A SATISFACTORY test was made Tuesday on the Raleigh and Gaston railroad of a process the invention of Boylus Code of Wake county, for telegraphing to trains while in motion. Death of Lenoir Citizens.

The Kinston Free Press of last week informs us of the death of Mr. J. H. Stevenson of that town and Capt. W. S. Bird, county superintendent of public schools.

Mr. Stevenson was 67 years old. He had been identified with the interests of Kinston since it was a village, and was perhaps as well known as any of the older citizens. He was at one time proprietor of the only hotel in the town and there reared a family of bright and intelligent children, all daughters but one. The Free Press says:

"He was twice married—his first wife being Miss Margaret West, by whom he had several children, of whom Mrs. L. Harvey, Mrs. J. W. Bryan and Mr. Junius Stevenson survive him; his second wife was Miss Mary A. Bell, who with her two small children are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and an indulgent father.

"Mr. Stevenson was a warm hearted man, and possessed many traits which endeared him to his friends who were numerous."

This writer knew Capt. Bird when he was a school boy, or a young man attending the public schools in what is now Pink Hill township, where he was born of humble parentage, and we know something of the difficulties he had to contend with in securing what seemed to be his greatest desire, an education. He literally worked his own way and was a living example of what a young man can do if he has pluck and energy. The common schools planted in him such a strong desire for higher education and such a thirst for knowledge that he resolved to overcome all difficulties that stood in the way of his march upward. Even after he had passed the age at which pupils were admitted free he attended the public schools, paying tuition, which continued then about three months in the year, working the balance of the time on a farm for wages, out of which he helped to support an aged mother. But his indomitable spirit was not to be crushed. He soon saved enough out of his hard earnings to enter a first class high school in the neighborhood of Seven Springs in Lenoir county, presided over by one of the Robinsons who were famous teachers in those days. After spending a year or two here he went to a commercial college in Baltimore where he soon graduated. Soon after he married Miss Sophia Armony of this city, and, not satisfied with a high school and business education, he went to Trinity College and entered the Sophomore class and graduated in 1859 or '60, we disremember which. During the war he served as a captain in the 61st regiment. Since the war he has devoted his time and talent to teaching and agriculture, and has been successful in both. Since 1882 he has held the position of county superintendent of public instructions to the satisfaction of the people and to the great benefit of the public schools. He died on Tuesday last at Mount Olive while on a visit to his daughter who resides there.

But few men have ever shown the courage to struggle against the disadvantages of early life as Capt. Bird did. In this struggle he set an example worthy of imitation.

The New Pullman Route to Morehead.

Morehead City and the Atlantic Hotel are at present having as fine facilities for travel to them as it is possible for Southern railways to afford. The new Pullman route for the summer season extends from Morristown, Tennessee, to the Atlantic ocean at Morehead, through sleepers the entire distance and no change between the two points. At Morristown a conection is made with Pullman cars for Memphis and New Orleans, and the West and Southwest with only one change at Morristown, also connections for all Northern cities. The same may be said of the connections at Greensboro and at Goldsboro. So it is possible now for the summer travellers to reach Morehead from almost any section of the country with only one change of cars. This is a magnificent service, the best that we have ever had, and as good as we shall ever be able to have until we get a double daily train, and the Atlantic Road deserves great credit for putting it into effect. The authorities of the road are fully abreast with the times, and are trying to give the best service possible with a single daily train.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Salt, Druggist, Hippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I ever handled in my 20 years' experience is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at R. R. Duffy's wholesale and retail drug store. Large size, golden pay dozen, wholesale.

Death of B. F. Mayhew, Esq.

The many friends of B. F. Mayhew, Esq., of Goldsboro, will regret to hear that he is no more. He died yesterday at 2 p. m. and his remains were brought to this city on last evening's train. But a few years ago Mr. Mayhew began the practice of law in Pamlico and Hyde counties with flattering prospects. His health began to fail and he removed to Goldsboro, but disease had fastened itself upon him and he continued a sufferer until death relieved him.

