Executive Board Tells Candidates, Drops Dead Week

The Co-op board received and approved the following slate of nominees for Co-op offices at its regular meeting on April 2: Sandra Freedman, vice-president (as of publication unopposed); Janice Lamm and Pat Hines, secretary; Richard Rivers, treasurer; Jerry Ridling, Pine Knot editor; Hatten Hodges, Collegiate editor; Georgia Ann Willard, Pine Knot business manager; Alice Shepard, collegiate business manager; Johnnie Owens and Tempie Griffin, head cheerleaders; John Todd, WACR station manager, James Black, WACR business manager. It was also announced that David Peebles would run for president of the North State Student Government Association. Students are reminded that further nominees will be accepted by petition of 20 signatures; deadline for petition nominations is set for April 9.

It was requested that station WACR be placed on an equal constitutional basis with the Pine Knot and Collegiate as a constituent organization of the Cooperative Association. No definite action was taken.

A motion was passed to drop spring semester dead week before final exams, 1962.

Announcements were made pertaining to the April 27 and 28 convention of the National Student Association Regional meeting and the April 29 and 30 North State Student Government Association conclave. Delegates are currently being considered with selections to be made final after next weeks elections.

Circle K Sponsors Safety Campaign

Posters, a wrecked car, and speech last Tuesday in the gym, and a driving rodeo, marked Circle K's first "Safety Week" which ran from April 2-7.

With posters placed on all bulletin boards on campus, and the wrecked car in front of the dining hall, the Circle K began last Monday to emphasize the importance of safety both on campus and on the highways, reminding students that a car is a valuable asset, yet one which brings damage, loss of lives, and misery when misused.

Tuesday, the club sponsored a highway safety program in the gym. Highway Patrolman, Louis Taylor, a veteran of 12 years of service, spoke to the student body on the ten commandments of highway safety.

A driving rodeo was held Thursday afternoon in the parking lot, giving persons on campus a chance to test their driving skills. Cash prizes of $7 and $3 were given for first and second prizes.

Young Demos Hear Tom Woodard Discuss Functions, Policies, Goals

The Young Democrats Club met last Tuesday night, March 27, 1962 in the recreation room of Harper Hall. Tom Woodard, Wilson County representative in the north Carolina Legislature, was the guest speaker for the evening.

The main topics of discussion were the functions, policies, and goals of North Carolina government and tentative government plans for the future.

Mr. Woodard was chairman of the appropriations committee last year, which is considered to be one of the most powerful and influential chairmanships in the state house of representatives. He is presently seeking election as Speaker of the House.

When asked how this years legislative felt about the food tax, Mr. Woodard said that, in general, it had created was much dissatisfaction.

The biggest reasons for this dissatisfaction, he stated, was that it had not raised the predicted amount of funds.

In regard to the recent defeat of the bond election, the guest speaker had many comments to make. He pointed out that the bond issues were originated by ex-Governor Luther Hodges, not Terry Sanford. Sanford only carried out the campaign for them. However, Mr. Woodard said that he believed that Governor Sanford did not work hard enough for the bond election which was one of the reasons that it had failed.

Another reason for the defeat of the Bond election, he said, was a heavy barrage of television advertisements against the Bond issues. These advertisements were, in the main, payed for by the conservative group who backed Beverly Lake in the Democratic primary last May.

After Mr. Woodard's talk, he answered questions of club members pertaining to North Carolina politics.
