STATE COLLEGE Hints To Homemakers

SPRING AND SUMMER FASHIONS WILL EMPHASIZE THE NATURAL LOOK — The sleeveless look is the look for evening as well as for daytime wear. Any one of the headline stories of the year is the overblouse, which appears everywhere from beach to ballroom. It forms an integral part of the three-piece ensemble which is so important this year. After 40, unless arms are pretty and slim, think twice before you make or buy a sleeveless dress. This is advice from clothing specialists.

SUITS AND JACKETS — easy, open fluid line — feature standup, scooped neckline. (Collars and high necks have virtually disappeared). Ragland or dolman sleeves — deepset to allow greater freedom of motion — appear in elbow — and just-above lengths. Cape and bell-backed coats have almost completely replaced tight-fitted jackets.

COTTONS — are much in vogue. Beautiful eylets, batistes and piques, cotton knits, moire cottons, chambrays and denims are popular.

Get your sewing equipment in good condition — spring will be here soon!

WHAT ARE SIZZLE COLORS? Poison pinks, acid greens, chrome yellows, and burning orange predominate on cotton, satin, broadcloth, and pique . . . . joining black and white. These colors will be on parade. It will be smart to wear the lovely new cottons.

A distinguished feature of St. Andrews Presbyterian College will be its curriculm, the center of which will be a course on Christianity and Culture, and from which will stem all other courses. This "core" course will extend through four years. It will be taught by a panel of five highly qualified professors in two daily sessions, one with the class as a whole and the other with the class divided into five groups. The purpose is to develop in each student an understanding of himself as a Christian in relation to present society and past cultures.

St. Andrews Presbyterian College is located on a tract of 838 acres at the southern border of Laurinburg. The campus, including a 65-acre lake, will occupy some 135 acres. When all construction is completed there will be atotal of 18 buildings. Student living and recreational facilities will lie to the south of the lake; the academc and administrative facilities to the north. The two areas are connected by a pedestrian causeway, at the center of which will be the college chapel.

ACCIDENT CAUSE

From London comes news that an irate motorist grabbed a hammer and practically demolished his automobile when it stalled in traffic. He was hailed into court and fined 14 dollars (or was it pounds?) for littering the highway. It may sound like a funny story but when you think of it North Carolina highways are often littered with wrecked cars because drivers lose their tempers. The State Highway Patrol says when you lose your temper you lose your good manners and you become a dangerous driver. Tempers and traffic make a deadly combination. You must control your emotions and use courtesy to be a safe driver. Think it over. There is an old saying.. "Here today and gone tomorrow." That could be turned around a bit to say, "Mad today and gone tomorrow." So keep cool, calm and collected and use courtesy when you drive.

HIGHWAY LITTER

One of the great airline companies with planes flying around the world uses a slogan in their advertisements that says CAUTION — COURTESY — SERVICE. Traveling by air is a far cry from everyday driving an automobile but you can bet this same slogan can make driving safe. Caution — the use of caution is a necessity for safety when motoring. Courtesy — The North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles says the courteous driver seldom has a traffic accident. Yielding the right-of-way, signaling every turn and stop and showing consideration for other drivers are acts of courtesy that prevent traffic accidents. You may ask where does service fit into the picture. The use of courtesy and caution in your driving habits is about the greatest service you can render your fellow motorist. You are protecting his life. You can save someone's life today. You can protect your own life by the use of caution and courtesy in your driving.

In fiscal 1960, the United States exported farm products valued at a record $4.5 million.

Bible Comment:

Brotherhood Is Discussed In the Scriptures

At a time when there is much stress upon brotherhood, and a too conspicuous lack of it both at home and abroad, it is worth while to consider the Bible, and especially the Jewish scriptures of the Old Testament.

In this, as in many other matters, the Bible has a pioneer aspect as a textbook of what ought to be, and a warning of what happens when what ought to be is not.

The New Testament, of course, is the crowning treatise of love and brotherhood, in the example and teaching of Jesus. And such examples as offered by the apostolic brothers, James and John, and Peter and Andrew, are of particular interest.

But the Old Testament, from the stories of Abel and Cain, of Jacob and Esau, and the nobler examples of Moses and Aaron, and of David and Jonathan, tells of brothers, in tragedy and triumph. And there are the brothers of Joseph, famous and infamous, one at least of whom tried to save him, though the others sold him into slavery.

This is a part of the record of blood brothers, but brotherhood in the Old Testament had a significant meaning in the conception of a closely knit Jewish social life, in which individuals had a mutual responsibility for the welfare of all.

Scout News

TROOP 2

At our meeting February 20, we had forty-two boys present. Our Scoutmaster talked to us about the God and Country Award. He told us the requirements so we would know what to be thinking about. We also shot bow and arrows, and played ping-pong. After this we got our merit badge blanks and merit badge pamphlets, and then we were dismissed to go home.

CAUTION SLOGAN

It would be easy to find out what causes all the traffic accidents that happen each year in North Carolina. Just ask anybody. Everybody has an answer to the problem. The answers you will hear will include, teenage drivers cause all the accidents, slowpoke drivers, old rattle trap cars, drunken drivers, speeders and careless drivers. There is one fellow though that never causes the driver you ask. Few people a traffic accident. That will be will admit they are not good drivers. The North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles says don't waste too much time looking for the cause of traffic accidents. Check the fellow's driving that is behind the steering wheel of your car. That fellow is YOU. Check your own traffic habits carefully. You will find that in a very short time you make many mistakes that could cause a deadly traffic mishap. One accident is all it takes for you to be Nortn Carolina's next traffic victim. Be careful. Slow down and live.
