Students Await Greek Bids

By JIM BISHOP
Collegiate Editor

Rush Week, the busy time each year when freshmen and new students become the toast of the campus and are sought after by the Greek Letter organizations, was drawing to a close today.

Late this afternoon fraternity presidents will be turning over the list of prospective pledges to the Dean of Men of the college, John H. Rich, at a meeting in the office of John E. Weems, Director of Student Activities. The lists have been worked over all week as the organizations have prepared invitations to those students they would like to see affiliated with their groups.

Tomorrow the campus sorority presidents will go through the same ritual, turning over their bid lists to the Dean of Women, Miss Sarah Bain Ward.

Monday morning, after a week-end of anxious waiting, students will pick up bids at the campus post office. Then they will know the organizations that have invited them to become members.

Beginning Monday, these students receiving bids will have three days to make up their minds. Anytime during the three days they may go to the office of Mr. Weems in the Administration Building and turn in their decisions. Fraternity presidents said today they hope prospective pledges will make their decisions as quickly as possible.

No acceptances after 5 p.m. Wednesday will be taken at Mr. Weems' office, it was explained. As soon as a student accepts the bid he is asked to begin wearing the fraternity or sorority colors that are enclosed with the bid. This will show other students that he plans to affiliate with the group whose colors he is wearing.

As soon as possible after acceptance, each student pledging should see the head of the fraternity or sorority he is planning to join in order to make his intentions known to the organization.

Many of the fraternity and sorority groups are planning formal pledge installation ceremonies on Thursday, it was announced. They will take place at the homes of the fraternities.

Sammy White, president of the Interfraternity Council, said today that Rush Week has been a "tremendous success." "The entire program ran very smoothly," White said. "I hope that all students took advantage of this program. A lot of work went into it, both on the part of students and faculty members."

White said that students planning to affiliate with fraternities and sororities should study the I.F.C. regulations so as to be better prepared for membership.

White said that no bids will be mailed out to day students. "All bids must be picked up at the campus post office," he said.

Fewer bids are being issued this year, it was pointed out. Fraternities and sororities decided early in the program that they would not send a bid to any student who did not show a genuine interest in the organization wishing to have him as a member.

"I believe this will give us more active groups in the long run," White observed. "Although we would like all students to belong to Greek letter groups it is not a good practice to invite new members who do not seem to be interested enough to make the kind of member that is needed to strengthen the organizations."

Freshmen End Balloting For New Class Officers

The Freshman Class, Tuesday, conducted the run-off election for the offices of Secretary and Treasurer. The primary election failed to give a majority to the two top candidates for either of these offices. This made necessary the run-off election which was held at the beginning of Freshman Orientation group meetings.

Winner in the contest for Secretary was Miss Margaret Walker of Raleigh. She defeated Miss Ann Russell of Monks - Corner, S. C. Victor in the race for Treasurer was Miss Jo Ann Ellis of Wilson. She won over Miss Elizabeth Bell, also of Wilson.

In the primary election the winner for the office of President was James Boswell of Wilson. The victor in the contest for Vice-President in the primary was Hubert Westbrook of Raleigh.

This year's election of Freshman Class officers was a unique one. In the past a general meeting of the class had been called, and candidates were nominated and elected during this meeting. This year the freshmen balked at this quick election and demanded time to consider the candidates before making choices.

Fall Dead Week Is Postponed

Atlantic Christian College's annual fall semester Dead Week, scheduled to be observed next week, has been postponed, it was announced today.

Actually the decision was made Tuesday. Miss Sarah Bain Ward, Dean of Women at the college, made the announcement in the absence of John E. Weems, Director of Student Activities. Mr.

Spot Check Shows Students Parking Cars Improperly

By BOB COLLINS

Upon hearing that the apparent seriousness of the parking problem on the Atlantic Christian College campus had caused a great deal of discussion among the students, The Collegiate made a spot check of the available parking spaces near the campus on Tuesday morning.

The findings of this check showed that a great deal of the parking space is not being utilized properly.

Along Whitehead Avenue between Lee and Gold streets there were two instances of one car using the space that two could have occupied. Along Deans Street between Lee and Gold there was one instance of this improper use of parking space.

In the lot that was formerly occupied by the old science building there was one car parked perpendicular to the drive way. Another was parked directly in the driveway in front of this car. The space occupied by these two cars could have been used by six others if they had been properly parked. The car parked in the driveway also prevented other cars from entering the rest of the lot and using that space.

In the space behind the dining hall the cars were parked properly

Sophs Select Committee

By BILL THOMAS

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class, held in Howard Chapel last Tuesday, Miss Elizabeth Winborne, a member of the class, was selected to serve as the contestant in the Homecoming Queen's Contest.

In other action the class was told by the president, Steve Mercer, that a special committee would be appointed to prepare and build a class float for the Homecoming Parade to be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, November 22.

