Matthews Enters Race For Top Campus Post

Robert D. Matthews, Atlantic Christian College junior from Winston-Salem, today announced that a petition calling for his nomination as a candidate for President of the Atlantic Christian College Cooperative Association, has been submitted.

Matthews said the petition was submitted to the Executive Board of the association late this week. "I am proud to be a candidate for the highest elective office a student can aspire to on the Atlantic Christian College campus," Matthews said.

"When first approached by several friends, I had mixed emotions about making the race," Matthews explained. "But, after thinking it over, I considered this to be an honor and obligation that I should not turn down."

Matthews said he is still working out a platform for his race in the election. "I will announce that in the near future," he said. "My decision to enter the race has come at a time that has made it necessary to move very quickly, and I would rather have more time to think out the needed reforms to make a platform than I have at the present time," he said.

Matthews has been an active campus leader since he first enrolled at the college. A religion and history major, Matthews is a

Seniors Announce Plans To Give Paved Walkway

The Senior Class, at its meeting held last week, voted to present to Atlantic Christian College a paved walk which will extend across the campus from the Administration Building to the Science and Mathematics Building.

The decision to give the walk as a gift to the college came after members of a special committee, appointed by John Strickland, president of the Senior Class, announced that the Campus Beautification Committee recommended the walk as being in the college's plans for future improvement.

Members of the class decided that the walk would be more appropriate as a gift to the college than the previously considered present of a flagpole. It was pointed out to the members of the class that the gift of a flagpole to the college would present many difficulties to the school.

In further business at the meeting, the class decided to hold its dinner dance at the American Legion Hall. The food for the occasion will be supplied by Parker's Barbecue. The class also voted to invite the "Blue Notes," a combo from Kinston, to present the music for the occasion.

Hemby Issues Call For Interviews

James B. Hemby, Jr., Director of Admissions and Religious Activities, of Atlantic Christian College, announced this week that a representative of the Fairfax County school system of Virginia will be on campus March 8, to interview prospective teachers.

Mr. Hemby asked that all students interested in teaching in the Fairfax County system contact him immediately for an appointment for an interview.

Mr. Hemby also announced that any students interested in taking civil service examinations for positions with the United States Government contact him immediately.

Old Houses On College Campus Being Razed To Provide Parking

Plans for the alleviation of the Atlantic Christian College campus parking problem are being carried out at the present time, Milo L. Adams, Business Manager of the college, announced today.

The beginning of this action is the removal of the house located on Gold Street next to the Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity House. This building is the property of the college, Mr. Adams said.

Mr. Adams said that the building is being razed because of its age as well as to build the parking lot. The parking lot will extend back to Woodard Street.

The razing of the house is only a portion of the long range plan for complete removal of the parking problem on the ACC campus. These plans also call for the razing of two or more of the frame apartment buildings located on the southeast corner of Gold and Dean streets.

The same company that is at present removing the house will also raze the apartment buildings, Mr. Adams said.

This action was recommended by the Administrative Council in October. At that time John W. Stair, Director of Student Life at ACC, said that there are two main reasons for the ACC parking problem. One of these reasons, he said, is the increased size of the faculty and student body. Even the faculty parking lot has become overcrowded.

Another reason for the problem, lies in the fact that a larger percentage of college people possess automobiles today than ever before. Because of these facts the present project was undertaken.

member of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity. He is currently serving as leadership chairman of his fraternity.

A student minister, Matthews is currently serving the Silver Hill Christian Church near Grantsboro. He is a member of the Circle K Club, Representative to the Men's Dormitory Council, member of the ACC Band, former member of the ACC Chorus, and member of the Choir at the First Christian Church in Wilson.

Matthews also announced today that Bobby Riley, ACC senior and former treasurer of the ACC Cooperative Association, will serve as his campaign manager.

"If elected to this highest of offices on our campus, I will strive to do my best to serve all the students and faculty members," Matthews said. "Leadership will mean much to our campus family in the days ahead. I hope to be able to provide a part of that leadership if the voters feel that I am qualified," he said.

Matthews is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Matthews of Winston-Salem.

Four Nominations For Presidency Made By Board

The Executive Board of the Atlantic Christian College Cooperative Association held one of its longest sessions of the year this week in the Discipliana Room.

After much deliberation on the qualifications of a person for the presidential candidacy of the Cooperative Association, the executives discovered that the board's announcement of last week that sophomores were eligible for presidential candidacy was a mistake. The board announced that anyone seeking candidacy must be at least a Junior in good standing.

Nominations Made

When the floor was open for nominations, the first person nominated to the board for the top seat in student-faculty government was T. Riley. It was explained that there was no need of the executives nominating Riley because his nomination had already been made by petition and that all petitions would be accepted and reviewed at the next board meeting, March

Vocations Meet To Open Today; Banquet Tonight

The Annual Church Vocations Conference of Atlantic Christian College begins today with registration in the lobby of the Classroom Building at 4 p.m.

The purpose of the two-day program is to enlist outstanding high school students into the ranks of full-time Christian service. With this goal in mind the conference will be held to aid young people in considering their choice of a life's vocation.

The main speaker for the Conference will be Dr. Herman Norton, Dean of the Disciples Divinity

Norton Out

Rev. Allan R. Sharp, Acting Chairman of the Department of Religion and Philosophy announced late yesterday that Dr. Herman Norton, who was scheduled to be the featured speaker of the Church Vocations Conference will not be able to attend.

Dr. Norton was forced to cancel the engagement because of critical illness of his wife.

Mr. Sharp said that he will deliver the address at the banquet tonight and that Eugene Purcell, member of the faculty of ACC will deliver the address at the Saturday session.

House of Vanderbilt University. Dr. Norton will deliver the address at the opening session of the Vocations Conference held tonight at 7 p. m. in Hardy Dining Hall. Dr. Norton will also speak at the session to be held Saturday morning in the Classroom Building.

Allan R. Sharp, Acting Chairman of the Department of Religion and Philosophy and Director of the Vocations Conference, said that a large part of the success of the program will depend upon the efforts of the full-time Christian service students presently enrolled at ACC.

May, it was announced by B. B. Plyler, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Purpose of the week, Mr. Plyler said, is "to emphasize to our citizens the importance of higher education in general, and specifically to spotlight the great importance of having an institution of higher education in the community."

Wilson is the home of Atlantic Christian College, a four-year co-educational institution with 1,200 students.

To Pay Tribute

"A college in a community provides great educational, cultural and economic values," Mr. Plyler said. "That is the reason we would like to pay tribute to the institution that is located here in Wilson."

Mr. Plyler said Lee S. Gliarmis is currently serving as chairman of a College Cooperation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. He said the committee is planning a week-long program of significance during College Appreciation Week.

Others serving on the committee are Nicholas J. Frizzelle, Executive Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Everette Blake, Jr., Wilson insurance executive, and James E. Fulghum, Director of Special Activities at ACC.

Luncheon Planned

During the week the Chamber of Commerce will have its members gather on the ACC campus for a luncheon and a tour of new college facilities. It will be one of the main highlights of the program, it was explained.

The Chamber of Commerce also plans to honor the Atlantic Christian faculty at a dinner during the week, and to invite Civic Clubs in the community to meet on the campus.

Mr. Gliarmis said several other events are being planned and will be announced soon.

Mr. Plyler said the Chamber of Commerce also plans to establish a special scholarship award to be presented during the week each year to the most outstanding senior majoring in business at the college.

Ring Lost

Larry Phares, ACC senior lost a college class ring in the snow in front of the library Wednesday afternoon. Phares asked that if anyone finds the ring, they return it to him.
