Miss Ward Recalls "Good" Old Days

By JOE HARDEGREE

"I'll tell you how old I am, but don't ask me about my weight," was the answer to my first question as I began my interview with Miss Sarah Bain Ward, dean of women at ACC. This friendly and cheerful answer is typical of the woman who is in charge of all girls living on campus at our institution.

Miss Ward was born in Kinston (I hate myself when I do things like this) November 28, 1911 (I can't do it; I just can't). She attended the Kinston public schools and matriculated at Atlantic Christian College in the fall of 1934. While at ACC she was, among other things, president of the Christian association on campus, president of the Co-operative Association, and a charter member of the Golden Knot Honor Society. Also she was one of the four student supervisors selected each year to be in charge of all student work on campus. In those days, says Miss Ward, students did all of the work on campus. There were no maids or janitors during those depression years, and it was up to the students to attend to the various jobs.

Some of Miss Ward's classmates at ACC were Milton L. Adams, present business manager, Millard Burt, Mrs. Elizabeth Highey, Russell Roebuck, Cyrus Lee and Norman Etheridge, better known as "Twettie". She graduated cum laude in 1938, with a double major in science and mathematics.

She taught at Selma from 1938 until 1944, when she became dean of women at ACC. In 1952 Miss Ward received her M.A. degree from Columbia University, majoring in guidance and personnel administration.

Things have really changed since the first day Miss Ward came back to the campus in 1944. If the girls think they have it rough now, they should see some of the rules that were in force then. Back in those days, every girl had to go to church on Sunday or else forfeit all privileges for the rest of the day. During Sunday afternoon there was a "quiet period." From 1:00 to 3:30 the girls could receive no visitors. They then had a social hour from 4:00 until after supper. There was absolutely no dancing between the men and the women. The girls, however, solved this problem by dancing among themselves. How the boys solved it is not known at the present time.

There was absolutely no night riding for anyone unless there was a faculty member chaperoning. Obviously that put a crimp in outside dating on rainy nights. Girls were also not allowed to go to the movies on Sunday night.

Back in those wild and woolly days however, there were quite a few exciting things happening, says the dean. She recalled that Kinsey Hall, where the girls lived, could not be locked up at night. Many a time, armed with a stick and a flashlight, she would creep down the stairs investigating the sounds of footsteps walking through the halls.

Miss Ward is quite happy in her job as dean of women. She believes that the girls of ACC have

Morrow Family Come From Ozark Foothills

By ART BISHOP

Many great men of our nation, including Ozark Ike and others, have been born and raised in the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas. From the foothills of these same Ozarks has come to our campus our dean of men.

Robert Morrow was born about thirty years ago in Center Ridge, Arkansas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Morrow. He attended Nemo Vista High School, where he participated in many activities, including basketball. After graduating from high school, Mr. Morrow became a member of the US Air Force, where he spent three years. He spent most of his service time stationed in that little state known as Texas.

Upon his release from the Air Force, Mr. Morrow entered Arkansas State College. He graduated from there in 1952 with his B.S.E. degree (E stands for education). He spent the next three years in Jonesboro, Arkansas, and Clarkton, Missouri. He was assistant principal at the Jonesboro High School and was a teacher at Clarkton High School.

During this period he studied two summers at Arkansas State Teachers College in Conway, Arkansas, and worked one summer with a construction company helping to build the Ohio Turnpike. He also worked one summer at a cotton gin in Missouri.

Dean Morrow re-entered college in the fall of 1955 at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio. He received his Ed.M. from there the following summer. During his stay there he counseled freshman students and worked as a counselor in the Athens city schools.

Shortly after graduating from Ohio University, Mr. Morrow came to our college to become dean of men and assistant professor in psychology. At the present time he is teaching classes in principles of guidance and abnormal psychology. Our new dean intends to begin work on his Ed.D. the second semester of this school year at either Duke or the University of North Carolina.

Now let us take a quick look at his family. He was married to the former Miss Edith Hammon in 1949. Mr. and Mrs. Morrow are the proud parents of a four and a half year old girl whose name is Melody. Mr. Morrow's brother, Bill, is an engineer and his sister, Norma, is a school teacher. Both Norma and Bill graduated from Arkansas Tech, which is the college that defeated ACC in basketball at the Kansas City Tournament two years ago.

Mr. Morrow rates his interests in this order: reading, football, basketball, and music. Mrs. Morrow is also interested in music. Along with these interests our new dean enjoys working with young people. Both Dean Morrow and his wife like our college and are very glad to be a part of the ACC family.

Walnut Cove Girl Crowned Queen

By CHARLES SHURLEY

Early Saturday morning, November 17, just before the parade began its procession down the main street of Wilson, Miss June Young of Walnut Cove was crowned 1956 homecoming queen of Atlantic Christian College.

Daughter of Mrs. Lena Young of Walnut Cove and a sophomore here at ACC, June defeated some twenty odd campus beauties for this honor. Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity, June's sponsor, can take justifiable pride in their choice of a candidate since, on November 12, she was determined winner by popular vote of the student body.

