

1980 Careline Olympics
on the CRO.

Marilee Southard and Anne Moles managed to get a collectors' quality autograph. Bob Mathias signed a Wheaties box which had a historic Olympic profile about his gold medals.

CRO's Laverne Rehder, left, and Augustine Watts all but took turns collecting gold and silver medals from former U. S. Olympian Jack Kelley.

The events enthralled spectators of all ages. If you had to share the binoculars a shoulder seat helped.

The gallons of Gatorade consumed increased with the temperature during the day. Priscilla Stanfield, Judy Gatewood and Torre Plemmons shared at least one decanter.

Sam Crosby helped the hot air balloon crew touch down just beyond the playing field following its ascension for the opening ceremonies.

Dan Weavil and Bob McIver chatted with President Davis while he took a break from filming the events.

Phyllis Highsmith and Terry Thomas kept track of the ribboned medals which Bill Howard presented to many of the winners.

Along with all the gold medals and grins there were a few temporary grimaces. Here, Captain Bill Craig tried to ease a leg cramp.
