Justice Moore was guest speaker at ACC for the annual observance.

Justice Clifton L. Moore Speaks At Law Day At AC

Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court Clifton L. Moore attacked radical civil rights demonstrations in a speech given during the observance of "Law Day" at Atlantic Christian College last Thursday, April 23.

Justice Moore explained, "The law guarantees them (Negro Citizens) the right to assemble peacefully, to march, to picket in a reasonable amount to give voice to their aspirations. Such things are not denied to any citizen or group of citizens."

He added, however, that Negro citizens "in some quarters have openly conspired to engage in unlawful activities." The speaker gave examples of blocking highways, violating private property rights, interfering with building of schools, violating school attendance laws, and "in some cases resorting to riot and violence."

During his address, Justice Moore introduced a newspaper article from the Associated Press in which FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover had been quoted as saying that a communist influence does exist in the Ne-

Senior Class Heads Hold Dinner Meet

Senior class officers met April 23 at Parker's for a dinner meeting to discuss the role of the class of '64 as alumni of Atlantic Christian College. In attendance were: Oden Latham, president; David Peebles, vice president; George-Anne Willard, secretary; Janice Lamm, senator; and Rex Horne, senator. Horton Godwin, treasurer, could not attend because of a conflicting engagement.

The discussions of the informal meeting centered around ways to implement communication between classmates and between the class and the College. The group tentatively decided that the present class officers would continue to serve the class until the first class reunion, which would be planned for Homecoming weekend two years after graduation or in 1966. At that time new class officers would be elected. Both of these suggestions will be brought before the next senior class meeting to be discussed and voted on.

In order to keep the class of '64 more informed about activities of the class after graduation, George-Anne Willard, class secretary, has asked that all seniors, after graduation, write her about their new jobs, promotion, marriages, births, etc. In turn, she will send them to the alumni director to be placed in the alumni publication, Scope. Her address after graduation will be published in Scope.

Action Taken Last Weekend

The North Carolina Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) meeting in Washington, N. C. on April 25, approved a resolution submitted by the Board of Trustees of Atlantic Christian College to revise its charter to allow the admission of qualified students of all races.

The charter revision had been given formal consideration by the Board of Trustees for the past two years and was sent to the convention with its unanimous recommendation.

The N. C. Convention of Christian

Churches at its 1963 meeting held in New Bern had asked the ACC trustees to consider the charter revision as had the International Convention of Christian Churches in 1962.

The charter revision will become effective upon implementation by the executive committee of the board of trustees.

Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, president of the college, told The Collegiate Tuesday that "we have worked for this for five years and are very happy that the convention has seen fit to ratify the college's charter change in such a way as to permit the college to accept students for admission without regard to race."

The convention also passed a resolution designating Atlantic Christian's C. L. Hardy Library as the permanent depository for the N. C. Disciplina Library, a 16,000-volume library containing history and research on the Christian Church.

Nine ACC Students Enter Art Contest

Nine students in commercial art design at Atlantic Christian College have entered works in St. Regis Paper Company's Fifth Annual Collegiate Packaging Competition. They are vying for prizes totaling $7,625 in cash and savings bonds plus 60 medals and 10 all-expense trips to Chicago, according to Russell Arnold, chairman of the ACC Art Department.

Arnold said that the contest is aimed at stimulating interest on the college level in the field of packaging design. Not only will participating students become eligible for prizes, but more significantly, they will have an opportunity to

Dr. William Tucker Is Author Of History Of J. H. Garrison

Dr. William E. Tucker, chairman of the Department of Religion and Philosophy at Atlantic Christian College, has announced the publication of his book, "J. H. Garrison and Disciples of Christ."

The years between the Civil War and 1930 constitute the most critical period in the history of Disciples of Christ, yet little attempt has been made to understand that era's most prominent leaders, one of whom was J. H. Garrison. For over 60 years he edited and contributed to "The Christian - Evangelist," the journal which became the weekly periodical of the Disciples. An editor with vast influence, he played a significant and sometimes decisive role in the life of his community. This book is more than the story of one man; it is a critical study of the turbulent and transitional era in Disciple history spanned by his editorial career.

The value of this book is enhanced by the extensive use which is made of J. H. Garrison's letters and diaries. This rich collection of source material has only recently been made available for historical research.

Dr. Tucker's interest in J. H. Garrison dates back to his work on his Ph. D. dissertation, which was presented to the faculty of Yale University in 1960. This book grew out of that dissertation.

He holds the B. D. degree from Texas Christian University, and the M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Yale University.

The author notes that "for many years, historians of the Disciples have been preoccupied with the origins of the movement and its early leaders, particularly Alexander Campbell. 'J. H. Garrison and Disciples of Christ' describes and interprets the neglected middle period which links the ages of Stone, Scott, and the Campbells to our time."

DR. TUCKER IS AUTHOR — Dr. William E. Tucker, (above) chairman of the Religion and Philosophy Departments at Atlantic Christian College, has recently written a book entitled "J. H. Garrison and Disciples of Christ." The book depicts the history of J. H. Garrison's association with the Disciples of Christ from the Civil War until 1930.
