"A TIME TO SING"

Hank Williams, Jr., son of an illustrious father and one of today's leading exponents of the "Nashville Sound" in music, makes his motion picture debut in MGM's song-filled "A Time to Sing" in a story beautifully adapted to his multi-faceted talents.

Williams, Jr. is not only a stand-out singer and composer of western-and-country ballads (he wrote four of the eight songs he performs in his initial movie), he also has an appealing personality and an undeniable acting talent, as evidenced in his persuasive portrayal of Grady Dodd, a young tobacco farmer whom circumstances precipitate into a career as a night club singer and recording star.

Shelly Fabares and Academy Award winner Ed Begley offer important contributions to the story of "A Time to Sing." Miss Fabares is seen as Amy Carter, a gas station grease monkey, whose inauspicious first encounter with Dodd, when her truck drives his car off the road, blossoms into romance. The veteran Begley has a strong dramatic role as Dodd's Uncle Kermit whose love for his farm is only equalled by his hatred of music and musicians.

"A Time to Sing" plays at the GALAX THEATRE on Saturday, July 12th. You won't want to miss it!
