Wilde Night Scheduled

Carolina Theatre, a new professional acting company, will give a performance of "A Wilde Night," at Atlantic Christian College, on Wednesday, April 18, in Howard Chapel, at 8 p.m.

A "Wilde Night" reveals the life and times of Oscar Wilde as only he could see it. The script, which features excerpts from Wilde's best known works, shows the relationship between his writings and his life, and how each affected the other.

It displays the style and wit, the skill with the turn-of-phrase, that brought Wilde to the height of the literary world in his day.

It includes many of his famous epigrams, such as "Twenty years of romance makes a woman look like a ruin; but twenty years of marriage makes her something like a public building," and "Duty is what one expects from others — it is not what one does oneself." Also included are excerpts from "The Importance of Being Ernest," "A Portrait of Dorian Gray,"

Duckworth Honored

Dr. William Duckworth, associate professor of music at Atlantic Christian College, has been notified his orchestral composition, "When In Etneral Lines To Time Thou Grow'st," was named one of five finalists in the Fifth Sigvald Thompson Award Competition.

The award, sponsored by the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony Orchestral Association, with the support of the National Endowment for the Arts, is presented for an orchestral composition by a composer who is living or has lived in the midwest.

A judging panel screened all manuscripts submitted and selected five finalists to submit to the national judges for review and recommendation. The 1972 national judges were Gunther Schuller, president of the New England Conservatory of Music, and Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, music director of the Minnesota Orchestra. Stephen Kleiman of the University of Michigan was named winner of the competition for his work "Concerto for Orchestra."

and many others of his works.

The Wilde script was adapted by Martha Nell Hardy and John W. Morrow, Jr. Morrow, a member of the Carolina Repertory Company, who is also assistant director for "Unto These Hills," directs the production. The assistant director of "A Wilde Night" is B. Sue Boase.

The cast includes six members of the company: Jennifer Crandall, Earl Christopher Armitage, Howard Doll, Martha Nell Hardy, and John W. Morrow Jr.

Circle K on the Move

The 1972-1973 school year is coming to a gradual close, and with it the first year of the Circle K Club. For a full year, the Circle K, a branch of the Kiwanis, had done much hard work, unbeknowing to the majority of ACC students. An organization devoted to community, as well as national service, the Circle K has undertaken many projects to live up to its standards.

Many may remember the Walk-a-thon held in November, in which over $600.00 was raised for the multiple sclerosis cause. Students walked from Wilson to Stantonsburg, wearning signs of their sponsors, who gave $10.00 for each walker they wished to have. There may have been many sore feet and blisters at the end of the thirteen mile hike, but most agreed that it was a fun and also rewarding project.

Along with this major project, Circle K members have been busy with various other jobs. Having two car washes was included in these, and just this past Saturday, five club members spent their day selling 200 dozen dougnhuts. $100.00 of this hard earned money will be donated to the College Fullfillment Fund.

Not all projects are to raise money, as proved in the help the club gave with the Bloodmobile, which came to ACC twice this

Plans are now being formed as to what the club will be doing next year. There are ideas being discussed for a Miss ACC pagent to take place in the fall, and also plans for more community service projects in cooperation the the N. C. Wesleyan Circle K. Once a month, the two clubs will probably be holding parties for the handicapped at a hospital in Goldsboro.

Next year's officers are headed for Miami for a week long international convention in August. Here they will elect international officers and exchange views on club ideals and projects. They hope to come back sporting good tans, but also a lot of workable ideas for the coming year.

Along with these plans is the Walk-a-thon, as a very good year is being expected. The Circle K See CIRCLE K Page 5

Part Time Employment

All students who wish to apply for part-time job and-or financial aid for either the summer school sessions or next fall are reminded to complete application before the exam period begins.

Students now working and-or receiving financial aid are reminded that they must reapply if they desire to receive assistance next year.

Applications and instructions for making application are available in the Financial Aid Office.

College Foundation applications for summer school are also available in the Financial Aid Office. College Foundation applicants are reminded that a Parents' Confidential Statement Student's Financial Statement must be filed with College Scholarship Service before the application is considered complete.

Alumni Purpose

Most of us swear to God that if we ever leave this place, "they"ll never see or hear tell of me again!'

This is the typical threat that we all make to help smooth over our egos, which have been crushed; trampled, torn apart, and all but taken from our souls during our educational (?) experience.

