OUR HONOR ROLL

Our boys are being rapidly discharged from the military service of our country, and are returning to take their places in the equally important fields of the trades, industries, and professions. So we present herewith a new Honor Roll, which we hope our readers will help us to make and keep correct and complete. It is the roll of former soldiers who are now employed in Badin, both by the Tallassee Power Company and by other businesses. We keep the first place, however, for our honored dead.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Self-Preservation

It is astounding how easily we allow ourselves to drift into the matter-of-fact way in the daily protection of our life and limb. We are too prone to take for granted that we are living in a safe place, and rely too much on our neighbor to do his part to keep us out of danger and prevent an accident to us. In fact, some of us have reached a stage, after relying for so many years on the help of others for our own salvation, that a certain degree of contempt has been born in us for the little daily dangers that ever surround us. If you attend court during a trial of a railroad accident, you will invariably hear one side or the other plead that he relied on so and so, the other person, to look out; and feeling that he would protect him self along and did so and so. Not long ago, we read in the newspaper of the accident which caused the death of the McLean boy, in Washington. Young McLean, as you no doubt know, was one of the wealthiest persons in America; had been brought up to depend on someone at all times being on the alert for his own safety. When he was picked up, after the accident, his first question (as reported by the newspapers) was "What has happened? Why was it done?" The poor little fellow had all his life had someone stop or caution him before placing himself in danger, and this day, when beyond the immediate protection of his guardian, he ran headlong across the street, looking neither to right nor left, feeling no doubt, as he had been previously, that he was being protected by someone.

The purpose of this little illustration is to call to your attention the necessity of at all times realizing that you more than anyone else are required to look out for your own safety. Ever be on the alert for pending dangers. When you use an emery wheel, be careful of
