PLEASANT HILL NEWS

Mrs. J. H. Lanier and Mrs. H. E. Lanier were hostesses to the Pleasant Hill community club on their regular meeting date at the home of Mrs. J. H. Lanier.

There were ten members present at this meeting. Two visitors, Mrs. Frank Parker and Mrs. Mark Calhoun, attended the meeting.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. E. F. Hinton. In the absence of the secretary the roll was called and minutes read by Mrs. H. E. Lanier.

The club repeated the "Collect of Club Women of America."

Several club songs were sung. A game "Neighborhood Gossip" was played, causing much merriment among the ladies.

The demonstration for the month was given by the leaders, Mrs. G. B. Thompson and Mrs. Joe Lanier.

The project lesson was on Upholstery. A hard bottomed rocking chair was padded with an old quilt and burlap and begun to be made into quite a nice boudoir chair. It was not completed that afternoon.

Later in the afternoon the hostesses served tomato sandwiches and iced tea to the club, during which time a social half-hour was enjoyed by everyone present.

At first I thought it a joke but she convinced me it was true.

"Do you love him," I asked, because I had never heard her speak of the boy with any enthusiasm.

"Oh," she replied, "I'm not crazy about him like I was my first husband, but we like the same things and get along pretty well so I thought we might just as well get married." She didn't have to add the unspoken thought which was in her mind that if they couldn't get along she could get a divorce as she did before.

What an attitude to have toward marriage. When one reads the ceremony carefully and seriously considers the "til death do us part" and "for richer, for poorer, for better or worse" passages they are not inclined to take so sacred a step in so casual a manner.

Divorces leave their scars and although in some cases, they are the lesser of two evils, the victims lose something by such a process.

If each young man or woman knew that there was no release from marriage, once the ceremony was performed, I believe they would be more deliberate in their choice.

Matrimony should not be considered a short adventure which ends when one party or both tires of it.

Yours,
LOUISA.

CLUB SHORT COURSE HELD THIS WEEK

The 25th anniversary of 4-H club work in North Carolina is being celebrated this week at the short course at State College with delegates present from practically every county in the State.

The program has been designed to give the club boys and girls a pleasant time while here and also train them in the fundamentals of leadership and better farming and home-making.

The course this year, July 25-30, is the first in this State to be held over a week-end. This change was made in order to give the members opportunity to be in the capital city over Sunday, said L. R. Harrill, club leader at State College.

The style show Friday has been included in the program to give the girls a chance to show what they have been doing in clothing projects during the past year and to learn what their fellow members in other parts of the State have accomplished.

The selection Saturday evening of the State King and Queen of Health will be one of the high lights of the short course. Entering the contest will be boys and girls who won the various district championships for their superior physical and health qualifications.

The classes and demonstrations are held in the mornings, with sight-seeing tours, rest periods, and recreation featuring the afternoons. The evenings are enlivened with entertainments, singings, plays, and other social activities.

A picnic, band concert, community sing, and the awarding of certificates of merit to deserving club members will round out Sunday afternoon. The vesper services and candle lighting ceremony Sunday evening will bring the short course to a close.

V. O. Sipe of Catawba county says he will have 3,000 bushels of peaches to market from his 40-acre orchard near the county home.

Louisa's Letter

IS IT "UNTIL DEATH DO US PART?"

Dear Girls:— One reason for the many divorces in our country is the attitude of the people before they are married.

For instance, I, not so long ago, had a very attractive young woman working for me. She was pretty and accomplished but was not what one could call a deep thinker. She had married when almost a child and was later on divorced from the man, who had proved himself unfaithful on numerous occasions.

One day, as she came in the room, she said in a casual way, "I got married last night."

At first I thought it a joke but she convinced me it was true.

"Do you love him," I asked, because I had never heard her speak of the boy with any enthusiasm.

"Oh," she replied, "I'm not crazy about him like I was my first husband, but we like the same things and get along pretty well so I thought we might just as well get married." She didn't have to add the unspoken thought which was in her mind that if they couldn't get along she could get a divorce as she did before.

What an attitude to have toward marriage. When one reads the ceremony carefully and seriously considers the "til death do us part" and "for richer, for poorer, for better or worse" passages they are not inclined to take so sacred a step in so casual a manner.

Divorces leave their scars and although in some cases, they are the lesser of two evils, the victims lose something by such a process.

If each young man or woman knew that there was no release from marriage, once the ceremony was performed, I believe they would be more deliberate in their choice.

Matrimony should not be considered a short adventure which ends when one party or both tires of it.

Yours,
LOUISA.

The Road To Better Health

Fads, Fads, Who Follows The Fads?

Most fads are foolish, mere passing fashions. The skirts of women jump up and down, according to the dictates of that tyrant, Dame Fashion. The Scriptures tell us that "the body is more than raiment" but fashion decrees that raiment is more than the body; for, when she decrees that the waists of the women must be small, even though nature has built her on a generous pattern, she squeezes herself into an instrument of torture known as a corset and makes herself appear as slim as possible. Even at the risk of health or modesty many women follow blindly the prevailing styles.

For several years the "female of the species" has been ardently courting the kisses of old King Sol. This has developed into such a mania that girls go out in open boats on the water without hats, or sit in the broiling sun at mid-day until many of them are actually as dark as mulattoes or Orientals. In fact it is sometimes difficult to tell to what race some of them belong.

Brunettes when young often look quite well with a light coat of tan, but blondes never. The Titan type with fair thin skin and red or golden hair, should endeavor to shield the face from the summer sun. It brings out a crop of ugly freckles, and burns her hair until it takes on dirty slate colored shades. The blonde has naturally a delicate skin that wrinkles and crinkles more quickly than that of the brunette. There is no uglier type than the burned, blistered blonde whose complexion has taken on a weather beaten, coarsened appearance from exposure to sun and wind. It ages her many years. Unfortunately, once having ruined her complexion she can never restore it to its pristine beauty. The middle aged woman only invites wrinkles and an appearance of toughness and age, by acquiring a coat of tan.

Children need sunshine, but adults do themselves no good by the ruthless exposure of their persons to strong rays of the mid-day sun.

SEADROMES

The seadromes in the Atlantic ocean, thought to be out of the question, may be built after all as inside information says that the PWA plans to approve a $7,000,000 allotment to the Commerce Department for the construction of one to be anchored midway between Bermuda and the Azores. Eventually, five or six would be spaced between the United States and Europe. The State Department has approved the idea.

FARLEY ON TRIP

Postmaster-General Farley is off on a trip which will inevitably carry him to the Pacific Coast, where he will meet the President on his return from Hawaii.

AIR MASS DATA

Mith Meteorographs strapped on their wings, Army, Navy, and private planes are carrying instruments high into the air to gather information for the weather bureau, which has heretofore been limited to ground observations in attempting to analyze air-mass movements, now recognized as vitally important in making forecasts. Soundings will be made daily at scattered fields over the United States and information will be gathered by seven warships.

DROPS TORPEDOES

Torpedo equipment will be removed from all heavy cruisers in harmony with the view of the naval high command that it is unnecessary in this type of warship. Light cruisers and destroyers will retain the equipment.
