Women's Professional Network

"Meeting Challenges with Creativity and Innovation" was the topic of the June meeting of the Women's Professional Network. The group gathered at the McColl Center for Visual Art where they met with Shaun Cassidy, artist-in-residence at the McColl Center's Innovation Institute. The women were split into groups and given the task of creating a tower from a variety of unlikely materials.

We'll catch a glimpse of the fashion trends for fall during our next meeting on Thursday, August 30 at Belk SouthPark. For more information or to RSVP, please contact susan.stafford@jewishcharlotte.org.

WPN leaders Kelly Gaines, Fern Ingber Epley, and Jill Balick take a last look at their creation before presenting it to the group.

The Women's Professional Network offers women the opportunity to engage socially and connect with a cause. It meets five times each year and is open to all professional women whether or not they are actively engaged in careers outside the home.

The Jewish Community Relations Council of the Jewish Federation of Greater Charlotte welcomed Alan Elsnier of The Israel Project to teach the community how better to advocate for Israel, using social media and online tools.

Here he is seen with Allie Michel and Jeni Willenzik.
