Use it or lose it...what's the voting thing anyway?

Do you remember the first time that you voted? I certainly do. I can recall a winter afternoon, all bundled up in my coat and mittens, along with a hat - and, even more so, the sensation of my mother's hand as it cradled mine as we entered the voting precinct at the university school located in my hometown.

I was a little small at the ripe old age of four. I could barely see over the tables lined up there with poll workers assisting voters with registration. One of the workers gave my mother a ballot. This was in the early 1950s and the election's ballot was graced with General Dwight David Eisenhower. He was such a legend, with his gallant military service. He brought a sense of balance to the aftermath of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Anyway, I digress. Back to focus! I was very curious about the process that was taking place there. I can still see my mother dressed up as her usual polished self, studying the sheet of paper that had the candidates names on it. I was my parents "active" child. I was always into something. And I asked enough questions to satisfy even the most inquisitive person. So when I asked my mother about what she was doing, it did not surprise her in the least. She explained that, as an American, she was exercising her right to cast her vote for her favorite candidate. You might well suspect what came next. I left my mother's side and went to one of the registration tables. I looked one of the ladies square in the eyes and asked, "I want to vote like my Momma!"

In those days and in a small town, people knew each other. To quench my thirst for participation, one of the workers gave me a "ballot" and I voted! Then they had me place my ballot into a "special" box, reserved for young voters. I really beamed with delight. My mother, of course, thought that this was "so cute." Then we left.

Many years later, when I was an adult, I was afforded the responsibility of voting "for real" for the first time. In the entire time that I have had voting privileges, I have only missed, at most, a dozen elections. I even worked for a US House of Representatives candidate in the

Then, in the early 80s, I became affiliated with the Libertarian party and ran for State House. Of course, I lost, but not without capturing around 2000 votes from a field of 12 candidates. Not bad for someone who was an unknown and did not actively campaign. I simply ran to show support for a third party. And, many of the principles of the party were ones

Now, it is 2000! And, what a year. The dawning of the new millennium has brought with it an unique set of election results. Without actually endorsing one candidate over another (to avoid telling you whom I voted for - because you're not supposed to ask, right?), I must say that I completely agree with Vice President Al Gore. We live in the United States of America. We do not live in one of those countries that allow you to vote and not really pay attention to the outcome. We have rights. And, we do need to know that if we take our valuable time to engage in the voting practice, then, by gosh, let them count. Don't set aside votes - unless there is clearly a reason to do so - and deny someone the rare privilege of being involved in the election process. In my opinion, the Florida state legislature was remiss in not immediately calling itself into emergency session to handle the issues surrounding the election. And, it would not have taken too much to mobilize the state to allow all voters who were on the voting rolls for this election, the opportunity to recast their votes in a more technologically sound method. There are enough states around to loan them voting machines for all of the counties in Florida.

I was born in and grew up in Tennessee. Al Gore, Sr., was a tremendous public servant. His legacy can easily be seen in his son. Gore Junior is a champion of rights for all people. I sure would hate to see him be a "bridesmaid" instead of a "bride" because he has diligently worked and served his whole life to earn the vote of confidence and respect of all Americans. Whether he eventually wins or loses this campaign, I must say that I admire his determination and grit. His father would never have rolled over and played dead either.

letter

Dear Editor:

On December 5, 2000, I will complete eight years of public service as a [Mecklenburg] County Commissioner. I want to express my deepest appreciation for all of the support I have received from Q-Notes over the years as you have written about my actions and my support for the gay & lesbian community.

I am proud of the service and support I extended to the gay and lesbian community. I was proud of my actions, no matter how futile they re, in defense of the arts and the right of each individual to see whatever movie, show or dance performance [they choose].

I can remember ... that when my son and I met with the gay & lesbian community at the MCC Church, I was informed I was the first elected official to have done so. My only regret is that it took me seven years to meet with the

I am proud that I might have played a small part in the Gay & Lesbian Political Action Committee [MeckPAC] being formed. Each of you has played an important part in the makeup of the city council and county commission the past two elections. It is my hope that the community remains active and continues to play major roles in local politics.

My plan is to continue to be active in the community through committees and boards. I have met with the director of Time Out Youth about starting a home for runaways or those teenagers who are thrown out of their homes because of their sexual preference [sic.].

I would like to express my thanks to all of you for your help and support over these eight years. I do know my political life is not over yet. I will come and ask for your support sometime in the future.

Sincerely yours, Lloyd Scher Mecklenburg County Commissioner
