

Wagner, at the home of Mrs. Pannill, on Tallassee Avenue. Five tables were in play, and a remembrance shower was the feature of the evening. Mrs. Wagner was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts, which will serve to remind her in time to come of her many good friends she leaves behind in Badin. Among those present were Mesdames Pannill, Book, Davis, Dunham, Smith, Allen, Giersch, Clarke, Grandy, Thorpe, Coffman, Wake, Wharton, Dotson, Fuller, W. J. Pannill, Austin, and Garretson.

Delightful Reception for Badin Brides

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. S. Thorpe was thrown open Wednesday afternoon and evening to callers paying their respect to Badin's recent brides—Mrs. McNeely DuBose, Mrs. R. F. Giersch, Mrs. Homer Rhea, and Mrs. Aiken Moore—Mrs. Thorpe, Mrs. H. R. Wake, and Mrs. R. E. Parks being joint hostesses at a Thé Dansant. The tea, which was from four to six in the afternoon, and seven-thirty to ten in the evening, was largely attended, evening callers arriving early, and ending a formal reception for dancing. Music from Salisbury added to the charm of the occasion, the orchestra demonstrating its ability to play good dance music as well as more formal airs.

At the door, Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. Rainey greeted the guests. In the drawing-room, Mrs. J. E. S. Thorpe, in a lovely gown of orange-colored taffeta, headed the receiving line. Mrs. DuBose wore blue messaline, with a large picture hat; Mrs. Giersch offered charming contrast in rose taffeta with velvet bodice and corsage of roses; Mrs. Rhea was gowned in pink taffeta trimmed with old lace; and Mrs. Aiken G. Moore wore blue satin, with black net overdress and jet trimmings. Mrs. Wake, in green taffeta with silver trimmings, and Mrs. Parks, gowned in pink taffeta set off with maline, completed the receiving line.

In the dining-room, Mrs. P. E. Book and Mrs. C. W. Coffman poured coffee, Mrs. John Pannill and Mrs. L. S. Grandy assisting in the service of refreshments.

Miss Theresa King, herself soon to join the bevy of youthful married people of Badin, presided over the punch table in company with Miss Irene Stacy. Stacy was dressed in green taffeta; with a black picture hat, she and Miss King offering attractive foil each to the other. Miss King's gown, of peach colored cloth harmonized with the decorative scheme of the occasion, the colors of Halloween. She wore a hat which will be particularly her trousseau—plain gold lace, with crown of imported aigret breasts, which occasioned much comment by its unusual beauty.—Charlotte Observer.

Let's Have Community Singing

Now that we have a fine strong group of singers organized into a Choral Society that is capable of leading any audience we can assemble, why can't we as a community come together every other Sunday afternoon during the winter months to sing the grand old hymns and songs that belong to us as a people? It would prove a delightful way of spending a part of the long dreary Sunday afternoons of fall and winter.

The programs can be made varied and interesting with special pieces by
