Hebrew High-Lights: CHS Students Focus on Philanthropy and Advocacy

For the first time this year, a select group of 10th graders, will join Post Confirmation for the B'tzavta program. Created by our own Tair Giudice, the program teaches American teens about cultural differences, tzedakah, and community. Through Skype, Facebook, and volunteering, they make new friends on both sides of the ocean. To make this class even more exciting, all participants will have the chance to travel to Israel this summer and meet their Israeli counterparts. Then the Israelis are coming to Charlotte to see how their American friends live. This teen exchange is sponsored by the Jewish Federation of Greater Charlotte.

One of the goals of Hebrew High's Post Confirmation class is to create a group of young Jewish leaders who are passionate about Israel and capable of advocating for the Jewish state. To cultivate this skill, the outstanding teachers of Post Confirmation, Andrew Bernstein and Tair Giudice, employ the David Project curriculum. This curriculum was designed to inspire strong voices for Israel on campuses throughout the US. The David Project is committed to building Jewish leadership; increasing the support for Israel on campus; strengthening the pro-Israel and pro-Jewish forces; and working in partnership with Jewish school programs to incorporate Israel advocacy and leadership skills into their curricula.

Our oldest students are preparing for a bright Jewish future. With the preparation they receive at Hebrew High, they will be strong advocates for Israel and great philanthropists at home.
