GOLDEN GLEAMS

By great efforts obtain great trifles.
—Shakespeare.

Come gentlemen, we sit too long on trifles,
And waste the time, which looks for other reveals. Shakespeare.

A trifle makes a dream, a trifle breaks.—Tennyson.

Since trifles make the sum of human things,
And half our mystery from our foibles springs. Hannah Moore.

For the want of a nail the shoe is lost, for want of a shoe the horse is lost, for want of a horse the rider is lost. —Herbert.

Think naught a trifle, though it small appear;
Small sands the mountain, moments make the year. —Young.

The highest problem of every art is, by means of appearances, to produce the illusion of a loftier reality.—Goethe.

Who of the gods first taught the artist's draft,
Laid on the human race their greatest curse. —Antophanes.

TRAINING CHINESE SOLDIERS

The conquest of Burma by the Japanese stopped all transportation along the Burma Rroad and made it impossible for the United States to send sufficient supplies into China.

Some cargoes have been flown into China by plane from India and it is now revealed that these cargo planes, coming out of China, have transported Chinese soldiers for training in a camp established by General Stillwell in India.

The Chinese are equipped and instructed in the use of American equipment. They return to China to train other Chinese.

WAR PRISONERS AT WORK

More than 110,000 out of the 141,000 captured Axis soldiers now in the United States have been used to relieve the manpower shortage.

It is interesting to learn that the prisoners receive eighty cents a day Any wages above this sum goes to the government. While the prisoners work at the prevailing labor rates in the communities they serve, their compensation is limited to eighty cents.

Enemy officers cannot be forced to work and non-commissioned officers must be assigned to "supervisory" tasks, except where this type of work is not available and he requests ordinary work.

SOVEREIGNTY OF THE AIR

The legal theory of land ownership includes ownership of the air space above the real estate, but the advent of the airplane creates a new condition which will inevitably affect the legal theory.

The development of any world-wide air transportation operation is dependent, to a large degree, upon an abandonment of a rigid "sovereignty-of-the-air-space" policy which has been proclaimed by the nations of the world.

This does not mean that the United States should give up its claim to control of the air over this coutnry. All that is necessary is that the nations of the earth make reciprocal concessions in regard of airplanes flying over their territory. It would be permissible, of course, for nations to regulate and channelize such traffic.

FORGET STATISTICS

News from Italy tells us that American soldiers have taken "limited objectives."

Behind the phrase, and maybe out of the vision of some people, there are dead and wounded Americans, giving themelves for their country in a foreign land.

Forget the statistics about bond quotas and amounts purchased. Just remember that the casualty lists will gradually include more men from Union County.

Every soldier has the right to expect the support of his nation. He should know, always, that his people are backing him. It is his to risk life and, perhaps, to die but there should be no American, soldier or sailor, wounded or slain because his country did not give him the tools of warfare or the utmost means of protection in battle.

It takes money to operate a war—your money. What we do may save the lives of American soldiers, perhaps a man we know. The quicker we do it the more lives we can save. All we can do, here at home, is to back our boys by buying bonds and more bonds.

Forget the statistics; think of the men in battle. They are our own Union county boys; buy bonds for them.

GERMANS MUST RETURN LOOT

Some years ago the Chinese adopted the "scorched earth" policy and the Russians followed the same tactics as they retreated before the advancing hordes of Nazi Germany.

In these instances, the nations were destroying their own property as a defense against enemy invasion. The sacrifice was heroic and, while costly, has undoubtedly contributed to the defeat of the Nazi powers.

German strategists, as troops retreat from foreign lands, have wantonly destroyed everything possible, leaving nothing but ruins behind. The Nazis probably seek some military advantages, but their policy is likewise designed to inflict punishment upon the victors in the hopes that they will not recover for many years.

The German tactics are expected to be different when the armies of the United Nations reach German soil. The Nazis are apt to throw in the sponge and beg for mercy in order to save their land from the destruction that other nations have experienced.

In this event, it will be more important than ever to compel the Germans to rebuild the areas they have destroyed. Nothing should be left in Germany which can be moved to replace the plunder taken from invaded lands.

BEHEADING OF FLYER INCENSES PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Calls Japs Uncivilized For Barbaric Act In South Pacific.

The beheading of an Allied aviator by the Japanese in the southwest Pacific, President Roosevelt said recently, shows a lack of civilization.

Mr. Roosevelt remarked to a press-radio conference that he supposed that was the worst thing he could say to the Japanese, because if there is one thing that gets under their skins t s to tell them they are uncvlzed. He sad he dd not care very much if he offended their feelings.

The Commander-in-Chief said this was not the first instance of barbaric conditions imposed by the Japanese. He said there had been a number of other cases of cruel treatment, but he did not enumerate them.

Mr. Roosevelt said he thought the country had drawn its own conclusions from the slaying of the airman.

Responsible Japanese officials will have to answer at the end of the war for the summary beheading of the American air transport command aviator.

This was made clear by the State department following publication by General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in the southwest Pacific of a captured Japanese diary which described the execution of the American aviator last March 29.

With only press reports of the diary to go on, the department was not prepared to say immediately what action would be taken, but cited the communication which this government sent to Tokyo last April 12 regarding the reported Japanese execution of some of the American flyers who bombed Tokyo in April, 1942.

