Fund Drive Begins March 18

Exec Board Hears Cobb

The Executive Board held its regular weekly meeting in the Classroom Building Monday night and heard Mr. James V. Cobb, Chairman of the Concert and Assembly Committee. It also passed a resolution endorsing the student fund drive, and authorized the sending of a representative to Greensboro College for a ceremony dedicating the new Student Union Building of that school.

Mr. James Cobb, acting as Chairman of the Concert and Assembly Committee, appeared before the board with a request relating to the procurement of lecturers and musical groups. He asked that the committee be allowed to obligate funds a year in advance in order to ensure getting the best possible talent for special occasions on campus. He cited the recent failure to secure a singing group for Homecoming as an example of what might be avoided by being able to contract well in advance. He also suggested that the board request assistance from the Board of Trustees in paying for first-rate entertainment. The board, after considerable discussion, voted to allow Mr. Cobb to obligate a maximum of $1600 for advance negotiations.

The board, voting unanimously, passed a resolution endorsing the student fund drive scheduled to begin Feb. 18. The details of this drive were explained at a prior meeting.

In compliance with a request by Greensboro College, the sending of a representative to a Feb. 14 ceremony dedicating the new Student Union Building of that school was authorized by the board. Students from colleges throughout the State were asked to attend and to bring with them a pennant from their respective schools to be hung in the new building.

Homecoming Queen

Crowned as Homecoming Queen Feb. 8 at Atlantic Christian College was Laura Smith of Bolton, N. C. Sponsored by Sigma Pi Fraternity, the freshman coed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith also of Bolton. Miss Patti McAbee was named first runnerup and Miss Annette Banks was second runnerup.

Chariot Race

The men of Sigma Pi challenge all social Greek Letter Fraternities and Sisters to a chariot race, to be held after Greek Week. If interested and for further information contact Doug Swain, at the Sigma Pi House.

JERRY ASHWORTH, a team captain for the student fund drive, receives a pledge from Ray Smith. The student body is being asked to participate fully in the program, scheduled to open Feb. 18, in order to show outside donors that AC students take a real interest in their school.

Everyone Urged To Act In Student Fund Drive

What value do you place on a college education? How much do you think your degree from Atlantic Christian will mean 15 years from now? Do you think a student has any responsibility for the future of education? Are you willing to help Atlantic Christian in its development program?

Captains and workers will be seeking answers to these and other questions, with the beginning of the Student Fund Drive, Monday, March 18.

No monetary goal has been set for the drive, but every effort will be made to have 100 per cent student participation in the campaign.

Well over 150 students have indicated a desire to serve as campaign workers. These students will personally contact each member of the student body and discuss the reasons for the campaign, what use will be made of the funds, and how the success or failure of the Student Drive will affect the college and the individual student.

"The Student Drive, as a part of the over-all development program, will have an important bearing on the rest of the campaign," commented Thomas J. Hackey, Jr., General Chairman. "If our captains and workers throughout the state can tell of 100 per cent participation by students of ACC, it will be a tremendous selling point."

"All of us realize the needs for the capital campaign," said Hatten Hodges, chairman of the Student Drive. "The present gymnasium does not fulfill the requirements of the physical education department, nor is it capable of handling the college's present intramural and inter-collegiate schedules. The Art and Music Buildings have long been delayed and are necessary for the all-round development of the college. The Bohunk, though adequate for an enrollment of 500, cannot fulfill the needs of a student body of 1250. The cafeteria is having the same problems."

"With thirteen colleges within a 100 mile radius of Atlantic Christian, the college, out of necessity, must strive to equal or exceed the standards of those colleges and universities in close proximity to it."

The Drive will be conducted on a pledge basis, with a convenient 36-month payment periods being arranged. In the extended period, the pledge can be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, annually, or according to any schedule the donor may prefer.

Pledges of large amounts will not be expected nor sought in the student drive. Each student will be encouraged to give something, regardless of the amount. The important ideas behind the student campaign is to prove by 100 per cent, giving that students at ACC have genuine interest and concern for their college.

Dr. Winfred E. Garrison Is Presented By CCA During Religious Emphasis Event

Dr. Winfred E. Garrison, head of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Houston, will be on campus for a two-day visit next week. Dr. Garrison will open the CCA's program of religious emphasis for this semester and will be

ACC Plans Debate Against Harvard

The Forensic Arts Society of Atlantic Christian has acknowledged the debate challenge from Harvard University. The Society has selected the affirmative of the debate which will center on the topic: "The authenticity of Folk Medicine as an effective remedy in consideration with other fields of modern medicine." The Society also received volunteers for participation in the Lenoir - Rhyne speech events in March.

At the next regular meeting of the Society, (Thurs. Feb. 21, 7 p.m.) Christopher Lange will present a eulogy of Robert Frost and James Boswell will present a reading of William Cullen Bryant's "Thanatopsis." All members and interested students are urged to attend these bi-weekly meetings of the Society.

Greek Week To Be Feb. 27

Greek Week, headed by Gareth Jones, is an annual event on the campus of Atlantic Christian College, will begin Feb. 27 and terminate March 2. Events that have been planned by the Inter-Fraternity Council are the Greek sing, Stunt Night, Dance and Breakfast, and a Concert.

The Greek sing will be the initial event of the week taking place Feb. 27, Wednesday evening. It will be conducted by Phi Sigma Tau and Alpha Sigma Phi. Each fraternity and sorority will enter a song and close their entry by singing another song which pertains to their sister or brotherhood. Trophies will be given to the sorority and fraternity who give the best performance.

On Thursday, Feb. 28, Omega Chi and Sigma Phi Epsilon will be in charge of a Stunt Night which will take place in Howard Chapel. Each organization will enter a stunt and a talent, and again trophies will be given.

A dance followed by a breakfast at the Country Club will be the events which have been scheduled for Friday night, March 1. The Cataliners will be the featured band. This dance will also take place at the Country Club at 8 o'clock. Sigma Tau Chi and Delta Sigma Phi are in charge of this event.

Activities, at present, for Saturday.

JEROME HINES

A Thousand-Dollar-An-Hour concert will be presented in Wilson Sunday afternoon when Jerome Hines, Metropolitan Opera basso, sings on the Wilson Community Concert series, it was announced here today.

The uniqueness of the event is not limited to the fact that Hines' $2,000 fee for a two-hour concert is considerably above the average wage for Wilson County, according to Donald G. Hinshaw, local Community Concert president.

Rather, Hinshaw said, the event will be unique because it will be a "dramatized" concert in which Hines
