

The Collegiate

November 10, 1980

Atlantic Christian College

LIBRARY

NOV 11

ATLANTIC

CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Number 11

Forbes Named

CSPR

Vance T. Forbes Transfer Co., Inc., has been named chairman of the Trustee Division of the Atlantic Christian College Development Council, according to H. B. Ruffin, general chairman of the council.

Forbes is among a group of noted professionals, business, industrial and civic leaders who are serving on the council. The development council is conducting a continuing program to secure $22 million over a 10-year period to upgrade the college's overall operations. Funds secured through the efforts of the select group will be utilized for enlarging and improving the college's facilities and substantially increasing its endowment.

Forbes said he is supporting the program because, "I am a strong believer in small, independent, church-related schools."

A member of the Atlantic Christian College Board of Trustees for more than 10 years, he has served as co-chairman of fund raising efforts for the college during its last three campaigns. He is presently a director for the N.C. Moto Carriers Association. He is a past president of the Wilson Junior Chamber of Commerce which elected him "Man of the Year." He also served as vice president of the Eastern North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A member of the First Christian Church of Wilson, Forbes has served as chairman of the Official Board, as a deacon, elder, trustee, chairman of the building fund, and chairman for the every member canvass.

He is a member of the Elks Club and the Wilson Country Club. Forbes is married to the former Robbie Sue Black of Hopewell, Va. They have two children, Vance T. Jr., and Sue Forbes Watson.

Ballinger Takes Talent Show

by Jay Mumford

Phyllis Ballinger walked away with top honors in the third annual Afro-Awareness talent show on October 22, signing to the song, "Let Me Be Your Angel."

In second place were the "AC Boppers" dance troupe of Mayline, Maryann Roundtree, and Regina Robinson while taking third in the competition was Larry Battle for his rendition of "She's Out Of My Life."

First place for Ms. Ballinger was worth fifteen dollars, and Battle earned five.

Other performances in the evening consisted of dancing, singing, twirling, and a short skit. Giving outstanding performances in the opinion of the standing room only crowd, were given by Sheila Keel and Gary Sanders for "The Closer I Get To You; Rick Mobley; The AC Boppers; Battle; Ballinger; Jonas Hooks and Gloia Walker; and Gary Sanders for "One In A Million You." Other performances were given by Ted Anderson and John Clyburn, Carla Sanders and Marlon Owens, Sybil Harris and Sharon Chalk, Katherine Hobbs, Patty Parks, Symone Adams, Maurice Reverley, Rosemary Richardson, Sheila Keel and the Smith Brothers Band, and Charlie Nottingham. While the judges were deliberating, the Smith Brothers kept the audience entertained.

Emcee Valerie Melvin kept the show rolling despite mechanical problems due partially to unnecessary horseplay.

Special thanks goes to Dan Cheek for his great knowledge of sound equipment and also the ownership of the sound equipment used. Without his help the concert would not have been.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Patricia Ghee, AC Choir instructor, Mrs. Katherine Taylor, Fike High School English instructor, Mr. Frank Mayes, Music Department Percussion instructor, Karen Yerby, Harper Hall resident counselor and student center director, Ms. Williams, Hilley Hall resident counselor, Dean Joyner, and Dean Monshower.

Committee members were Darryl Fulton, Dwayne Praetor, Jeffrey Windley, Valerie Melvin, Anthony Hines, Thomas Brown, Gail Mumford, Cynthia Jordan, Harold Lawson, and Damian Carter.

Ms. Melvin stated, "Everyone had a good time, and it was a lot of fun. We had a tremendous turnout with people lined up along the walls. I want to thank everyone for making this a success."

Admission was fifty cents, with proceeds going towards Afro Awareness projects.

Fabulous Retreat!

by Laura Plyler

Campus Christian Association sponsored a rewarding and enjoyable time for all those were able to go the Camp Caroline Oct. 20-22. Forty-eight people were rearing to go by 5:00 p.m. Friday as four vans headed toward Camp Caroline which is located along the Neuse River. The weather was windy and chilly, but the rain never interrupted the fun spent outdoors playing football or just goofing off. Everyone ate heartily, and compliments were paid to the cooks several times for the food was a pleasant change for cafeteria food. The overall theme for the retreat was, "Are you a living reminder?" The group was challenged to be Christlike so that they will remind others of Christ. From the discussions the group was taught the to be a living reminder they must "Let go and let God". This meant that a person must realize by his own strength he will fail at obeying God; therefore, he must allow God to work in his life to make him more like Christ. The time spent sharing and fellowshiping with each other was not only relaxing but also refreshing.

If you see anyone around campus who reminds you of Christ, maybe it was one of those who accepted and applied the challenge taught on the fall retreat at Camp Caroline.

Education Secretary Shirley M. Hufstедler today announced the establishment of an Office of Public Participation and Consumer Affairs in the U.S. Department of Education.

"The new Office will help us carry out Executive Order No. 12160, which provides for increased consumer participation in all Federal programs, especially more direct involvement in education programs by parents, students and citizen groups," Secretary Hufstедler said.

Al Perez, former associate counsel of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, has been appointed director of the new Office Under the overall direction of Deputy Under Secretary Margaret A. McKenna.

At the First meeting held October 16, McKenna introduced the staff of the Office of Public Participation and Consumer Affairs to representatives of citizen groups and education associations. She and Perez asked for suggestions and discussed ideas to increase public participation in programs administered by the Department of Education.

McKenna said she will hold a series of meetings to discuss future plans and objectives so that more of the approximately 100 consumer and citizen groups and education organizations in the U.S. may participate in this new program.

ENERGY.
We can't afford to waste it.

Doonesbury... A Pulitzer Prize?

Doonesbury Release

A Pulitzer Prize. The mayor of the nation's capital declares a day in its honor. Newspapers across the country have chosen not to publish it.

"Doonesbury," of course. And on October 26, 1980, the famed (and sometimes notorious) comic strip by G. B. Trudeau celebrated its tenth anniversary. What began a decade ago as a humorous look at two archetypal collegians--Michael J. Doonesbury and B.D.-- has earned a reputation for biting satire that focuses on anyone in the cultural limelight, from politicians, journalists and authors to television shows, football and lifestyle trends.

Trudeau, now 32, began his work on a comic strip with "Bull Tales," carried in the late '60s by the Yale Daily News. The strip was spotted and renamed by James F. Andrews and John P. McMeel, for founders of Universal Press Syndicate, which distributes the comic strip to 600 newspapers in this country and abroad.

Initially, 28 newspapers signed up for "Doonesbury." Helped by the comic strip's reputation for irreverence and brashness, the number of clients grew steadily, attracting a young and educated readership.

The comic strip has frequently been the center of controversy and has received considerable attention for its treatments of John Mitchell, Sen. John Warner, Gov. Edmund G. Brown and, just this week, presidential candidate Ronald Reagan. The comic strip has also blazed new trails by introducing a gay character and exploring the lifestyle of single people.

Trudeau remains a shy, reticent individual, and has stated that he prefers to let this work do the speaking for him. James F. Andrews, editor of Universal Press Syndicate, and the man who discovered "Doonesbury," summed up Trudeau as effectively as anyone: "It was clear he was a comic genius."

Flash!!!

Free Skating

Wednesday, November 12, 1980

ROLL-A-WHEEL

Lasts From 7 To 10 P.M.

Free Entrance

To All A.C. Students Who Show Their College I.D.

Sponsored By Classes Of '83, '82, '81, And '84

Come On Out For A Good Time!!!