

An Evening With Ann Roiphe

On January 20, the Jewish community, in conjunction with the Charlotte Mecklenburg Public Library, will host an evening with writer Ann Roiphe. Ms. Roiphe has written many novels including the 1970 best seller, Up the Sandbox under her former name of Anne Richardson. She has also written Seasons of Healing: Reflections on the Holocaust and Generation Without Memory: A Jewish Journey in Christian America. Her most recent book, If You Knew Me has been extremely well received. Ms. Roiphe is being cosponsored by Barnes & Nobel Bookstores.

The Jewish Community Center will offer transportation to the main library for this interesting evening with a coffee and book signing to follow. For more information about this entertaining evening, which begins at 7 p.m., please contact Debby Rosenberger at the JCC, 366-5007.

CAJE Sponsors Family Education Workshop

On Sunday, Jan. 9, 12:30-3 p.m., CAJE (the Carolina Agency for Jewish Education) in cooperation with the Charlotte Jewish Principals' Council will sponsor a workshop for teachers. "Family Education in Your Classroom" will be presented by nationally prominent Jewish family educator, Janice Alper. After lunch, teachers will explore opportunities, methodologies and possibilities for implementing family education programming in their classrooms. Every teacher who attends is guaranteed to return to his/her respective classroom with at least one, if not more, do-able family program. All levels of teaching from preschool through high school will be addressed at the workshop.

Janice Alper is currently the Executive Director of Jewish Educational Services of Atlanta, and an adjunct faculty member of the University of Judaism, Whizin Institute for Jewish Family Life, Los Angeles, Prior to coming to Atlanta, Janice was the Parent and Family Education Consultant at the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Los Angeles. She served as Chairman of CAJE 9 National Conference at Stanford University in 1984. She was a Board member of NATE, the National Association of Temple Educators. Janice's book, Learning Together: A Sourcebook on Jewish Family Education, established her as one of the premier facilitators in the field of Jewish family education. Her expertise also includes teacher training, curriculum design and school management. A graduate of the Rhea Hirsch School of Education at Hebrew Union College in Los Angeles, Janice recently completed a year of study in Israel at Tel Aviv University. As part of her work there, she developed a curriculum of using Israel as a learning center for B'nai Mitzvah students and their families.

The workshop is free to all teachers whose schools are CAJE members. Kosher dairy lunch is $3. To register or for more information, contact Lenora Stein, executive director of CAJE, 366-5007, ext. 272.

Camp Barney Medintz To Hold Open House

Camp Barney Medintz, summer resident camp of The Atlanta Jewish Community Center, will offer an exciting presentation in Charlotte on Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 7 p.m. at Shalom Park. Jim Mittenthal, M.S.W., Camp director, will meet with new and returning families and show the camp's new media production, answer questions pertaining to the 1994 summer season, and provide applications for registration.

Camp Barney Medintz is located in the North Georgia mountains on over 500 acres of forests, lakes and streams—just 75 miles from Atlanta. The magnificent setting facilitates dozens of favorite and unusual activities including: swimming in the olympic-size pool, waterskiing, sailing, canoeing, leaping off of "The Blob," horseback riding, campouts, whitewater rafting, tubing, theater, tennis, all land/court sports, videography, crafts, music, radio, mountain biking, and a series of high-adventure technical rock climbing, rappelling and ropes courses.

Camp Barney Medintz is about adventure and discovery, great activities and exciting events, teaching and learning, Jewish traditions and special friends.

Inquiries about our 1994 summer are far exceeding previous years and each of the two and four-week sessions are likely to fill to capacity by early Spring. For more information, please call the Camp Barney Medintz office soon at (404) 396-3250.
