We are sorry that all of this fine display of domestic canned products did not get into view—a considerable part of it had to be cut off in the foreground straightening of the picture. But there is enough in sight to show that Mrs. L. P. Garland, who lives on Willow Street, is an industrious and provident housekeeper.

In this splendid array of tin and glass containers there are beans, corn, apples, peaches, pears, and grapes—a goodly variety. There are fifty quarts in glass, thirty half-gallons in glass, twenty-five No. 2's in tin, sixty No. 3's in tin, and 145 glasses of jelly. So far as we know, this is the record canning achievement of the season. Standing in the background are Mr. L. P. Garland, Mrs. Garland, and her daughter, Miss Christina York.
