

SPORTS

Bennett has enjoyed a real year of sports. Tennis, volleyball, baseball, soccer, basketball and hiking.

Early in the mornings, during the day, and late in the evenings, players have enjoyed competing on the tennis court. Baseball is the popular Tuesday and Thursday afternoon recreation. You have read of the undefeated basketball lassies, the best in the state, in the last issue of this paper. And you may be assured that the spirit of hiking has been kept up by the fact that the following list of persons are eligible for numerals:

Arney Hall, Ruth Hoover, Mary Stone, Bertha Brown, Katherine Powell, Louise Callo-way, Eula Belle Davis, and Louise McConnell.

DANCE RECITAL

On Saturday evening, May 12, the Natural Dancing Class and the Clog and Tap Club presented a dance recital. The program was divided in two parts: the Natural Dance program and the Clog and Tap Dance program.

The first half presented a sketch of the Negro through dances consisting of such numbers as "African Jungle Scene," by Dett-Gollimeg; "Slave Boat Scene," by Chopin; Negro folk dancing as originated by Bennett Freshmen; Negro in worship; the Negro in Classical Dancing; and "The Negro Rises to Meet the New Day," by J. R. Johnson.

The Clog and Tap Club program consisted of group tap dances, waltz clogs, rhythm dances, duets by Sarah Walden and Sophie Locke, and Lillian Tolan and Dorothy Smith, and individual creations by Eunice McKiver and Irene Blackwell.

The object of Natural Dancing is to develop:

- (a) An appreciation of the human body as an instrument for expression of beauty and emotion.
- (b) An appreciation of good music by use of music from great composers.
- (c) An appreciation of the value of rhythm.
- (d) Group consciousness and constructive self-consciousness.
- (e) To develop a well poised, proportional body.

THE CLASS PRESIDENTS SPEAK

they wished that they could have stayed until school was out.

Our classmates have been very active in the field of dramatics, music, and physical education. All in all, our year has been very pleasant and it is with fond remembrance that we bid farewell to it.

THE FRESHMEN

During the first six weeks of the college year, it was difficult for the members of the present Freshman class to adjust themselves to Bennett College for Women. Not being properly adjusted, they did not participate in any activities but the social activities, which were given in their honor. After the first six weeks had passed, and only one member of the class was on the honor roll, the class began to realize that they were there for something else rather than socializing. Then, they did some hard and good work. This is what they have done:

1. Entered religious activities and gave their best support.
2. Fourteen girls gave the Glee Club their support, and one entered the second quartette, while three participated in the quintette.
3. Produced three stars for the Girls' Champion Basketball Team of North Carolina.
4. Increased the number on the honor roll from one to eight, while one student earned A in all subjects.
5. Adjusted themselves and are developing a good philosophy of life, as every intelligent college girl should do.

After enjoying a successful school year, each girl will try to return next year and enjoy a better year.

PRESENT AGE IS AGE OF CHEMISTRY

Do not let your friends in Greek or History think that you are sitting up with the dead as they are doing. Tell them a few snappy stories from McPherson and Henderson's Chemistry or General Chemistry, by Kendall, and they will begin to look on you with respect.

Alfred Nobel, a Swedish engineer and chemist, devoted his life to the study of explosives, especially to the manufacture and stabilization of nitroglycerine. Before his death he developed into a pacifist, and planned to use his wealth to promote the advancement of civilization and the abolition of war. The bulk of his estate was accordingly bequeathed to establishing five prizes, to be awarded annually, with distinction of nationality to such as had done mankind greatest service in each of the five fields of physics, chemistry, medicine, idealistic literature, and the promotion of peace.

The Nichols Medal, established in 1902 through the generosity of W. H. Nichols, is awarded annually for the best original paper that has been published during the preceding year in any one of the journals of the American Chemical Society. Other awards given yearly are: Perkin Medal Awards, Willard Gibbs Medal Awards, and the American Chemical Society Award.

None of the awards listed above may ever reach you, but I trust that you will always feel with the old author of "Physica Subterranea":

"The chymists are a strange class of mortals impelled by an almost insane impulse to seek their pleasure among smoke and vapor, scot and flame, poisons, and poverty, yet among all these evils I seem to find so fully that may I die if I could change places with the Persian King."

"To adopt a certain form of conduct uncritically through the influence of others is unreflective. Imitation; to adopt beliefs under the influence of others without careful examination is suggestion."
