

Frankly, we're still a little confused by all that red ink last month. It just goes to show what will happen when you add that Communist coloring. Our bowlers lost all their personality and became just a sort of blob of ink. In justice to them we are reprinting them in a nice capitalist black and white this month. But just to show that one shouldn't get too self-satisfied with success even in a democracy — and to show that it's often a tight squeeze in this Free Compulsion set-up, land of Free

Enterprise, we've had to slip them in sideways to make room for them. Underneath the superficial ink, however, they're still the same good sports, namely (left to right) Margaret Harris, Ruth Hathaway, Rebecca Tomlinson, Clara Ethridge and Mildred Blackmon. (Collegiate photo by Raines and Cox.)

Looking at the conference standings now it would seem to the ordinary person that East Carolina is going to walk away with the conference crown again this year. East Carolina has a good ball club, but so do some of the other clubs in the conference. It is a known fact that the Pirates are weak in reserves, and therefore the first five have to play just about all the ball game. Even good ball clubs can't stand but so much strain.

Lenoir Rhyne is second in the conference, and the people who saw them play here know they have a good ball club. The Bears are young, but they have enough veterans to keep the young boys going. They have depth on the bench and they never count themselves out of a game. So keep your eye on the Bears; they'll give anyone a tough time.

Appalachian is never counted out of the race. The Mountaineers got off to a very slow start this season, losing their first seven starts until they have a young group that lacks experience. They have won their last two starts so maybe they are beginning to roll.

Our own Bulldogs are considered to have one of the better ball clubs in the conference. We are slated to end up in one of the top four positions, with Elon, Guilford, High Point, Western Carolina, and Catawba fighting it out for the other berths.

Keep your eye on the North State Conference. As we head down the stretch there will be many surprises and upsets. No one has sewed up the conference yet!

The Varsity Of Tomorrow

All year long we have been talking about our varsity basketball squad and not much has been said about the Jayvees. Not many of the students and people around town know how good the J. V.'s are, because they wait until the last minute to come to the games and just get to see the tail end of the J.V.'s games.

Coach Tom Pritchard thinks he has one of the finest, if not the best, J.V. squad that has ever been at Atlantic Christian College.

Some people think that just because these boys are playing on the J.V.'s they are not varsity material. Many of these boys are on the J.V.'s for one reason only and that is to gain much-needed experience. If they were not considered varsity prospects they would not be on the team.

Boys like Ronald Baker, Joe Morris, Nicky Lazzo, Herbert Edwards, Larry Lassiter, Chuck Hester, Buddy Hutchins, and others are the future Bulldogs and it is up to us to come out and support them as much as we do the varsity.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. O'Connell of Wilson, Marjorie Blinson, pianist, and Ruby Wiggins, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. Ruby sang "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," "Oh Promise Me," and as the benediction, "The Lord's Prayer."

The couple entered together. For the ceremony the bride wore a mist gray suit with powder blue accessories. She carried a white Bible topped with lilies of the valley and centered with an orchid.

Ushers were Sherwood Stanley of Raleigh and Buster Short of Norfolk and Wilson.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom received in the vestibule of the chapel.

Engagements
Engagements and new diamonds seemed to be rather prevalent throughout the holidays along with the weddings.

Jerry Ball and Roger Philyaw are planning a June wedding. Billy Boone, who entered A.C.C. for his first year this year, found his O&O and presented a diamond to Betty Jane Lamm, a Sophomore. Virginia Tew announced her engagement to Bill Chestnut, former ACC student now stationed at Fort Jackson. Annie Gray Johnson also picked a serviceman with her engagement to Frank Bettis. Senior Doris Tyndall announced her engagement to Albert Alexander.

Quite a few diamonds have been seen flashing in the Freshman class. Among the Christmas engagements were Jeanette Aldridge, Geraldine Windham, June Pittman, and Barbara Tilghman.
