NUMBER FIVE

Collegiate Motion Defeated

A motion stating "that the Executive Board recommend to Mr. Milton Rogerson and the Publicity Committee to look into the possibility to have someone to oversee and advise the editor and the staff of the Atlantic Christian College newspaper, The Collegiate," was defeated by a nine to six vote at the Monday night meeting of the Executive Board.

The motion was made by David Webb, Junior Class President, who felt that a cartoon and an editorial appearing in last week's Collegiate was a personal attack against him and other individual members of the Board. Webb proceeded to read a statement which charged that a collaboration of individuals, Brent Hill, Dwight Wagner, Richard Surles and Sammy Jones, had conspired to print sarcastic and biased statements misrepresenting him and other members of the Executive Board.

Following the statement a very heated debate took place. Dwight Wagner, assistant editor of The Collegiate, stated at the board meeting the position of the student newspaper on the matter.

Wagner said, "The cartoon and editorial had only been offered in the line of constructive criticism, and in no way were they meant to depict personal members of the Executive Board." He further pointed out to the board that a motion such as this one was one of the most flagrant violations possible against a democratic form of government. He said, "It is essential for a newspaper not to be censored in any way in order that it might act as a check and balance on the government."

The debate continued for some 30 minutes before the motion came up for a vote.

At the beginning of the meeting President Lee Horne made the following statement to the board:

"Board members, we have been called by The Collegiate a board that is becoming a rubber stamp on too many issues, and that by and large individual members have not used their good minds to express personal opinions, but have merely voted. Also, that we don't have the ability to regulate and discipline ourselves through the exercise of reason.

"This is our eighth meeting since our elections. Now is the time to evaluate ourselves in light of our responsibilities as responsible leaders. If we were to write our evaluation as to — 'How have I represented my fellow students as their leader?' we might fall short of our expectations.

"Why?
"Is it because we are passive and complacent? Have we shown the initiative that is needed? In examining

ACC Professor Kalmbach Dies; Funeral Services Held In Chapel

Associate Professor Frank Kalmbach, 50, of the Business Department at Atlantic Christian College, died Monday morning.

Kalmbach, a native of Philadelphia, served in the Army infantry for two years and was in the South Pacific during World War II.

He received a B. A. degree in Journalism from Temple University in 1947. He studied economics and history, taught and conducted economic research at Mexico City College in 1948. He also studied in British Honduras. Kalmbach received the M. A. Degree in economics and history from the University of Texas.

During 1962 and 1963, Kalmbach taught at N. C. Wesleyan College, Rocky Mount. He came to ACC as a visiting professor during the first summer session and remained on the faculty. He had also taught at Nichols College, Dudley, Mass., McNeese State College, Lake Charles, La., and Junier College of Kansas City, Mo.

Kalmbach was married to the former Maybelle Moss of Kansas City and had one daughter, Lupita.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. last Wednesday in Howard Chapel. College Chaplain Dan Hensley, assisted by Rev. Lawrence Avent, conducted the services.

Mock Election Will Be Held

The Junior Class, the Young Democrats Club and the Young Republicans Club of Atlantic Christian College will jointly sponsor a mock election on October 26 and 27 for the Governor of North Carolina and the President and Vice President of the United States.

All students, faculty and members of the administration are eligible to vote for the candidates of their choice.

The student body votes will not be tabulated separately from the faculty and administration votes.

"This election is held for the sole purpose of the general opinion of ACC," according to David Webb, president of the Junior Class.

Cheerleaders Are Elected

In last week's election, the student body of Atlantic Christian College selected four veteran cheerleaders and four new members to comprise the 1964-65 ACC cheerleading squad.

The returning veterans of last year's squad who were re-elected are: Gina Allen, A Senior from Farmville, N. C.; Lynda Burgess, a Senior from Niagara Fall, New York; Janice Cousins, an Senior from Murrell's Inlet, South Carolina; and Reba Barefoot, a Junior from Dunn, N. C.

The new members added to the squad are: Sandra Bass, a Junior from Nashville, N. C.; Betty Brinson, a Junior from Mt. Rainier, Maryland; Vicki Joyner, a sophomore from Durham, N. C.; and Vivian Tonn, a freshman from Durham, N. C.

