Suggestion Made

TO THE EDITOR:

First, I want to commend you for carrying the County Commissioners' meeting in detail in your paper.

Reading your account, I see that a group appeared asking about the new water system. I think it would be a great service to the county if you could publish a map outlining exactly where they are planning to put the lines. A lot of people want to know I'm sure. I'm sure someone in the county knows where they plan to put the lines.

On FCC Practices

TO THE EDITOR:

Telephone users in northeastern North Carolina have reason to be pleased by the call of the U.S. Senate communications subcommittee for March hearings on the controversial practices of the Federal Communications Commission. We believe these practices will mean higher rates for our customers, and we welcome this step by the Upper House to review the actions of appointed officials at the FCC.

Consumers in this community should be aware of these hearings and the issue involved so they can make their opinions known to their elected representatives. And the FCC should take no further action to extend its controversial decisions while Congress reviews the policy issue involved.

Under study in Congress are FCC rulings which the telephone companies state will cause basic rate increases of up to 60 per cent (excluding inflation) by 1985 for residential, rural and small business customers. The rulings allow consumers to own their own phone equipment, the non-telephone copanies to provide long distance communications services for big business firms.

House hearings were held on the issue last fall and now the Senate is exploring the subject with testimony by a number of witnesses, including the president of the U.S. Independent Telephone Association. The Norfolk Carolina Telephone Company is a member of USITA and we strongly support the industry's position.

Nearly 200 Representatives and Senators last year and already more than 50 this year are sponsors of the Consumer Communications Reform Act, a bill we support to encourage just this type of Congressional review of national communications policy.

With Senate hearings in progress, now is an excellent time for all of us to write our Congressmen and let them know how we feel about this subject. Congress must make a full examination of the issue and determine the true public interest.

Looking Backward

APRIL 1939

By VIRGINIA WHITE TRANSEAU

DARDEN AND KNOWLES SEEK MAYORALTY: SIX WILL ENGAGE IN FIGHT OVER SEATS ON CITY COUNCIL: Filed as candidates for Mayor of Hertford subject to the primary on April 24, are Vivian N. Darden, imcumbent mayor, and R.L. Knowles who seeks the position resigned by Mayor S.M. Whedbee in November which Mayor Darden now fills. When the office of town clerk closed Wednesday afternoon on the last day open for filing of candidacy, six men had announced notices of running for the four places on the city council. The incumbents, W.H. Hardcastle, A.W. Hefren, and Z.A. Harris, are back in the running with new threats for their posts in the persons of M.J. Gregory, Tim Brinn and L.N. Hollowell.

McCALLUM GARDEN OPEN TO VISITORS: The Clyde McCallums are inviting all persons to visit their river garden. Tulips and iris are in bloom now and will be good until the 15th of April at least. Mr. McCallum is disappointed in the garden this year; "Too much rain," he says.

SNAKES ARE OUT AGAIN: The snake-hunting season is here again and those boys you see toting rifles on these bright sunshiny days aren't mobsters or racketeers or heading for a lynching. They're out to bag some nice moccasins and rattlers. This sort of weather, warm and still, bring the crawlers out into the open. They make good shooting and "good" catches are reported.

CITY FATHERS APPOINT FRANK JESSUP GUARD AT LOCAL BEACH: The Hertford City Council at their Monday night meeting appointed as lifeguard at the local bathing beach, Frank Jessup of Oak Ridge Military Academy student body. Mr. Jessup will assume his duties at the beach under the supervision of the town council around the first of June.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT: Rev. and Mrs. J.F. Stegall announce the birth of a son, Joel Ringgold, on April 7th, 1939.

Tax tips for the tax wise

It's tax-time, so here're a few last minute tips to make you tax-wise. For starters, if you are submitting above-average medical deductions try sending copies of documents (doctor bills, cancelled checks, etc.) with your tax returns to help verify your expenses. There's no guarantee, but this may keep you from being audited.

Also, know what to deduct. Read the rules. Too many disallowables will increase your chances of getting audited. Remember to deduct only the amount in excess of 3% of your adjusted gross income.

Finally, while there's time, ask us for your complete prescription expense records.
