Temple Israel Book Club

The Outside World by Tova Mirvis

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 7:45 PM, TEMPLE ISRAEL

The tension between tradition and modernity, the theme running through Tova Mirvis's new novel The Outside World, is a conflict often experienced in many religions in today's world. When the parents are part of modernity while the children are entrenched in tradition, this presents a slightly different situation.

In this well-received novel, readers will follow Tzippy, raised in the orthodox tradition, and her sweetheart Bryan - who has adopted orthodoxy and is now known as Baruch - and see how they seek to balance desire and tradition, devotion and individuality.

As Tova Mirvis explains, "I wanted to look at what it means to be religious in the modern world. Is it possible to be part of the outside world and be religious? What happens to tolerance and respect in a family, in a society when people hold strong, absolutist views?"

The Outside World is available at the Levine-Sklut Judaic Library & Resource Center, the public library and for $13 from local bookstores.

Everyone is invited to attend - even those who haven't read the book. For additional information call Linda Levy 704-366-6362 or Sandra Hirschman 704-867-7051. ☆

You Can't Hide The Fact That You've

Got A Sinus Infection.

The nasal congestion, persistent pressure between your eyes and in your cheeks, and frequent thick post-nasal drip makes it obvious you have a chronic sinus infection. Fortunately, our physicians, William McClelland, M.D., Daron Smith, M.D., Richard Gillespie, Jr., M.D., and Joshua Levine, M.D., specialize in the treatment of sinus disease, including fiber optic, outpatient and endoscopic surgery of the sinuses. They also offer in-office procedures to permanently improve breathing passages. In addition, our doctors provide comprehensive treatment for adults and children who experience disorders of the ear, nose and throat, and each maintains staff privileges at Presbyterian Healthcare Hospitals and Carolinas Healthcare System.

Call the location closest to you for an appointment. We can recognize the source of your problems.
