1943 Queen Represents ACC Alumni

In 1943 pretty Miss Frances Sermons of Fort Barnwell was crowned as the "Queen of May" during a colorful celebration on the campus of Atlantic Christian College. The lovely senior, along with her May Court of other beautiful coeds, was bestowed with honors equal to those of our Homecoming Queen of today.

During this year's Homecoming, scheduled for Nov. 10-11, the charming lady will once more be in the spotlight when she reigns as the 1967-68 Alumni Queen. She is to appear in the annual Homecoming festivities and will crown the 1967-68 Homecoming Queen.

Following her graduation from Atlantic Christian, she returned to her home in Fort Barnwell where she taught for a year. The following year she moved to Pink Hill where she taught for two years. While teaching in Pink Hill she met a World War pilot who was flying B-24 bombers. The pilot was Graham Turner who today holds the position of vice president of T. A. Turner Company of Pink Hill and Kinston.

Atlantic Christian seems to be pretty much a tradition in the Turner-Sermons family. The new Alumni Queen has two sisters who are graduates of Atlantic Christian.

Ronnie Johnson Takes Title

"Mr. Top Hat" Crowning Highlights Annual Event

Ronnie Johnson of Delta Sigma Phi was crowned "Mr. Top Hat, 1967" at the annual dance Friday night. Approximately 350 people attended the Sigma Sigma Sorority-sponsored event held in the lobby of Hines Hall.

Chosen as second runner-up was Ronnie Dennis of Sigma Pi, and Robert Covington of Sigma Phi Epsilon, second runner-up.

Other candidates for the title included: Glenn White, sponsored by Phi Mu; Yates Miller, Delta Zeta; Steve Love, senior class; Tom Aycock, junior class; Al Cooke, sophomore class; Drew Summerall, freshman class, and Leo Jessup, Alpha Sigma Phi. "The Entertainers" provided music for the affair, and during intermission the audience was thrilled by a kickline of Tri-Sigma girls accompanied by Jimmy Aycock on the piano.

A Colorful Homecoming Is Planned

"A Colorful Calendar" will be the theme for Atlantic Christian's 1967 Homecoming Parade, according to Miss Bobbie Ellis, the student chairman of the Homecoming Steering Committee.

Each organization sponsoring a float will choose a month and design their float around the particular month chosen. Last year's commercials, which preceded the floats, will represent a song which typifies the particular month used for the float.

New Addition

A new addition to this year's epic will be a queens float on which all the homecoming queens will ride during the parade. Two members from each organization sponsoring a candidate will be responsible for working on this float.

Another new feature at homecoming this year will be a new method of crowning the homecoming queen. This year's monarch is to be crowned by Mrs. Frances Sermons Turner, 1967 Alumni Queen. Mrs. Turner was "Queen of May" at ACC in 1943. She will carry out her duties during the Little Anthony and the Imperials' concert beginning at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10.

Busy Day

Saturday, Nov. 11, is to be a busy day for ACC students and alumni. The parade at 11 a.m. will highlight the day. That after-

Elected to serve under Gregg as Tom Stover, vice president. Doug Marlowe, treasurer, and Frances Gladson, Campus Christian Association representative, will continue in their present offices.

Russell Roebuck Elected Head Of Delta Sigma Phi International

Russell T. Roebuck, minister of music and business administration at the First Presbyterian Church here, was elected to a two-year term as president of Delta Sigma Phi International at Mountain Shadows Hotel, Phoenix, Ariz.

Attending the convention with Roebuck were Willie Watts and David Finch, also members of the Delta Iota Chapter of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity. At the national meet Watts served on the Committee of Rituals and Finch served as a member of the Committee on Pledge Education.

Honored guests at the convention, which drew some 250 members of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity across the world, included Barry Goldwater, Senator Paul Fannin of Arizona and the Rev. Don Moomaw, former All-American football player and now minister of the Bel Air Presbyterian Church in California.

While on their trip, the three local delegates visited Dr. Randy Cutlip, a former Dean of ACC who was instrumental in bringing national fraternities to this campus.

Jest A Moment Pillton Position Is Filled By Beautiful Seamstress

By MIKE ROACH

According to information received by the Collegiate, the House-motherhood of the new Comrade Pillton (see our Sept. 28 issue) will be entrusted to Miss Liza Macbeth Seamstress. Miss Seamstress will be honored to be the first Housemother to serve in an annex for freshmen women outside the women tri-housing area. The new structure will have to operate under strict rules and regulations similar to their freshmen counterparts.

Under her strict disciplinary hand she will guide the freshmen along the straight and narrow path. There are only three things which the girls can do without permission; one is eat (that has certain stipulations), the second is study (that has certain stipulations) and the third has to do with that straight and narrow path mentioned above (no stipulations.)

The girls will not be allowed to take any afternoon classes

The third annual Alumni Telephone Campaign will be held from Oct. 23 to Nov. 3, according to James H. Taylor, chairman of the event. Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, president of the college, will make the calls to seek support for the Alumni Fund.

The projected goal for this year's campaign is $25,000. The funds are to be used for furnishings for the new Student Center. It is hoped that cafeteria furniture as well as furnishings for the office, snack bar, and student lounge can be purchased.

Taylor said, "We have asked that he (Dr. Wenger) give a report to our alumni on the tremendous growth that is taking place on the campus, including details about the new Student Center which is nearing completion.