Later this week Mercer announced the selection of the committee. Members of the committee are Miss Peggy Pittman, chairman, Ed Mercer, Bob Matthews, Bob White, Miss Louise Wells, Miss Annette Fuller, Miss Karen Lachowich, Miss Mary Sue Littrell, Bill Shouldice, Bill Thomas, Thomas Vick, Miss Jean Bazemore, Miss Shirley Baird, and Miss Nancy Forbes.

Dr. G. A. Constantine was elected at the class meeting to serve as faculty advisor.

Miss Winborne was named the class's contestant in the Queen's Contest as the result of a run-off. Her opponent was Miss Nancy Forbes.

The class treasurer, Miss Bette Pomfrey, reported that the class has $92 in the treasury.

Seniors Name Contestant

In the regular meeting of the Senior Class Tuesday, the class members selected a candidate for Homecoming Queen and appointed a committee to design the homecoming float.

Selected to represent the Senior Class as Homecoming Queen candidate was Miss Larue Matthews from Angier. Miss Matthews will compete with the other candidates in the contest which will be climaxed with the crowning of the queen at half time of the basketball game Friday, November 21.

The committee appointed to design the float will be headed by James Holland, Senior Class Vice-President. Serving on the committee will be Rufus Outland, Pat Wright, Miss Glenn Nowell, and Miss Carolyn Miles.

Class president Steve Ginn urged the entire class to participate in

Juniors Pick Float Group

By RALPH MESSICK

The Junior Class at its meeting Tuesday morning nominated its float committee for the Homecoming Parade November 22.

Chosen for this committee were Robert Collins, Miss Carol Austin, and Miss Patt Murray. Samuel White, president of the Junior class, urged all members of the class to submit drawings and ideas for the float to these people. "The success of our entry," White reminded the class, "depends upon the effort of all Junior Class men and women and not upon the work of just a few."

Also at the meeting, Miss Gayle Joyner was elected Junior class representative for Homecoming Queen. Others nominated were Miss Joan Overton and Miss Betty Boyette.

The officers of the class said they were happy to see the meeting so very well attended. The reading room of the library, where the meeting was held, was filled and students were standing in the hall. "The next step," White suggested, "is to work for an increase in response and interest in the activities that the Junior Class is sponsoring."

College Calls For Bids On New Men's Dormitory

Last week Atlantic Christian College advertised for bids for the construction of its new Men's dormitory.

Deadline for bids has been set on Wednesday, November 12. On that day the bids will be opened at a meeting in the Faculty Lounge of the Administration Building.

Construction is expected to start on the building sometime in December. It will be constructed on property at the corner of Deans and Gold Streets. The construction site is the location of the old college science building which has now been demolished.

The four story structure was designed by Small and Boaz, Architects, of Raleigh.

It will be of contemporary design. Construction plans call for the building to be constructed either by conventional methods or by the Lift - Slab method, depending on which bid is lowest. The Lift - Slab method was used in the construction of both the Administration Building and the Classroom Building at the college.

Plans call for the new building to house 144 men students. All dormitory rooms will be located on the second, third and fourth floors with the ground floor to house a large lounge, storage and laundry rooms and housemother's apartment.

The completion date is expected to be about January 1, 1960, making it possible for the building to be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the second semester of next year.

Assembly Programs Announced

The Concert and Assembly Committee has just released a schedule of assemblies for 1958-59. These assemblies are in addition to the advisors' meetings on the first and third Tuesdays. The only remaining assembly in October will be held on October 28 with the Student Cooperative Association in charge.

Darrell Harbaum, member of the ACC Faculty, is committee chairman.

One of the country's leading hypnotists, Dr. Franz J. Polgar, will present a program in Howard Chapel on November 5 at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Polgar holds degrees of Doctor of Psychology and Doctor of Economics acquired in his native Hungary. Polgar figures he has put more than a million people to sleep and finds younger people his best subjects.

On the morning of November 11, the assembly will feature Jerry and Yvonne Koehler, "stars that gleam on the trampoline." The audience will see acrobatics at its best, in addition to precision balancing on the stage and clever tricks on the trampoline. On the evenings of November 13 and 14 the Stage and Script will present its play. November 25 has been turned over to the Campus Christian Association for the Thanksgiving program.

Returning to the campus December 1 at 7:30 p.m. will be Britain's Musical Ambassador, William Cope. Upperclassmen will remember Mr. Cope for his witticisms and ability to play the guitar, piano, and accordion. Mr. Harbaum and the College Band will also share the spotlight on this program.

Jeff Hayes, creator of the "Chip" comic strip will come to the campus for a morning program on December 9. Students and faculty will get a look over the shoulder of one of America's most versatile cartoonists and see how he gets his ideas and prepares his comic strip. In addition to "Chip" other cartoons by Mr. Hayes are "Silent Sam," "Witty Kitty," "Seems Like Yesterday," "Pop," and "Ad-
