Congressman From Fourth Talks at Barbecue Given By Home Fertilizer And Chemical Co.

The Home Fertilizer and Chemical Co., was host to about three hundred farmers and other guests from Wake, Halifax, Wilson, Johnston, Granville, Edgecombe, Franklin and Nash Counties Wednesday, September 10, at a barbecue given at Granite Lake. The barbecue was served by the famous Bob Melton, of Rocky Mount.

Dr. L. G. Willis, Chief of the Bureau of Soils, State College, Raleigh, and Dr. R. F. Poole, Chief of the Bureau of Plant Diseases, were present and both made most interesting talks on their specialties. Particular reference was made by successful crop production.

The feature talk of the evening was made by Hon. Harold D. Cooley, Congressman from the fourth district. He spoke in most glowing terms of the Roosevelt program for agriculture, both as to concrete results of past programs, and as to the broad, long-time plans being made for a permanent agricultural policy by the administration.

Mr. Cooley, who is a member of the Agriculture Committee of the House, received an ovation at the conclusion of his talk.

The Home Fertilizer and Chemical Co., located in the neighboring town of Zebulon, has just completed its first full year of service to the community. It has made a most enviable record in the quality of the goods manufactured, and has enjoyed fine business through its year of location at Zebulon. This concern is sixty-six years old, having been established in 1870, but the Zebulon plant is only rounding out its first full year. However, those in charge of this plant have had a life-time of service in the fertilizer business.

Scimitar and Song

Edited By Lura Thomas McNair

"We know that poetry is not a mere pastime for scholars although the study of it is a subtle and delightful occupation for mature minds. Poets mean it to give pleasure or that deeper and more solemn satisfaction of life in patterns of rhythmic words."
Marguerite Wilkinson in Contemporary Poets.

Rulers
(By James Larkin Pearson)
The fat old men foregathered
In steel-and-concrete towers,
And shook their bags of money
And boasted of their powers.

The lean young men went marching
The lonesome women cried;
And there was war and glory
And rest for those who died.

The fat old men made merry,
With pomp and power increased.
And all the human vultures
Were bidden to the feast.

Then up rose want and hunger,
And death and foul decay;
They gnawed the firm foundations,
And all the house gave way.

Now there is fear and quaking
In strong-built office chairs,
And rulers weep that vengeance
Falls on them unawares.

Out On Serious Folk
(London Morning Post)
I met a tramp down Sunbury way,
A bloke of sterling worth;
"Some 'all," says he, "for work
and pay,
But I'm for 'armless mirth.
"Haven't you heard? He's dead."
An' 'sleepin' out's a crime.
I laughs and thinks 'ow blinkin' odd!
I'm larfin' 'arf the time."

West Wind is an attractive brochure by Irving Bacon of Tenn. Copies may be purchased from him at twenty-five cents each. It is published by the Arcadian Press. The poems are all of pastoral nature. An intimate kinship with nature and a love of the single life—the Seasons, fields, woods and the ever-varying, ever engrossing scenes about one is revealed throughout. The address is 411 Gillespie, Ave. Knoxville, Tennessee.

My Heart Rebounds
Your letter robbed me of the light
A little while,
A bar of song from
A red bird in the rain

Eked through my gloom.
Now I could smile.
So dressed in white
Shiver of pain,
I learned mine is a heart
Of resiliency.

No doom shall sit therein
With permanence,
Lura Thomas McNair

My Soul
My soul is like a great white bird
With silver on its wings,
It hears the music of the spheres
That play on the worlds heart strings.
It soars to regions unexplored
By mortals on this earth,
Thus it returns as Heaven's own
To him who gave it birth.
Lillias Brown, Sanford N. C.

Exposed
"Why are you fidgeting about, Oscar?" asked the teacher sternly. Oscar didn't answer, but the class tattle-tale did. "He's got a pin teacher," he cried.

"Take it away from him and bring it here," commanded the teacher.
A little later Oscar was called on to read. He remained sitting. "Stand up," said the teacher sharply.

Oscar got red, but didn't budge. "I can't, teacher," he quipped. "I've had enough of this foolishness," exclaimed the teacher. "Why can't you stand up?"

Oscar fidgeted some more and blurted out—"Because that pin you took away from me held my pants up!"

"I see you have a room for rent. How much do you want for it, including the use of your piano?"

"I won't be able to tell you until after I hear you play."

"Ah, Mr. Branson, and how is your most charming wife?"
"I have only one."