His bereaved widow, mother, sisters and friends have the sympathy of many friends in this city and community.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

From the State Papers.

Raleigh News and Observer: Rev. Bennett Smedes yesterday took $1,000 stock in the Raleigh Cotton Mills.——The State Board of Appraisers to assess the railroads have decided to levy the taxes upon the same basis as those of last year.

Kinston Free Press: Rev. J. B. Harrell has accepted the call as pastor of the Kinston and La Grange Baptist churches, until the first of January. He will begin his ministry here on the first Sunday in July, and will preach here every Sunday morning and night thereafter except the fourth Sunday in every month, when he will preach at La Grange.

Charlotte Chronicle: The religious awakening at Maxton continues with increasing interest. There were 21 confessions of Christ last night and about a hundred inquirers after the way of life. Laymen Fife and Prior, of Fayetteville, are doing active work. The meetings are under the conduct of Rev. Dr. Hill and Rev. Messrs. Hales and Moore.

Tarboro Banner: "Speaking of fine crops," remarked a gentleman the other day, "John A. Davis has one of the prettiest crops that I have ever seen. He has ninety acres of fine cotton that will average ten inches high. He also has eighty acres of as good corn as I have ever seen." "Oh yes," he continued, "with a late fall, I expect to see good crops all over Edgecombe, despite of the recent heavy rains."

Winston Sentinel: On the morning of the 11th inst., the lightning struck the barn of Mr. J. Wesley Shore, at Shore, Yadkin county. He was in the house at the time, with blinds closed. Smelling an unusual odor, he ran to the door and, seeing his barn on fire, called to the family for water and subdued the flames. It had struck the north gable of the barn, and, passing down through a lot of clover hay, killed a mare and disabled a colt, also killed a cow standing near the stall on the outside of the barn.

Statesville Landmark: The wheat harvest is about over in this section and much of the crop has been housed. It has been saved in good condition, and the expectation of an unusually large crop will be fully realized. About next week the threshing machines will begin to sing.——Cotton is thus far the least promising of all crops; much of the seed rotted in the ground and what plants came up have never recovered fully from the early back-set they got. Corn is behaving itself beautifully. Oats are turning out better than had been expected, and of course that will be the way with cotton, too, in the finally round-up.

Goldsboro Messenger: Pantry thieving is about the worst in the catalogue of Goldsboro crime nowadays.——The managers of the Eastern Carolina Fair and Stock Association are moving industriously and methodically, and we shall, weather permitting, have a fine exhibition and a good crowd at the Fair in October.——The clamor of the cliques nor the potency of the press will neither influence nor control the action of the Governor in regard to the Directory of the Atlantic road. As an Eastern man himself the Governor is familiar with the situation and will act on his own judgment, in the very best interest of the State and other stockholders, as he conceives it, and for the welfare of the public, as he understands it. The Governor is much gratified at the present fine physical condition of the Atlantic road.

Charlotte News: While Mr. C. Scott and his family were at prayer meeting last night burglars broke into his residence and ransacked the rooms. They turned everything upside down, but only took a few dollars in cash, leaving the clothing strewn about the rooms.——The tail end of what seemed like a small cyclone passed over the city yesterday while the News was in press and a greater fall of water in so small a space of time has not been seen in many a day. All around the city people's gardens look like cattle had stampeded in them, but fortunately no greater damage was done. In Long Creek township the wind did considerable damage. Trees were blown across the road that had withstood the storms of half a century. Two houses and one barn are reported as unroofed, though the houses were in a very dilapidated condition before the storm began. The crops in Steel Creek suffered most. Corn which had been shooting up rapidly for the past two weeks lies now on the ground. Half of the crop is reported lost on account of the stalks breaking, and cotton fared but little better. East of the city the storm was very severe and a good deal of the growing crops were much damaged. At Lowell it is reported that the Methodist church had been blown down.
