NUMBER THREE

Concert Pianist To Appear

Neely Bruce, concert pianist, will be in residence at Atlantic Christian College beginning Oct. 2, for a four-day clinic in American piano music in connection with the American Arts Festival currently being held at the college.

The clinic will consist of a series of lectures and concerts dealing with American piano music from 19th century composer Anthony Phillip Heinrich through the avant-garde represented by Lejaren Hiller. Lectures will be at 11 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, Oct. 2 and 4, and 12 noon, Wednesday and Friday, Oct. 3 and 5. Concerts will be held at 8 p.m. All events are scheduled to be held in the choral room of Hackney Music Building.

Bruce is currently assistant professor of theory-composition at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana. He has concertized widely performing in New York City, Chapel Hill, Birmingham and has appeared with the Huntsville, Ala., and Transylvania (Brevard, N. C.) Symphony Orchestras. He gave the premiere performance of John Cage's "HPSCHD." He can be heard as a solo recording artist on Nonesuch and Vox Production recordings.

STRING BANDS were extremely popular over the United States, especially in the South, prior to the turn of the century. Performing groups like these Atlantic Christian musicians will participate in many cultural events scheduled for the current season.

ACC Choir To Perform

The Atlantic Christian College choir, under the direction of Mr. J. Ross Albert has been selected to perform at the annual North Carolina Music Teachers Association and National Association of Teachers of Singing Convention to be held this fall at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The program which the choir will present, consists entirely of Contemporary works written by North Carolina composers. Included in the program will be the premiere presentation of a major work commissioned by the NCMTA. The commissioned work "A Mass — for these forgotten times" was written by Dr. William Duckworth, a former faculty member at Atlantic Christian College. Also included on the program will be "Psalm 148" by John S. Davis, "progress desolation" by J. Ross Albert, "Ave Maria" by Arthur B. Hunkins, "Phoneme" by Marvin Lamb, and "Go, Lovely Rose" by Jack Jarrett.

Entertainment Programs Set

A large and versatile schedule of cultural events has been scheduled for Atlantic Christian College students for the 1973-74 season which includes concerts, lectures and dramatics presentations.

For the most part the events have been arranged by Wilson Concerts, Inc., the Atlantic Christian College Concerts and Lecture Committee, the ACC Department of Music and the North Carolina Symphony.

American Arts Festival

In conjunction with the current concert season, Atlantic Christian College is presenting an American Arts Festival which will include American music, films and drama from the turn of the century through 1940.

Included on the festival calendar will be numerous concert groups, many from the college, lecturers and individual performers, most considered experts in their particular fields.

Dramatics presentations will include "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder, which will be a ACC Stage and Script production. Films to be shown during the festival will include "On the Night Stage," "The Great Train Robbery," the 1939 version of "Stagecoach," and "Shane".

Wilson Concerts Highlights

The appearance of Mitch Miller and his orchestra will be one of the main highlights of the season. He will appear in Wilson on Oct. 8 in Fike High School auditorium. A unique and dominating force in American musical life for almost four decades, Miller has built a formidable reputation as a creator and innovator in every single facet of music-making.

Lucy Peacock, an exceptionally beautiful and talented young soprano, will appear in Wilson on Feb. 19. Following her graduation from Northwestern University's School of Music, she traveled to Berlin, Germany where she became a member of Deutsche Oper Berlin and had her first of many successes as Nedda in a new production of "Pagliacci."

Her recital repertoire shows her enormous versatility as it ranges from Schubert to Poulenc, Stravinsky and Pizetti. Her operatic repertoire includes more than 14 roles.

Longstreth and Escosa, duoharpists, will appear here on Feb. 11. They have delighted audiences with the variety of their musical presentations, the power and strength of their transcriptions and performances, and with the renewed statue they are bringing to the harp. Appearances in New York's Town Hall and Carnegie Recital Hall have brought many critical plaudits.

College Presentations

Jim Gold, guitarist, will appear on the campus of Atlantic Christian College on Tuesday, Sept. 25. He is presently the head of the classical guitar department at both Jersey City State College and Montclair State College in New Jersey.

His one-man concert creates a broader understanding of the classical and folk guitar by also giving a history of the instrument explaining its construction and demonstrating some of his performing techniques.

Gold's concert will be held at the college at 11 a.m. and followed by a master class at 3 p.m., where students can discuss musical problems and approaches to the guitar.

The Atlantic Christian College Chamber Ensemble will present a program entitled "In C at A.C.," on Oct. 24. The performance will feature works by 20th century composers all dealing with the tonality of C. The newly formed group of young musicians is primarily devoted to "young music."

Allen Bids For President

My name is Chris Allen, and I am running for freshman class president. Among other duties of the president, he is to represent the class on the executive board. The executive board supervises all campus elections. It also presents a budget to the Student Government Association for approval, and promotes a general atmosphere of cooperation among the student, faculty and administration.

The freshman class of ACC has great potential, if given the right leadership. I would consider it an honor and privilege to be president, and if elected, I will represent the freshman class to the utmost of my ability. Your support would be greatly appreciated. Thank you.