The head cheerleader is Kathryn Webb, a Junior from Wilson. She was elected in a campus-wide election last spring.

Three Attend Design Meeting In Atlanta, Ga.

Three of Atlantic Christian College's administrative officers, Dr. L. H. Swindell Jr., dean of the college, Robert E. Bennett, dean of students and Otis M. Coefield, head librarian, attended a college design seminar in Atlanta, Ga. last Monday and Tuesday.

The seminar was sponsored by the School Facilities Council; Institute for Higher Education, The University of Georgia; and the School Planning Laboratory, The University of Tennessee.

One of the major concerns of college and university administrators and planners is the campus building program. With more students, more faculty, and more automobiles, few administrative officials can escape the demanding and sometimes excruciating problem associated with campus planning. While attending the seminar, the group took part in discussions related to programs, building, environment and equipment.

John Martino To Be Here

John Martino, whose book I Was Castro's Prisoner which is based upon forty months spent in Cuban prisons, will be on campus Thursday for two addresses. Martino will speak at 10:20 a.m. and 8:15 p.m. in Howard Chapel under the auspices of the Concert and Assembly Committee.

Martino was arrested during a business trip to Cuba in 1959 and during his months as a political prisoner he met many prominent Cuban citizens who had been imprisoned by Fidel Castro for their opposition to Communist policies.

Upon his return to the United States Martino collaborated with Nathaniel Weyl in the writing of I Was Castro's Prisoner. Weyl's own books include Red Star Over Cuba, The Reconquest of Mexico, and The Negro in American Civilization.

In his appearances here, Martino will discuss his arrest, trial, and

Collegiate Writer Reviews First Play

By ELWOOD VANN

In acting, as in other areas of human endeavor, if experience and inherent ability is present, these characteristics tend to display themselves in any situation.

Such was the case during the Stage and Script presentation of Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer." This club is fortunate indeed to be able to call on the talents of such actors as George Farr and Fred Barber. Their background in acting is evident from the competent manner in which they carried their respective roles.

If anyone else but Penny Kirk had been cast as Mrs. Hardcastle, this character would definitely have lost much of its power. Her contribution was invaluable to the success of the play.

It would be hard to decide as to who should be cited for giving the best all around performance. It is certain that Maureen Ryan would be foremost in this competition. A relatively new member of the drama club, the quality of her projection was above reproach. The audience found this quality of great value in following the chain of events.

The programs for this performance, which was sponsored by the Wilson Kiwanis Club, were more impressive than past programs.

The recorded music was effective in setting the mood and period of the play, but its effectiveness was weakened in that the volume was often too loud. Perhaps greater use of the organ, as live music, should be made at future performances.

Possibly the most prevalent criticism of the performance is the generally mediocre quality of projection. Certainly the 18th Century English accents were necessary, but many players forgot their most important obligation — that to communicate with the audience. For the most part his difficulty could have been improved by speaking more slowly.

Students Urged To Use Placement Service At ACC

A college placement service has been established at Atlantic Christian College with Robert J. Washer as director. Washer is also Dean of Men at ACC and his office will serve as a joint facility for both the placement service and the office of Dean of Men.

All Seniors are urged to register immediately for this service which will be primarily concerned with notifying graduating students of job opportunities for both teaching and non-teaching professions. "This service is free for students and alumni and can also be used as a reference for prospective occupations," Washer notes.

In the past placement services at ACC have been handled by the various academic departments. All departments are now under one centralized service.

Among services offered to students by this newly formed placement agency are personal interviews with the director of placement during office hours, the availability of descriptive literature and applications on organizations and school systems, and the mailing of student credentials to prospective employers upon request by the students.

Rooms 117 and 119 of the Music Building have been set aside for the purpose of interviews by the placement director.

Japan Philharmonic Will Be In Raleigh

On Friday evening, October 23, at 8 p.m., in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh, the Japan Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and Isaac Stern, violinist, will be presented in joint concert. This program is the second in the current series under the auspices of The Friends of the College. Although only those holding season memberships are admitted to these concerts, students are reminded that a good number of tickets are available.
