6-Day Field Trip Planned For 46 Survival Instructors

A six-day trip through the surrounding countryside will feature the coming week's instruction in survival training for the 46 officers now undergoing special training here. Emphasis will be on learning survival techniques, preparing training camps, setting up courses, and building demonstration areas.

During the past week the group received classroom instruction, went on short trips, and witnessed special movies.

The purpose of the instructor's school in survival is to broaden the background of officers now teaching some type of survival, so they will be familiar with all phases, and to train additional officers to meet current and anticipated needs.

Various phases of the survival training program will be featured in next week's CLODBUSTER.

Senior Battalion Loses Competition For First Time

For the first time since the new battalion competition started in early Summer, the senior battalion failed to win top honors over the two weeks period.

It was the 58th who upset the applecart, scoring 241 points while the 54th, in second place, had 216. The 57th had 183, the 55th 144, and the 56th had 76.

Prior to the Sports Program competition on Wednesday night three battalions figured in the fight for top honors. Both the 57th and 58th Battalions had 135 points to their credit, while the 54th had 125.

The 58th defeated the 54th in boxing, 10 to 7, defeated the 55th in wrestling, 29 to 28, and the 54th in swimming, 40 to 39. In the soccer competition, the 54th won over the 56th, 4 to 2, and the 55th defeated the 54th in track, 45 to 42. From start to finish all the competition was close. The last wrestling bout of the evening decided the outcome of that sport, and the relays in track and swimming decided the winners there.

The winning battalion registered 50 points in military, 75 in academic, 10 in class athletics, and 106 in sports program competition.