Yet, as the years pass by after graduation, we find ourselves missing our old friends (and Legislature met in Raleigh at the Sir Walter Hotel Wednesday. March 28 thru April 1. Atlantic Christian's delegation was composed of Otis Carter, Linda Edwards, Al Johnson, Cindy Kramer, Robbie Steen, Kim Taylor and Shannon Wilson. Al Johnson and myself comprised the Senate delegation while the others served as House delegates. For the first time in its 37-year history a committee system was instituted in an effort to cut down on debate in the Senate and House sessions. It proved to be moderately successful but there are definitely some wrinkles to be ironed out. There were over forty pieces of legislation and the end result was a number of schools left "out in the cold" so to speak. Atlantic Christian was among this group. Our primary bill establishing a Consumer's Counsel was amended slightly in committee and then passed in both houses. I met several times with Attorney General Robert Morgan and he was a tremendous help in preparing my presentation of this bill. Our secondary bill, establishing a schedule of efficient charges for discharges into state waters was discussed in great length in committee and with the help of Kathy Holoman of ECU I rewrote the bill which passed with only two votes in opposition in the House. However, this fine bill never made it to the Senate floor due to the crowded agenda. Our tentiary bill which would have legalized raffles, bingo games, etc. ... for nonprofit organizations, never reached the floor of either house.

During the session we were address by Gov. Holshouser, Lt. Gov. Hunt and Speaker of the House Ramsey. The legislature received greater press coverage than in past years. Although The Charlotte Observer headlined an article about NCSL "Student legislature okays Pot" in referring to our passage of such a bill. Little mention was made of the passage of legislation pertaining to land use, judiciary reform, tax relief to older persons and other such worthwhile measures.

The awards presentation was to me an unfitting ending for what had been a largely successful session. Best large school and small school awards went to Duke and Wingate respectively. Duke and Carolina are constantly rivals for the big school award, but I felt that Wingate's honor was based entirely upon the actions of one member of their delegation who admittedly was a standout. However, the award is for an entire delegation and I felt that Methodist College was more deserving. Best small school bill went to Meredith College and its possibly old enemies) of our days back at ACC. Never fear! To help us close that communications gap is the AC Alumni Office here on campus.

Our Alumni office is often misunderstood by those of us who haven't used it yet, so this reporter made an effort to find out how our office works.

After talking with Mr. Bill Smith, director of the alumni office, I am of the impression that AC cares more about its alumni than just as a source of money. Mr. Smith said that AC has about 10,000 alumni with about 7,200 alumni addresses on

The only prerequisite for becoming an alumni, besides attending AC, that is, is that the student must have received credit and left voluntarily.

Where does the money factor come in? Well, Mr. Smith explained, that it is easier for the college to find an industry willing to donate funds if the college has a large number of alumni contributing. It doesn't matter how much exactly, just so the industry knows the alumni

Look at it this way; if we take the view, as students often do. that we want to leave all this behind us, for good, then we're discounting our degrees. If the school should have to close, our loss is creditation, then your four years (five, six, whatever) would be in vain.

So, its' important that the school stay open to represent us just as we represent the school. Perhaps, the face value of giving has been deceiving to us, but the alumni helps us in the areas of student aids, the library, and campus improvements. To help stress these needs, AC alumni have set up 13 Alumni chapters - 11 in N.C. and 2 in Virginia. In return, the students help the alumni celebrate their homecoming ceremonies each year, an event important to most

However, if you still have nagging doubts about the sincerity of the Alumni office, if you still think that alumni are considered as an unlimited source of funds, and if you don't think AC's future depends on your involvement, drop in to see Mr. Smith at the Alumni office. He'll be glad to give you the straight story.

Fall Delivery

1973 begins a new era in Pine Knot history. In an effort to produce a better yearbook it was decided that the Pine Knot should be a fall delivery book. This decision was not made hastily or without a thorough study. It was discovered that the better college yearbooks are on fall delivery (i.e., East Carolina, and Carolina). In light of the evidence uncovered, it was felt that it was time for Atlantic Christian to try and produce a better book. Thus, we arrived at our decision.

The advantages of a fall delivery book are many. To begin with, the photographers are not nearly as rushed as they would normally have been. They have more time to print more pictures - and to take pictures over again that did not turn out well. So, the first advantage is better quality of photography. A second advantage is that the