If they are still alive at the end of the war, among those responsible will be Sub-Lieutenant First Class Komai and Lieutenant Commander Tsukioka of the Imperial Japanese navy, named as principals in the beheading incident.

The execution was the first such violation of international law reported since last April when it was announced that the Japanese had executed several American flyers captured in the bombing of Japan a year before.

The diary, dated March 29, said the airman was 23 years of age, an instructor in the transport command at Port Moresby, New Guinea, and was a member of a bomber crew shot down near Salamaua by antiaircraft fire on March 18.

Verbatim translations from the diary as released by MacArthur headquarters included the following:

"Tai Comander (sub-lieutenant first class) Komai told us it had been decided to execute him and he was to be accorded a Samurai's death.

"The prisoner of war totters forward with his arms tied. His hair it cut close. I feel he suspects what is afoot, but he is more composed than I thought he would be.

"At the execution ground, Lieutenant Komai faces the prisoner and says: 'You are to die. I am going to kill you with this Japanese sword according to the Samurai code.'

"The prisoner is made to sit on the edge of a water-filled bomb crater. When I put myself in his place, the hate engendered by this daily bombing yields to ordinary human feelings."

"The Tai commander draws his favorite sword, the famous 'Osamune'. First he touches the prisoner's neck nightly with the sword. Then he raises it overhead. His arm muscles bulge. The prisoner closes his eyes for a second and at once the sword sweeps down.

"Swish. It sounds at first like noise of cutting, but it is actually made by blood spurting from arteries. The body falls forward. Everybody steps forward as the head rolls on the ground.

"Dark blood gushed from the trunk. All is over. There lies the head like a white doll.

"I realize that the emotions I felt just now was not personal pity but manaifestation of magnanimity that becomes a chivalrous Samurai."

Then, the diary continued, a medical man took the sword, rolled the American airman's body over on his back and slit the abdomen open with one sweep, commenting, "These thick-headed white bastards are thick bellied, too."

The body was then buried.

ARMY WILL ASSIST IN MEMORIAL SERVICES

Chaplins, Buglers And Firing Squads Available For Rites.

(Public Relations Office, Camp Sutton)

It is believed that military memorial services for soldiers killed in action should be held wherever possible for bereaved relatives and friends, and as a consequence Chaplain John O. Lindquist, Chief of Chaplain Branch, Headquarters Fourth Service Command announced today that chaplains, buglers and firing squads are available for this tribute.

The custom of firing three volleys at military funerals is believed to have originated among the Romans, who, after casting earth three times by name, after which friends and relatives of the deceased pronounced the word "vale" (farewell) three times as they departed. So, today, when the squad of soldiers fire three volleys over a grave, they are, in accordance with this old Roman custom, bidding their dead comrade "Farewell" three times.

The number three is considered to have symbolical and mystical significance, as for instance, the Holy Trinity and the Three Graces, as well as frequent recurrence in numberous anacient religious ceremonies. In daily life it is interesting to note the extent the number three enters into activities, such as athletics, ship saluting by blowing whistles three times when passing another ship at sea, and various other rituals.

The practice of sounding taps at military funerals involves a deeply felt sentiment—"Rest In Peace." In the daily life of the soldier the sounding of taps at 11 p. m., signifying "Lights Out," announces the end of the day, implying that the cares and labors of the soldier are ended for that day. So does the sounding of taps at his funeral signify the end of his day—the "Lights Out" of his life—his "Rest In Peace."

There is no other call so beautiful, so significant, so replete with associations of comrades dead and gone—there is no other call that arouses so much sentiment, so many emotions in the soul of the soldier as the sounding of "Taps."

Chaplain Lindquist further explained that although military services could be held for individual soldiers in most instances, still in the event the location be too far away from any camp, post or station, to make such services feasible, monthly memorial services could be so arranged and planned for a congregation of people suffering similar losses.

In larger towns and cities it is felt each denomination could have a memorial service of this sort, while in smaller towns it would be more desirable to have a general service for all denominations.

In the event such ceremonies are requested, a letter should be written to Chaplain Lloyd W. Teague, Post Headquarters, Camp Sutton, N. C.

CONCORD SPIDERS DOWN MONROE HIGH PYTHONS

(By James Adcock)

Friday night at Webb Field in Concord, the Concord Spiders defeated the strong Monroe Pythons by a score of 6-0. During the first quarter nothing of importance happened, although the Pythons penetrated deep into the Spiders' lines many times, only to lose the ball on downs. In the second quarter the Spiders on their own 20-yard line, tried to get off a punt only to be blocked by Hubbard and recovered by Trull. After repeated tries the Pythons lost the ball to the Spiders.

Later in the second quarter the Spiders lucked a pass from the Pythons' 16 yard line for the winning touchdown. Although the Pythons outplayed the Spiders in the remainder of the game they failed to score. The Pythons received seven first downs to the Spiders' eight. All the boys on the Python team played their best game of the season.

The Pythons will meet Rock Hill's eleven at Rock Hill, S. C. October 15th. The Pythons are out to get this game and we're expecting them to bring home a victory.