Chosen on the basis of poise, beauty, personality and school spirit, June has proven herself worthy of this honor time and time again here on the school campus. Admired by the male student body, respected by the girls, and a special friend of many of the freshmen, it was evident from the start that June's chances of winning were favorable.

June is a religion major and is minoring in English. An active member of Sigma Tau Chi sorority, June is serving along with Dot Denning as pledge master this year. She is a member of the Women's Dormitory Council and can be found at any of the basketball games in her role as cheerleader, coaxing the Bulldogs on to victory.

After graduation June plans to do religious education work. She is engaged to Jimmy Harris, a senior from Raleigh and a member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity. June, escorted by Jimmy, was presented to the student body and the alumni at the half time of the Homecoming game, November 17. Elated over her winning, June has nevertheless been a modest and unassuming successor to the Homecoming queen crown.

2 Students Come From Cuba, Iraq

By YIPPIY BROWNING

Atlantic Christian College is fortunate to have four foreign students. As an attempt to acquaint the rest of the student body with these four, the Collegiate is presenting two foreign students in this issue.

Adalberto Dominguez is known to us as Lito. Two years ago Lito came to the United States and enrolled at ACC in our Tar Heel State. At that time his brother was a student at ACC, which clears the question of Lito's choice of schools. Lito's father is in the construction business in Conaques, Cuba, and wants his son to learn the English language. Soon Lito plans to return home and work with his father when he feels he has attained enough of our native language. And we gripe about learning to speak Spanish!

Before coming to ACC, Lito started to school at three years of age and spent ten years climbing through grammar school. Then, it was five more years devoted to high school. Havana has a very great university, offering all fields of normal studies. Our friend from Cuba informs us that one can study architecture, medicine, law, or even agriculture, and other fields. Cuba is noted for its beautiful and modern buildings as a result of students practicing their professions right at home. Cement is used extensively in homes. The university is government controlled, and Lito recommends it highly.

On Dating

Adalberto likes to hang out the sign "Gone Fishing" a lot. He plays some golf also as a pastime. One thing that Lito likes in the US is our way of dating. In Cuba a couple always has a chaperon while dating if the two parties are of high social status. Lito emphatically says that he does not like that custom of his country. He favors the American style of dating very much. The government is not too well understood by our friend, but he does not agree with it either.

Automobiles are not manufactured in Cuba. Thus US cars are very familiar to Lito. Movies are of both Spanish and American filming. Translation is commonly seen on the movie screen in Cuba. Other

AC Senior's Poem To Be Published

The National Poetry Association has recently announced that a poem written by an ACC student, John H. Wells, has been accepted for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

John, a senior from Batesville, Va., submitted three poems to the Association. His winning poem, entitled "This Moment Is Forever," will be published in the next issue of the Collegiate.

This annual Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the college men and women of America, representing every section of the country. The Association stated that selections were made from thousands of poems submitted. Our congratulations go to John on this honor.

3 Floats Awarded $30.00 In Prizes

By BILLIE ANN CREECH

A float jointly sponsored by Sigma Rho Phi and Omega Chi captured first prize in the recent Homecoming parade. Their theme was "Education Is The Power Of A Nation." The float featured two wheels with the larger one representing subjects offered in college and a smaller one representing the different professions. Red and white were the colors used on the float shaped to simulate the new classroom building. Bob Whitely was chairman of the float, which won $15.00 as its prize.

Phi Kappa Alpha cruised in second with a float in the shape of a ship. The boat was named "Miss Fifi" and the theme of the float was "Phi Kappa Cruises with ACC." Blue and white were the principal colors. Second prize was $10.00.

Capturing the $5.00 third prize was the Business Club float. It was divided into two sections showing the machinery and furniture of an office of days gone by and another office with all of today's modern equipment.

These were the best of many floats in what many have termed one of ACC's best Homecoming parades. There were a number of unusual floats, which showed that a lot of ingenuity and hard work had gone into the Homecoming Parade.

Sigma Alpha Puts Juke-Box In Bohunk

By FRANK PEELE

In early October a letter from Sigma Alpha Fraternity was sent to the administration. The letter was seeking permission to place a juke-box in the Bohunk. Since Twettie had mentioned that he was not going to have one in the Bohunk, the fraternity felt that one would add enjoyment for the students using the Bohunk facilities.

Several weeks after the letter had been received in the office, Sigma Alpha received a reply stating that the concession for the jukebox had been granted, and one was placed in the student union.

The funds from the juke-box will be equally divided between the Student Alumni Center and Sigma Alpha. The juke-box is being bought by the fraternity, although it receives only half the funds.

Sigma Alpha feels that the new machine has added much to the atmosphere of the Bohunk and reports that its share of the jukeable to provide a wide variety of music.

The Student Center committee reports that its share of the juke-box funds will be spent on improvements for the Center.

Mrs. Speight Named Director Of Bohunk

Mrs. Louise Speight, assistant dean of women, has recently been named as director of the Bohunk. She will supervise and direct all policies laid out by the Bohunk governing board as well as control the day to day operation.

Her office will be located in what formerly was Miss Ward's office. Miss Ward has moved back to the girls' dormitory, locating her office in Mrs. Speight's old office. (Confusing, isn't it?) Mrs. Speight will continue her duties as assistant dean of women.
