl Hikers, Bound For South, Held in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, April 24.—Viola Earl and Isabelle Duck, both about 20 years old, and hailing from northern New Jersey, tired of life in the "old home town" three months ago. Now they're listed as runaways at the Southwestern police station.

Viola hails from Newark, N. J., and Isabelle from East Orange. They both decided to see "the U. S. A."

New York was the first place tried. That proved a dull failure. Then they turned their faces toward the Sunny South. Their resources were slender. They walked part of the way.

"But we got as many lifts in automobiles as we could, you can bet," they chorused. Washington was their objective, and Washington was where they landed.

Washington proved almost as bad a place as New York.

"Whoever started that bunk about the Sunny South, with its hospitality and open arms?" they asked indignantly.

So they decided that perhaps Washington was not typical of the South. Virginia would surely be more hospitable, they argued. Didn't the novelists say so?

The two girls thought, however that Baltimore should be given a trial before Virginia. So they started putting behind their backs the weary 40 miles.

Early today they admitted to Motorcycle Patrolman Clarence Mercer, of the southwestern district, that they were about stranded. He came upon them on the Washington pike and was attracted by their weary appearance, he said.

So Mercer brought them into the station house and, despite their ages, listed them as runaways. Their respective parents have been notified and asked to come personally and regain their daughters.
