

Cloudbusters Favored to Topple Manhattan in New York Today

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov 14—The once-defeated Cloudbusters from the Navy Pre-Flight School, Chapel Hill, N. C., invade Gotham today to give fans a taste of the type of football being taught future flyers who soon will be going into battle against the Axis airmen.

Manhattan College is the host team and the game will be played before 12,000 or more fans at the Polo grounds.

Manhattan will be the underdog in the game as far as the betting is concerned. However, the visitors well remember the power the home team displayed in knocking off Duquesne in a big upset here three weeks ago and will be ready for anything. Last week the Navy took the measure of Georgetown at Washington, D. C., 23 to 7, without undue trouble. Previous to that game, Lieut. Comdr. Jim Crowley's Cadets downed Syracuse, Temple, North Carolina State, Catawba, Harvard, tied the Georgia Pre-Flight School and lost a 7 to 6 decision to unbeaten and untied Boston College.

Len Eshmont, Navy left half, was the biggest individual contributor to the Cloudbuster victory against Georgetown last Saturday with a pair of touchdowns and a half-dozen brilliant downfield power sprints. Full-back Lou Buffalino scored a 'Buster touchdown with a 30-yard dash around his left end, Sandy Sanford converted twice after touchdowns, and Quarterback Gene Davis completed the scoring for Navy with a field goal from a difficult angle on the 20 yard line with but seconds remaining to play.

Expected to start against Manhattan are Len Eshmont and Walter Zwierzynski at halfbacks, Joe Martin at fullback and Gene Davis at quarterback. Bob King and John Witkowski get the call at ends; Steve Hudacek and Joe Frank at the tackle spots; Charles Pierce and Lou Young at guards; and Joe Kovach at center.

Work this week for the Navy team has been concentrated on defense. Manhattan's tricky and deceptive offensive tactics offer abundant threats in wide sweeps mixed with hard thrusts off tackle.

Carolina, Duke Clash Here Today

Cadets To See Spirited Contest In Kenan Stadium

By WESTY FENHAGEN

Determined to maintain their season's record of not having lost a single contest in the presence of the Pre-Flight cadets, the North Carolina Tar Heels battle the powerful Duke Blue Devils in a renewal of their annual classic today at Kenan Stadium. Perennially one of the nation's top battles, the Tar Heel-Duke game is expected to be played before a sellout crowd of close to 40,000 fans.

As at the other Carolina home games, the Pre-Flight cadets will be guests of the University Athletic Association and will occupy the end two sections next to the student stands on the south side of the field. Gates will open at 1200 and the kick-off is slated for 1400.

The Dukes who have won four and lost three during the season will probably rank as slight favorites but past engagements between the two teams have shown that favorites don't mean a thing when Duke and Carolina battle it out together. The Tar Heels who have dropped only two contests out of seven this season have regained their early season form as evidenced by the 43-14 shellacking handed out to Davidson last week and are primed and ready to gain revenge for the 20-0 triumph Duke's Rose Bowl eleven turned in last year.

Practically all even in the statistical department, greater speed in the backfield and powerful reserve strength will give the Devils a slight edge. Both squads are in fine shape for the classic with only several players for both teams unlikely to see much action. Captain Jim Smith of the Dukes who has been out a greater part of the season has recovered from his injuries and will see some action today as will Alex Luckes, star sophomore tackle who was sidelined by an injury in the Pitt game. Co-captain Tank Marshall whose old knee ailment has failed to improve will probably see only a few minutes of service for the Tar Heels. Shot Cox, brilliant Carolina running and passing star, who was absent from practice earlier in the week because of an illness in his family, has returned and will be a vital cog in the Tar Heel machine today.

Carolina will rely heavily on a strong aerial barrage to stop the Dukes and for this purpose has Billy Myers, sophomore flash, Shot Cox, Myers, sophomore flash, Shot Cox, See CAROLINA, page 6

TWO TAR HEELS well worth watching at this afternoon's Duke-Carolina game are Billy Myers, pictured at the top, and Co-captain Joe Austin, at the bottom. They lead the Tar Heel scoring to date with 23 and 24 points respectively to their credit. Austin is remembered by Carolina fans as the lad who caught the touchdown pass which defeated Duke here two years ago, 6 to 3. He is a senior while Myers is a sophomore.

Lead Unchanged In Sports Program

By CADET BURT SAYMON

The Helldiver squadron continued to hold the lead in the intramural sports program at the end of last week, when their point total stood at 29. Still in the second spot were the Coronados, four points behind, followed by the Mariners and Buccaneers, with 24 and 23 points respectively.
