

Art Auction To Be Held

Russell Arnold, chairman of the Art Department has announced that the third annual Art Department Auction will be held tonight, Thursday, December 8, at eight o'clock in the lobby of the main classroom building. Funds cleared on the auction will again be contributed towards the publication of CRUCIBLE, a combined literary and art magazine published jointly by the Art and English departments of the college.

Arnold pointed out that, as in previous years, everyone interested in art or in the purchase of worthwhile works of art at nominal prices are invited to attend. At last year's auction over seven hundred dollars were collected for contribution to CRUCIBLE and this year's plans call for the sale of nine hundred dollars worth of art.

Referring to the purpose of the auction, Arnold pointed out that the publication of CRUCIBLE began three years ago and its success has continually increased. It has received considerable praise, and several letters from other colleges, literary and art people, publishers, and other interested parties have even been received heaping praise on the publication. Arnold said that issue no. 1 of vol. 3 of CRUCIBLE will be on sale at the auction. This issue will be the first of the current year, a second issue appearing the

Exec Board

Barry Havens, Student Coordinator, reported to the Executive Board this week on the preparations that are being done for the up-coming State Student Legislature meeting that will be held in Raleigh. Havens reported that work on ACC's bill has already begun. The bill will deal with establishing a better ratio between doctors and patients in state mental health institutions. Havens stated that ACC will probably send ten students to SSL. He also stated that he and the president of the student body attended a interim council meeting of SSL at Greensboro recently. This meeting was held for the purpose of preparing for the SSL meeting and to help schools deal with problems they are having concerning their bills.

Stage & Script Gives Verse Play By Eliot

On Monday and Tuesday Dec. 12th and 13th Stage & Script will present T. S. Eliot's famed verse play "Murder in the Cathedral" in Howard Chapel at 8:15 p.m. as its second major production of the year.

The theme of the play is the martyrdom of St. Thomas a Becket in Canterbury Cathedral on December 29th, 1170 and deals with the same major characters as did the recent movie "Becket." However, Eliot in following the structure of the ancient Greek tragedies, has elected to begin his play just shortly before the final catastrophe in order to focus on Becket's martyrdom and its meanings. Vital to the plot is Becket's victory over temptation much as in the Medieval morality play "Everyman."

"Murder in the Cathedral" was originally written for a festival held at Canterbury in June, 1935 and since that time has remained one of the most popular of all plays in verse. Eliot uses several types of verse in the play, not only for dialogue, but to emphasize certain aspects of the characters. Blank verse is used for the speeches of the priests, the Chorus and Becket with rhymed verse being used for the Tempters to show their sensual and petty qualities. After Becket's murder the Knights explain their reason for committing the act in prose which Eliot uses to symbolize their matter-of-fact and realistic attitudes, with their speeches having overtones of Twentieth Century speech symbolizing the continued refusal of man to accept religion.

Interwoven with the verse are several Gregorian chants and the play's Interlude is in the form of a Christmas Day sermon delivered by the Archbishop. These devices and the repeated use of the rhythms of various chants and introits of the Catholic faith give the play a very religious quality. In keeping with this, the present production is being presented as a religious service and the audience is requested not to applaud at the end of the production and there will be no curtain calls.

The leading role of Becket will be portrayed by Clifford Poole with Reggie Smith, Byron Wyndham, and Robert Noble as priests. The Three Tempters, who reappear at the play's end as the murderers of Becket, are being played by Harold Hummel, Chris Murphy, and Steve Dollar. Almost as important as the role of the Archbishop is the Chorus of the Women of Canterbury made up of Linda Gurley, Doris Green, Sandra Smith, Lillian Barnes, and the four solo choral voices will be Sandra Edwards, Alice Nash, Betsy Milligan, and Jackie Baker.

The production has been designed and directed by Cecil Willis, with the costumes being made by Jackie Baker and Lois Hall, and the setting and lighting being executed by Jon Rucker.

As the play takes place during the Christmas Octave, and as it has a great feeling of this season, there will be no admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Tams Cause Damage To AC

It has been reported that the damage that was done by the Tams when they were in concert at ACC came to a total of $120. As of now no action has been taken against the Tams and it appears doubtful that there is any way to make them reimburse the college for the cost of this damage. However, at a meeting of the SGA Executive Board a resolution was passed recommending that the Tams not be asked to participate in any further college functions. A letter has also been sent to the Tam's booking agency informing them of the conduct displayed by the Tams on our campus.

Special Line Is Canceled

The Food Service Committee met on Thursday, December 1, for one of its regular meetings concerning the operation of the Cafeteria. The main topic for discussion was the problem which had arisen at the Sunday noon meal on November 22nd.

It was pointed out that this was the Sunday before the Thanksgiving holidays and that many more people than usual were on campus that weekend. A problem arose when the Cafeteria became crowded and the special line ran out of food. The Committee discussed the various points of the problem in an effort to prevent it from occurring in the future.

Further discussion concerned the special line at the Sunday meal. The Committee felt that the student body might prefer the exclusion of the special line on Sundays. It was decided that the special line on Sundays will be discontinued beginning with the December 11th meal.

In other matters, the desire to have music in the Cafeteria was emphasized and it was decided to have the record player repaired so that music could be provided. The Committee also emphasized the desire to have students with complaints to speak to them so that these problems can be brought to the attention of the Committee. The members of the Committee are, Dr. Robert Delp, chairman; Lucy Biggs, senior representative; Rhete White, junior representative; Alice Nash, sophomore representative; Mary Lou Wickham, freshman representative.
