HOW RABBITS ARE CAUGHT DOWN IN CHATHAM CO.

Waylon Jones, manager of Roy Logan's shoe store, on Granby street, a former resident of Chatham County, consented to an interview the other day on the rabbit business in his home county. And we'll let Waylon tell it just as he told it to a representative of the Times-Advocate last Tuesday during his lunch hour: "As you know, Chatham County, from whence I hail, is the largest rabbit producing county in the United States, and we have many methods that we use to trap the unwary hares. One of them is to paint black spots on old logs, then we get the dogs after the rabbits and they, thinking the spots to be holes in hollow logs, make for dear life, butting their heads against the logs which either kills them instantly or stuns them so they can be easily captured. But, perhaps, the best and most effective way of catching them in quantities is to clear out spots about the size of golf greens and then set fire to the grass or undergrowth around these clearings. The rabbits invariably make for these cleared spots, seeking safety from these fires. They huddle there until the hunters come up with their dogs and trucks. Then the rabbits are loaded on the trucks and taken to Pittsboro, the capital of Chatham County, where they are packed in cars and shipped to Northern markets. It is nothing unusual when the rabbit season is at its height to ship a train load of sixty box cars a day, the yield is generally from seven hundred and fifty to eight hundred rabbits to the acre.—Times-Advocate, Norfolk Va.

The National Tuberculosis Association was founded in 1904 by a group of distinguished tuberculosis specialists and interested laymen. Its aim was to study tuberculosis in all its forms and to disseminate knowledge on its causes, treatment, and prevention. From the first, then the campaign to fight tuberculosis, at that time the leading cause of death, was educational. To stimulate the public in a desire to secure better health machinery was the object, and in only very few instances have Christmas Seal funds ever been used for relief work.

TYSON-MAY REUNION HELD IN FARMVILLE

Farmville, Nov. 30.—The annual Tyson-May reunion was held here Friday in the Christian church, with Mayor John B. Lewis presiding and delivering the principal address of the program.

Stressing the ideals of family life, Mayor Lewis spoke of the relationship which should exist between the various members of a family in point of duty, courtesy and consideration.

Displaying the Tyson and May family trees Miss Tabitha DeVivanti, genealogical chairman, led a discussion of family branches in which the following members of the families took part: Mrs. U. H. Cozart, Wilson; Mrs. R. A. Fountain, Sr., Fountain; Mrs. Benjamin May, Sanford; Joseph May, Kingston; Walter G. Sheppard, Snow Hill; Mrs. J. L. Moore, New Bern. Mrs. Iona May and Mrs. W. A. Pollard, Sr., Rev. C. B. Marshburn, pastor of the Christian church, who was later adopted into the reunion organization, conducted a memorial service for the members of the families, who had died since the previous meeting.

Mrs. Josie McArthur paid tributes to G. T. Tyson, founder of the Tyson reunion organization, and to Henry T. King, Pitt County historian.

Dr. J. Y. Joyner, of LaGrange, was present and as on former occasions, conducted a round table discussion, in which he was joined by John Tucker, of Warrenton, who suggested that an exhibit of heirlooms be held at the next meeting. The reunion gladly accepted the suggestion and Mr. Tucker was appointed chairman of the exhibit committee.

In the annual election of officers J. N. Bynum of Roanoke Rapids was elected president; C. A. Tyson, Farmville, first vice president; Joseph May, Kingston, second vice president and Mrs. Mary Moye Patterson, Farmville was reelected secretary.

Chrysler Offers Dynamic New Cars in 1937 Lines

The Chrysler Royal, four-door Sedan. This is the car with which Chrysler invades the low-priced field. Beauty, performance and exceptional roominess are its leading features.

The hood of Chrysler Royals and Imperials are hinged at the back, enabling them to be raised from the front to give easy access to the engine.

The Chrysler Royal's Gold Seal engine. This entirely new engine develops 93 h. p. with a piston displacement of but 228.1 cu. in.

The Chrysler Imperial, 204 inches overall and 110 horsepower. This car is a larger and more luxurious model on the same general lines as the Royal.

The Chrysler Airflow has been greatly improved and refined. A new front end treatment adds to its beauty. Its unique integral body and frame construction give it maximum safety and its scientific streamlining reduces wind resistance and permits unusual economy for so large a car.
