

Two Cub Scouts with Awards for Jewish Studies

Mazel tov to two hard-working Cub Scouts from LJCC Pack 163 that recently achieved big honors by earning awards for Jewish Studies. Gabriel Novack was presented the Maccabee Emblem by Rabbi Faith Cantor. The Maccabee Emblem is a Jewish award given by the Boy Scouts of America for Cub Scouts in the third grade or younger. Gabriel worked with Rabbi Cantor for several months in order to fulfill the required studies in Jewish holidays, Jewish objects, and Jewish heroes. He even had the opportunity to interview Rabbi Murray Ezring, Rabbi Cantor, and Cantor Elias Roochvarg. Also as part of the curriculum, Rabbi Cantor helped Gabriel make his own tallit and tie his own tzitzit. Gabriel loved the process and says he learned a lot about Judaism. Now he is looking forward to completing the requirements for the Aleph Emblem and eventually becoming an Eagle Scout. Gabriel is a rising third grader at Providence Day School.

very easily to him because of his years of attending CJDS. Yossi's favorite part of earning the award was doing the drawings of many different religious objects and places. He feels this is an important step in the journey towards becoming an Eagle Scout.
