Adm. Hardison Urges Strong Fleet and Air Arm For Peace

A strong fleet and some form est and most powerful nation on of universal military training earth, we must accept responsible two requisites for keeping sibilities of leadership which are the peace after the war is won, Rear Admiral O. B. Hardison, USN, Chief of Naval Air Primary Training, declared as principal speaker at University of North Carolina commencement exercises in Hill Hall last world-wide.

"However, it is an historical fact that following every war there is a tendency to forget this inescapable truth and to allow the armed forces to deteriorate. Needless to say, it is neither possible nor desirable to maintain a New at war strength during "Following the war," he said,
"our interests, whether we wish it or not, will be more extensive than ever before. As the great-

Station's Red Cross DriveBeginsMar.7; Leaders Praise Aid

The annual Red Cross drive The annual Red Cross drive on this station will begin next Wednesday, March 7, and extend through March 14, it has been announced by Chaplain George W. Cummins, who has been named chairman of the Red Cross committee for the Pre-Flight School by Lieut. Comdr. James P. Raugh, Commanding Officer.

"It is hoped to be able to match or approach our spendid contribution of last year, although we have fewer personnel," said Chaplain Cummins. "A membership or renewal of membership is $1.00 but in 1944 a great many contributors oversubscribed this amount several times and I hope they will duplicate these subscriptions again.

Department representatives who have been named are as follows: Lieut. Comdr. Renwick E. Curry, Academic; Lieut. Cecil B. Ross, Military; Lieut. Gordon M. Clark, Athletic, and Lieut. Comdr. Thomas D. Slagle, Medical. These representatives will receive contributions from all personnel attached to this activity, including civilian employees.

Navy, Army Urge Support
The Navy has been requested by President Roosevelt to cooperate fully with the American Red Cross in the conduct of the current national campaign, whose goal is to raise $200,000,-000 to finance Red Cross activities for another year of war. Highest ranking Navy and Army officials also have urged cooperation with the organization, of which General Dwight Eisenhower has said, "We simply couldn't get along without it. I consider the Red Cross an auxiliary of my army. They are doing a perfectly magnificent job in every way." in every way.

in every way."

The invaluable aids and services rendered by the Red Cross run into the millions. At the end of June, 1944, the Red Cross was serving 2,000,000 meals monthly from 727 clubs and 194 "clubs on wheels" in all theatres of war. In the last year it has packed 10,800,000 food parcels, sent 125,000 copies of Prisoners of War Bulletins, handled 37,500 of War Bulletins, handled 37,500 emergency messages and distributed 12,700 medicine kits.
