

FROM ONE OF THE ORE TOWERS

than the past. We have new candidates every meeting night to introduce, also new applications. We are looking forward to having a big day the last Saturday in August, as the Woodmen of the World log rolling association will meet with us, and every Woodman of the World camp in this district will be represented here. We want to make this one of the big days.

Members, you know how to make this a big day, get right down to work. I want all camps to be well represented. Remember we meet every Wednesday night. Be sure and attend. Visiting members welcome.

Garden Chatter

Plant a lot of cucumbers. Pickles are going to taste good around about Thanksgiving. Pick them when they are little, and wash them and put them in jars, pouring over them a cold mixture of vinegar, wesson oil, and sugar and mustard seed. To one gallon of vinegar use one large can of wesson oil and a pint of mustard seeds. Put the seeds on a layer of pickles, pour on some oil, more pickles and seeds until the jar is full of pickles, and fill up with vinegar. Seal in tight jars with rubber rings. (Molasses will do instead of sugar.) Put the sugar in the vinegar two pounds to a gallon.

It is interesting to see the newly set plants, as well as the older ones growing after the slight rains of some days ago. But, oh that Jupiter Pluvius would come again! It is dreadfully dry and the gardens are suffering.

Mrs. W. A. Burdette, on Walnut Street, is utilizing all the tendable soil around her home, by growing flowers and vegetables. Her garden is already producing beans, peas, and beets, while her tomatoes are among the best in the town. Mrs. Motes, also on Walnut Street, has a nice large garden which deserves mention.

Spruce Street also affords a number of good gardens, especially those of Mrs. Good and Mrs. Chrisco. These gardens have especially pretty beans, peas, and potatoes. But whose gardens can surpass those on Nantahala? Mrs. Book's garden peas, carrots, onions, lettuce, and especially her cabbage are especially good. Mrs. Valentine's onions and potatoes, Mrs. Butner's and Mrs. Funk's potatoes, and many other gardens show that the people are getting good returns for their efforts.

Mr. J. S. Johnson, at the Farm House, is getting fine onions, lettuce, peas, radishes, and cabbages, with tomatoes, snaps, potatoes, beets, and cucumbers coming on.

Mr. Carl Williams also has a fine showing of corn, cabbage, potatoes, onions, and beets.

One of the finest gardens in our town is that of Mr. and Mrs. Reed, at 32

Kirk Place. They have a splendid variety, including spinach. (By the way, our apologies to Mr. Arthur! We omitted spinach in referring to his garden in the last issue.)

Speaking of variety, you should see Mr. T. V. Kendall's outlay, at 145 Pine Street. This is undoubtedly one of the most bountiful gardens, and one of the best looking, that we have. The following is his list: Okra, Irish potatoes, corn, parsley, California Honey Dew melons, tomatoes, pimento and cayenne pepper, lima beans, carrot, beet, celery, onions, cornfield beans, squash, lettuce, English peas, bunch beans, radish, cucumber.

The Kind He Liked

"Do you want a job diggin' potatoes?" asked the farmer.

"Yes, provided it's diggin' 'em out of gravy."

Interesting meetings of the Ladies' Aid Society have been held lately at the homes of Mrs. Leo Gabriel and Mrs. L. J. Collins. The society meets next time with Mrs. D. L. Parish, on Maple Street.

Mr. Beers killed an owl one night not long ago; we don't know if that affected Mr. H. C. L. or not.

Mr. James H. Devereaux has returned from Jacksonville, Fla.
