"INTERLUDE"

Oskar Werner can charm the birds off the trees, is handsome enough to be an American Presidential candidate and withal is one of the world's most distinguished actors. Currently, Werner is charming his co-star, Barbara Ferris, in "Interlude", a Domino production in Columbia Color playing Sunday and Monday, July 27 and 28 at the GALAX THEATRE. David Deutsch produced and Kevin Billington directed the Columbia Pictures release from a screenplay by Lee Langley and Hugh Leonard.

Werner, who won an Academy Award nomination for his poignant portrayal of the "Ship of Fools" ship's doctor who has a tragic love affair with a political exile, is seen in "Interlude" as a married man who is involved in a tempestuous romance with a younger girl. Their bit-ter-sweet love affair is said to be as sensitive a romantic delineation as has even been put on the screen.
