John Webb Addresses Students In Observance of U.N. Day

By ANN JOHNSON

Tuesday in an assembly in Howard Chapel Mr. John Webb, a local attorney, addressed the freshman class in connection with United Nations Day which was October 24. Introducing Mr. Webb was Mrs. Foy N. Goforth, chairman of UN activities in Wilson.

In his opening statements, Webb said that he thought the U. N. had certainly succeeded well enough to warrant its continuance despite all the controversy. He explained that with the existing class of the two great philosophies of democracy and communism it would be impossible to expect to set up an organization which would settle all differences.

Webb went further to describe the organization of the U. N.

saying that just as the United States system of government is divided, the U. N. is divided into the Legislative, Judicial, and Executive branches. He said that the Legislative branch is the General Assembly of 118 members and that its greatest weakness is that regardless of size or importance each country has only one vote. Webb continued by saying that the Judicial branch, better known as the International Court of Justice or World Court, judges the actions of nations but that it is weak in that it has jurisdiction by permission only. He went on to say that the Executive branch is the Secretary General and his appointees. Webb also described the make-up of the Security Council whose main purpose is the "maintenance of peace."

In conclusion, Webb related many instances in which the U. N. has seen the world through crises among which were those in Suez, Korea, the Congo, Cyprus, Indonesia, and India.

After Webb's address, Dwight Wagner, editor of the Collegiate and a political science major, explained what the Model U.N. is and its purpose. Giving a brief report on last year's Model U. N. in Chapel Hill, he said that each college represented a country and was required to keep within the country's basic political philosophy when voting.

Two ACC Delegates Attend Fall Regional Conference

Two delegates appointed by David Webb, Cooperative Association President, were at U.N.C. Greensboro over the weekend of October 15 and 16, for the Carolinas - Virginia Fall Regional Conference of the National Student Association (NSA). David Hales and Fred Snodgrass were selected primarily because they are on the committee established by the Executive Board to evaluate NSA, and determine whether ACC should remain affiliated with the national organization.

Both Hales and Snodgrass felt greatly rewarded by the experience. They were able to learn much about NSA which will aid them in their work on the committee. The conference was opened by a keynote speech by William G. Long, Dean of Men at U.N.C.- Chapel Hill. In his speech Mr. Long outlined nine student freedoms including a student's right to hear what he wants to, in reference to North Carolina's controversial Speaker-Ban Law.

After Mr. Long's speech, the group representing twenty-one members and observer schools, split into various committees for seminar sessions. Mr. Hales sat on a committee dealing with regulations affecting students, which recommended that ACC make all efforts to insure the establishment of a Student Government. Mr. Snodgrass sat on the Awareness Programs committee, which discussed problems of student interests in several schools. Suggestions were made that ACC seek groups to entertain as well as educate, such as several prominent satirist groups available for campus engagements. Representatives from other schools cited the success of campus radio stations and symposia on topics such as birth control.

After more workshop sessions on the second day of the conference, Al Lowenstein, leader of a national committee to reopen debate on U. S. foreign policy in Asia, spoke to the group. Mr. Lowenstein advocated mass student protests and praised recent student action throughout the country registering discontent with current U.S. Asian policy.

In the final meeting of the conference, reports from each committee were heard. Hales and Snodgrass hope they will be able to make full use of their participation in the conference as they work with the NSA study committee here.

Statement Claims A Violation of Rights

Required chapel was discussed at some length by the Exec Board Monday night after James Coile presented a lengthy statement on the subject.

Coile, a senior religion major, stated that the required chapel for religious purposes was both unconstitutional and a violation of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. He said that this feature went directly against the 1st Amendment of the Constitution concerning religious freedom, and that ACC might lose funds from the Federal government because such religious discrimination went against Article VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

He further recommended that the Board approve the formation of a committee to study the matter.

Larry Poore, president of the men's dorm, moved that such a committee be formed. Speaking for the motion Poore stated that he felt Coile's arguments had some merit, and that such a committee would be worthwhile.

Speaking in opposition, Dean Bennett stated that the matter of required chapel has been studied for some time by a number of college committees and that a report would probably be coming forth in the near future.

Poore's motion passed by a comfortable margin.

In other business, the Board moved into a committee of the whole in order to discuss a proposed survey dealing with the reinstatement of varsity football. This survey among other things asked if the students would be willing to pay an $5 per semester to start a football program.

Discussion on this matter brought out that it would probably cost well over $100,000 to start such a program on this campus, and that this was probably very much out of reach at this time.

Moving out of a committee of a whole, the Board voted not to present this proposed survey to the student body.

At the previous week's meeting the Board approved the sending of a delegation to this year's Model United Nations which will be held at Duke in February.
