Whiteside Estates, the most highly restricted subdivision in this area, covering 300 acres, is located on Route 64 between Highlands and Cashiers. Its position on top of the Tennessee Valley Divide, which is the divisional water-shed of Eastern America, affords vistas of the famed Cashiers Valley to the east and Yellow Mountain and ranges to the west. The level terrain, though 4,000 feet in elevation, affords ideal building sites for summer homes. This subdivision invites your inspection either as one interested in the natural beauty of the land or as a prospective home owner.

LECTURE AT MUSEUM

Burnham Standish Colburn of Asheville, the first lecturer in the Highlands Biological Station series of summer lectures, will give a talk tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the Highlands Museum of Natural History. Mr. Colburn will discuss the minerals of Western North Carolina.

Mr. Colburn is one of the founders of the Highlands Biological Station and served as its vice-president in 1930. He served as a member of the board of trustees from 1930 to 1934.

HIGHLANDS RECREATION CENTER

The Highlands Recreation Center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with Richard (Snook) Thompson as recreation director. Tennis, Badminton, shuffle board, and horse shoes can be enjoyed on the outside and on the inside they offer card games and ping-pong. Square and round dancing will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday nights beginning at 8 p.m.

The recreation center is located in the old school building and grounds.

THE ARK ANTIQUE SHOP

The Ark Antique Shop opened for the fourth season on June 21. There is a large and varied collection of antiques and gifts from England and the continent as well as a group of early Americana.

An interesting article is a wrought iron monastery garden bell from the French Alps, dated before 1800. There are also door stops and miniature chests from Scotland, very handsome chests of drawers from London and silver from Ireland. From Denmark came
