

Scrolling

By FRED BOYCE

She's hinged in the middle so she can go around corners... There's one on the corner now... You'd better look up folks, cause it costs you $1.10 to go up and look down... You know what I mean, folks. — T. B.

I suppose these phrases seem very idiotic to the average person but you would have heard them if you had by chance slipped into our little circles at Barter Theatre this summer. I appeal to your good judgement that we were not insane but playing a little game. The game was played by taking phrases, such as those mentioned above, from the various plays that we presented during the summer and seeing what nonsensical things we could do with them. This was something to pass away the long hours of work in the scene shop. It became one of our pet games. Why not try it sometime. It is very helpful in remembering things.

I want to recommend to all of those people who did not see (the movie, "Mr. Belvedere Rings The Bell.") It is a very heart lifting movie and you feel so good when you come out. It is taken from the Broadway play "The Silver Whistle." It is about an author who gets into an old age home to find out if living to an old age is worthwhile. While he is there he makes the "guests" feel younger by having them do the things that they did when they were young. He tells them that their minds have tricked them into making them believe that life is not worth living any more. His identity is discovered by some "snooty" reporters and the old people turn against him saying he was playing a trick at their expense. All ends well when Mr. Belvedere buys furnishing for the old home.

And I close with this little thought:

After all the rigmarole
This will stand eternal:
I am the captain of my soul
And my wife's the lieutenant-Colonel.

October Mademoiselle Tells The College Girl How To Look This Fall

October MADEMOISELLE, with its college readers in mind, reviews the new Paris fashions, translated by American manufacturers for young figures and young budgets. Deases' backward - moving Bluebird line, Balenciaga's fitted-front, loose - back coat silhouette, Dior's martingales (half - belts placed high across the back on suits and coats) are all present in American adaptations at prices college girls won't mind paying.

Any girl about to be married or even just day - dreaming will be surprised to learn that October M.I.L.E. says there's a new way for brides to look and still be as traditionally beautiful as ever: M.I.L.E. introduces the champagne bride, champagne being the newest color for a formal or informal wedding. And for a truly champagne taste (on a ginger ale budget of course!) MADEMOISELLE suggests a touch of milk on a simple afternoon wedding dress!

College girls can go fur coat-less this year without a sign; the new cloth - coat story as M.I.L.E. tells it falls into four equally smart parts: The fitted coat (big collar, big skirt, bright lining); the wrap coat, huge shawl collar, no buttons in sight — only for the very sophisticated; the little barrel coat (as cute as its name, ending just at the hip, curved of sleeve, in a furry fabric, best over slim skirts and slim legs); the box coat (softer and prettier version of the box silhouette that almost every college girl agrees never really goes out of style.)

ated throughout the country. These positions will require a high type of professional competence and the duties will involve professional research.

Applicants for both examinations must pass a written test, in addition to having had college training in the appropriate field of work. Students who plan to complete work on their bachelor's or master's degrees by June 30, 1952, may apply for these examinations. If they qualify, they may be offered appointments before graduation and go on full-time duty immediately after becoming available.

In announcing these examinations, the Commission is hoping for a high quality, rather than a greatly increased number of applicants. The examinations are for the purpose of bringing into the service promising young people, who are experienced or trained in specific fields of work, who wish to begin a career with the Government.

After the examinations are announced, additional information will be available at the college placement office or from the heads of the departments offering pertinent study. Copies of the announcements and application card forms may be obtained from the school placement office, from most first- or second-class post offices, from civil service regional offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. The closing date for receipt of applications will be November 15, 1951.

he wants to change is a normal progression from his current course, and will help him attain his educational or vocational objective.

No additional changes of course will be approved, except for the most cogent reasons, VA said.

VA explained that most veterans not actually in training on the July 25 cut-off-date no longer are eligible for the GI Bill training benefit. But those who had enrolled before the deadline may continue until they complete their courses or run out of GI entitlement. For the great majority of veterans, the entire GI training program winds up on July 25, 1952.

prospect for the year. With twenty-seven old members from last year, several of whom are letter-members, the club should be well-rounded in material for acting and for off - stage work.

The members voted in favor of joining the North Carolina Dramatics Association for the 51-52 season. This enables the local organization to participate in state-wide competition in different phases of dramatics at contests held annually in Greenville, North Carolina.

The plans for the year include three one - act plays to be presented in the winter and another three - act production in the spring.

The dates for the first production have been tentatively set for November 15 and 16.

hard—

Just put your eye upon the goal and start there, yard by yard; And more than all—when you are thrown—or tumbled with a crack— Don't lie there whining—hustle up—and keep on coming back.

"Keep coming back for all they've got and take it with a grin When disappointment trips you up or failure barks your shin; Keep coming back—and if at last you lose the game of right Let those who whipped you know at least they, too, have had a fight.

"You'll find the breadline hard to buck and fame's goal far away, But hit the line and hit it hard across each rushing play; For when the One Great Scorer come to write against your name He marks—not that you won or lost—but how you played the game."
