David and Daniel, and later my daughter, Leslie, through the Chicago Jewish Federation's Jewish Children's Bureau. In fact my identical twin sons were born the same year as our speakers, Paula and Elyse. When I read Identical Strangers, I felt the chilling realization that their story could have been ours. If the philosophy of separating twins had prevailed in Chicago, we would never have known the immeasurable joy of raising our twin sons. More importantly - the boys would have lost their 'other half' - the bond between them was that strong."

The evening concluded with a dessert reception featuring a spectacular display of cupcakes by Polka Dot Bakery, and a book signing with the authors who warmly chatted with many twins, mothers of twins and women who were captivated by their story.

As guests exited the Temple, they picked up a goody bag filled with promotional items provided by each of our sponsors.
