

Art Exhibition at Gallery

by Catherine Edwards

The Case Art Gallery is currently showing the Eastern North Carolina Regional Scholastic Art Awards Exhibition for 1980. The forty-six counties represented provide an insight into the local work being initiated at the classroom levels. These classroom levels have been divided into two groups. Group 1, junior high, is grades 7 through 9 and group 2, senior high, is grades 10 through 12 and is being judged separately.

The individual teachers chose the original works that were sent to the regional contest. This year 1,100 entries were received. The chosen judges were selected because they are educators and artists and have an understanding of art at a secondary level. This year the judges selected one out of every ten entries for the exhibit. Norbert Irvine, a professor of art at A.C.C. and director of the Eastern Regional Exhibit, expressed his opinion that the works not chosen for this exhibit were as good as the art selected for the exhibition. This indicates the difficulty that the judges had in making a final decision and also describes the high quality of work on exhibit at the A.C.C. gallery.

The art work that is on exhibit, until February 15, 1980, represents winners of the Gold Key and are the show finalists. The artists actually receive an engraved gold key which is to be presented to them by their respective school principals.

The regional sponsors will then send the finalists to the national headquarters at Scholastic Magazines to be judged for the national awards. Last year, North Carolina received four percent of the presented National Awards. One student artist representing North Carolina, received an art scholarship to Pratt, New York, and Phoenix school of Design through the Scholastic Art Awards.

Following this exhibit the certificate winners for the Honorable Mention work will be on exhibit from February 18th through February 29th. The goal of the contest, is to encourage students through the recognition they receive at the local and national levels. The local regional sponsor for the show is WITN-TV, Channel 7. WITN in conjunction with A.C.C. has sponsored the show for the past two years. Mr. Irvine stated that, "the exhibit demonstrates that good art teaching is being done not only in the larger cities, but in small communities as well. In addition, Eastern North Carolina young artists can hold their own against other regions as well as on the national level."

I strongly suggest that everyone should visit this exhibit as others are doing concurrently in fifty-seven regions across the United States. The work presented is refreshingly original, representative of the local communities and offers an excellent chance to view new talent on its way to New York's national judging.

Although school was not cancelled by last week's snow, the spirit of these feisty students was not dampened. The picture above shows some students pelting several administration officials as they scamper from one shelter to another.

P.D.Q. Bach at State

feature of the program.

On the campus of N. C. State University, Stewart Theatre presents The Intimate P.D.Q. Bach, a musical program of irreverent and hilarious compositions "discovered by the incomparable Peter Schickele."

Professor Schickele's program includes such works as "The Notebook for Betty-Sue Bach" and "The Toot Suite for Caliope, Four Hands." He also demonstrates and plays unique instruments, such as the Worm, the Snake and the Baroque Caliope. Comments on the life and times of P.D.Q. Bach will be illustrated by Professor Schickele's collection of rare slides, manuscripts and other memorabilia. John Ferrante, noted bargain-counter tenor of the show since its premiere in 1965, is another delightful

The show has played to satisfied audience across the United States. "The most original and satisfying expert at musical parody around these days is...named Peter Schickele," says Life Magazine. Wrote the N. Y. Times: "P.D.Q. Bach is a master not to be missed!"

The Intimate P.D.Q. Bach will be presented in Stewart Theatre on Wednesday, February 6, and Thursday, February 7, at 8 p.m. The theatre is in the Student Center on the campus of North Carolina State University.

Tickets for the show are $7.00 and certain discounts are available, thanks to a Grassroots Arts Grant from the N. C. Arts Council. For ticket information please call the Stewart Theatre Box Office at 737-3105.

Food Committee Chews the Fat

by Lee Ann Conner

The Food Committee of Atlantic Christian College held a meeting Monday, Jan. 28, 1980, at 4:45. It is the Food Committee's wish to let the student body know that they are being represented. Mr. Cummings is willing to listen to all student's suggestions; therefore, feel free to come to any member on the committee and voice your opinion.

The ice cream machines are in the cafe but have not been running due to the cost involved in hooking them up. We are now waiting for the electricians to come so we should see the start of the machines soon. One should also look forward to new chili, new hot dogs, and sundaes almost every Thursday night. We also wish to remind the students that Valentine's is coming up and we should see some delights on that day.

Monday night, Feb. 4, will be our first try at "homemade" pizza. This is something new and we hope that all students will enjoy this meal. We would also appreciate your support and consideration.

Lions Club Presents Gift

Pledges make a Match

by Amy Wagner

A crowd of pleasure seeking students gathered in the Old Gym on Tuesday, January 29 for the second annual Phi Mu Dating Game, sponsored by the Phi Mu Pleges. The host for the evening was Mr. Douglas A. Graham of the Science Department.

Three panels of beautiful bachelorettes were asked questions by three very handsome bachelors and one beautiful bachelorette quizzed a panel of three handsome bachelors. When the questioning was over, each bachelor and bachelorette has to choose their date.

After all of these difficult decisions were made, Mr. Graham told each couple what their exciting date would be. Each couple received a dinner at one of Wilson's restaurants and a few other added attractions.

As the Phi Mu Dating Game drew to a close, Mr. Graham called the four lucky couples—Bobby Samia and Paula McCoy, Bobby Winne and Karol Tackett, Laura Miller and Phillip Williams and J. J. Johnson and Sandra Butler back for a good-bye SMOOCH to end this very entertaining evening.
