Col. Caldwell on Col. Mills.

Today's Charlotte Observer says editorially regarding the execution of George Mills here yesterday: "Col. Mills, who was hanged at Salisbury yesterday, boasted in the world the lack of Christian charity in those who had declined to petition the governor for a commutation of his death sentence. In the mouth of a gentleman who had beaten in a girl's skull with a club, sending her to eternity all unfurnished for her general account, and who was himself about to die at the hands of the law, words like those were like apples of gold in pictures of silver, so fitly spoken were they."

It Did the Business

Mr. J. H. Cobb, publisher of the Mirror, at Brocton, N. Y., says: "For nearly two years the Mirror has been publishing the advertisements of Chamberlain's Remedies. A few days ago the writer was suffering from a bowel trouble and resorted to an old remedy which did not prove efficacious; finally he tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and two doses did the business, checking it completely. PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

CHARLES MacDONALD A PROMINENT CHICAGO BUSINESS MAN, IS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Within a few steps of the [illegible] tion of two of the busiest thoroughfares in Chicago, if not in the country, is a store through the portal of which more people pass in the course of a day than enter into and depart from any other establishment of its size in the west. Men and women whose faces bear the stamp of intelligence and culture, women who lead in society, not merely because they are prominent in the professions, lawyers, physicians, artists, ladies and journalists. The [illegible] place [illegible] character, which is that of a center of current news and information. It is the news and periodical depot of Charles MacDonald, at 55 Washington street, who writes the following letter:

CHICAGO, Feb. 20, 1895.—Messrs. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.—Gentlemen: It is clearly the duty of every person to acknowledge a service rendered, no matter what its nature. When, however, the character of the benefit bestowed is such that it lightens the daily burdens of our lives, and changes our nights from dreary watches to periods of tranquil and refreshing repose, the duty resolves into a pleasure. A few months ago, owing to the confining nature of my business, I began to feel at first a [illegible] languor and listlessness, to [illegible] which I was compelled to [illegible] the strength of [illegible] The feeling [illegible] and in a [illegible] possession of [illegible] appetite and [illegible] approached my [illegible] was [illegible] I was [illegible] of listlessness, but [illegible] were [illegible] I had arrived at a point where I could no longer keep [illegible] and speaking [illegible] friends one day he suggested that I try Paine's celery compound. I purchased a bottle and before I had taken a dozen doses I knew that the suggestion was a good one, for I felt an improvement. I continued to use it, and feel entirely restored. My appetite is good, I sleep well, and, instead of an irksome [illegible] duty, it has become a pleasure to me. You may put me down as a strong advocate of Paine's celery compound.

Yours respectfully,
CHAS. MACDONALD.
