MR. SAPP GOES TO NORFOLK

Mr. C. P. Sapp of the News and Observer, left this morning for Norfolk, where he goes to assume his new duties on the editorial staff of the Norfolk Virginian and Pilot. The recent death of Elliott Blair caused a vacancy on the staff of that paper and in looking for an able and forceful writer to fill the vacancy the directors of the Virginian and Pilot considered Mr. Sapp to have those qualities most needed to carry on their work in Norfolk.

Mr. Sapp is a young man who has risen rapidly in his profession. He was born on Cabarrus county, in this State, and received his education at Wake Forest College. Later Mr. Sapp was in Kentucky where he taught school for a year, before returning to North Carolina to edit the Greensboro Telegram. On the departure of Mr. W. E. Christian from the News and Observer staff to go to the New York Herald, Mr. Sapp came to Raleigh and has displayed unusual ability as a writer.

Mr. Sapp has made many friends in Raleigh who wish him success in his new field of labor.

SMALL POX AT YALE

New Haven, Conn., March 19.—Talks with Yale authorities indicate that the reports of the smallpox cases are grossly exaggerated. The case of Rally Mid Delmon is now pronounced measles. Dr. Porter, the assistant to physician of the case in Wall school, has also pronounced that malady. President Hadley told the students the situation at Yale. The committee was unduly excited, but recommended to them to be vaccinated. The regular exercises in the university will not be suspended.

The New Spring Millinery

Special arrangements with our New York Correspondents will enable us to make an EXHIBITION OF FRENCH PATTERN HATS on every Wednesday. Drawing inspiration from the dainty, charming and fascinating events of last week, so pleasing to our friends, with happy results and encomiums at every hand, we are flattered into the belief that this Spring Millinery Season wil be one of untoward success, and that the GREAT EASTER SALE will more than double our first anticipation—events occurring every day to prove this.

The Millinery force, work room artists and helpers have been doubled. Expert trimmers study the MODELS; copy, embellish, tone down, and emulate until we wonder whether you can tell our WORK from the FRENCH.
