

Bohunk Stays Here For Summer

By Bob Guy

Looking back through the pages of the almost passed year the first thing most people look for is a sign of progress or improvement. A person can hardly think of these two things without automatically thinking of our ball teams.

In basketball they started in the hole, or should we say with the odds against them. There seemed to be a natural feeling of defeat among the student body. This fact, however, did not slow up the desire and determination of the team to win some games. So far as tallying up a large number of wins is concerned some teams might have a better record, but so far as team-spirit and sportsmanship goes, our team must lead the parade.

If anyone wants to know if the baseball season has been a success my advice is to ask any "East Carolinian". Congratulations fellows, for bringing the Bohunk home, "where it belongs". We hope it's here to stay.

I'm sure all of you heard or read about the brave and trustworthy captain of the Flying Enterprise who stayed with his ship until the last straw was drawn. This great man is a good comparison for Jack McComas. Don't misunderstand me, he has not been operating a sinking ship but on the contrary a ship of flying colors. Jack McComas has stuck by those fellows and worked just as hard after a defeat as after a win. He has done a great job for the team and so "hats off" and congratulations to Jack McComas, a good guy and great coach!

To the fellows on the team,

Why Go Home
This Summer?

The Atlantic Christian baseball team defeated the East Carolina Pirates in the last two games needed to retain the cherished Bohunk Trophy.

East Carolina 10, A. C. 5
The Bulldogs and Buccaneers have faced one another this season in four games. East Carolina won the first game on March 31 by a 10-5 margin. The Bulldogs got off to an early 5-0 lead behind the pitching of "Go-Go" Jackson. The Pirates tied the score in the bottom of the sixth and clinched the victory in the bottom of the eighth when they staged a five-run explosion. Nick Siganos led the Christians at the plate with three hits in four trips.

East Carolina 8, A. C. 3
Pitcher Jim Piner of East Carolina pitched his teammates to a 3-1 win over the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs on April 2 in a game played in Greenville. This marked Atlantic Christian's second loss to the Pirates, who held the Bohunk Trophy at this point. The battling star of the game was East Carolina's Gailther Cline who accounted for two homers and a double to drive in four of the Pirates' eight runs. Ed Lane with four official appearances at bat accounted for two of A. C. C.'s six hits.

East Carolina 4, A. C. 3

A. C. 3, East Carolina 1
The Atlantic Christian College baseball team defeated the Pirates of East Carolina 3-1 on April 5, to bring its baseball season to a roaring climax. Behind the three-hit pitching of Gilbert Ferrell, the Bulldogs were able to regain possession of the cherished Bohunk trophy. Ferrell also sparked the local collegians at the plate, collecting two hits in three attempts.

Atlantic Christian College keeps the Bohunk Trophy for another year!!! The Bulldog team won over their arch rivals East Carolina on May 5 by a 6-5 score which enabled them to keep the trophy within the realms of Atlantic Christian College. Gilbert Ferrell again sparked his team both on the mound and at the plate. He collected two for four and drove in one run. Gailther Cline for the Pirates had two for three, one of which was a home run. For A. C. Scoop McCrary banged out two for four and Jay Clark got one for two to add to the cause.

Three Stars

ACC has many luminaries in its sports program, but the three stars saluted by photographers this month are: ace pitcher, Gilbert Ferrell, pictured above; Nick Siganos, second baseman whose starring brought him a contract with the Wilson Tobaccoists; and Herb Ross, expert athletic official. The last two are featured on the front page of this month's special sports edition, Herb taking time out from refereeing to back up some cool pitching that never got as far as him—Nick obviously connected. The photographer and art work on the front page are the work of the COLLEGIATE'S star photographer, Vernon Morton. The engraving is by James Smith.
